69 CHILDREN DIE AS PANIC ENDS HOLIDAY MOVIE

Scotch City Tragedy Follows Tiny Fire.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PAISLEY, Scotland, Dec. 31.—Sixty-nine children, all between the ages of 18 months and 14 years, were killed in the Glen movie theater here this afternoon in a panic which followed the ignition of film in the operator's box. It is the worst disaster in the history of the British moving picture business. A remarkable feature is that none of the children was injured by flames.

The theater was crowded with 750 children attending a special 2 cents "Hog-Ma-Nay" performance in celebration of the Scottish New Year's Eve when an operator rushed from his box carrying a roll of blazing film. With the aid of the theater manager, it was hurled from the building, but before the auditorium could be cleared from smoke and noxious fumes from the burning celluloid a mad rush had started and scores of children were trampled to death, suffocated or choked by poisonous gases. Eighty injured children were taken to hospitals.

Children Saw no Flames.

Eye witnesses declare they saw no flames, only acrid, pungent smoke coming in clouds from the operator's box before which the children fled like helpless sheep toward an exit behind the screen. Other doors were wide open but in that narrow outlet from the building, to which the children blindly rushed, there was a flight of steps leading down to a wasteland. The smaller children fell and in a moment there was a struggling mass of humanity piled six to eight feet high.

Police and firemen, who were on the scene within two minutes after the alarm, which was given from outside the building, could gain no entrance through this door. They were faced with a wall of children's bodies compressed so tightly that little forms could not be dragged clear. Rescuers entered other doors and smashed windows above but the children, paralyzed with terror would obey no orders.

A staircase leading from a balcony above the auditorium provided another death trap. In the wild rush from the crowded seats a number of little children lost their foothold on the stairs and those behind came tumbling down until the staircase was completely blocked with bodies piled eight and ten feet deep.

Girl, 10, Tells Story.

Ten year old Jenny Brown tells this story:

"I was in charge of my sisters, Emily, aged 5, and May, aged 3. When I saw the smoke I took their hands and followed the crowd toward the screen, but we could not get far owing to the crush. Then a fireman jumped down from the balcony and told us to follow him to the other door. Suddenly the children rushed the other way and I lost Emily and began to get frightened. Then the children came rushing back and knocked us down. Outside they told me Emily had been taken to the hospital.

The Glen cinema house is located in the center of Paisley, a large manufacturing town, six miles from Glasgow, and the home of the famous Paisley shawls. Its population is 84,000.

Traffic was suspended while police and firemen ran ladders to upper windows, from which came shrieks and cries for help from panic stricken youngsters.

Street Cars Become Ambulances.

With the assistance of tramway employés, who left cars in the streets, and other helpers, police pulled scores of children through windows and passed them hand over hand down ladders to the street. Tramway cars were converted into ambulances in which dead, dying and hysterical children were taken to hospitals.

Rescuers say they found some children cringing under seats. One little boy surrounded by dead bodies was holding his hands before his face, as if to ward off a blow. Others with clawed faces show a wild fight had been waged around the crowded exit.

Even Try to Climb Screen.

"Some of the children were so badly frightened," he said, "that they were trying to climb up the screen. Behind the screen space was packed with

YOU'LL HAVE TO WATCH YOUR STEP THIS YEAR!

Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Tribune.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE "FIRSTS" FOR NEW YEAR

The new year entered Chicago this morning to a lively accompaniment of events, most of which kept the police on the jump. The "firsts" were as follows:

BABY—The first baby was born to Mrs. John Gnatek in her home at 4258 Cortez street on the stroke of midnight. He is a boy and the third child in the family. Mrs. Gnatek was attended by Dr. A. C. Peska, 4010 West Division street.

SAFE BLOWING—The first safe cracking occurred shortly after midnight when six armed men entered a filling station of the Texas company at Clay street and the river, tied up George Harmon, 2151 Southport avenue, the watchman, shattered the safe, and escaped with $800 to $900.

RIOT—Many heads were bruised and many eyes were blackened shortly after 1 o'clock when a free for all started among 100 couples dancing in the Riviera School of the Dance on the second floor at 509 South Wabash avenue. Gin bottles and blackjacks flew as the battle raged on the dance floor and the stairway. A dozen policemen quelled the ruckus and no arrests were made. The cause of the trouble remained a mystery.

HOMICIDE—William Havenann, 35 years old, 3452 Pierce avenue, died early this morning in the county hospital of gunshot wounds received in a quarrel at 435 North Hermitage avenue. Albert Lambert, 22 years old, was sought as the slayer. The police said Havenann and Lambert were rivals for the hand of Miss Margaret Durger, 26 years old, in whose home the shooting occurred.

VAN DYCK CANVAS WORTH $150,000 STOLEN ON TRIP

LONDON, Dec. 31.—(AP)—A painting by Van Dyck, "Concert des Anges," of a value estimated at about $150,000, was stolen during transit from Brussels to London. The loss was discovered on opening the packing case here tonight.

The paintings had been sent by its Belgian owner, M. Bechbache, to Godfrey Phillips, a west end art dealer. On opening the packing case at the latter's gallery it was found that the frame was intact but that the canvas which measured 5 feet 6 inches by 4 feet 3 inches, had been completely cut out. The outside of the case appeared normal. The police had no clue tonight of how the painting had been extracted.

Sir Anthony Van Dyck was a Flemish painter of the early seventeenth century who became court painter to Charles I of England. He was best known as a portrait painter, but his religious subjects are also much sought after. He assisted Rubens, whose pupil he was, in some of his great compositions.

Chas. P. Taft, Ex-President's Brother, Dies

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 31.—Charles Phelps Taft, 86, half brother of William Howard Taft, former President of the United States and chief justice of the United States Supreme court, died tonight. Eighteen months ago he was stricken with pneumonia at his summer home at Murray Bay, Quebec, and never fully recovered.

Mr. Taft was the eldest son of the late Judge Alfonso Taft, who was secretary of war in the cabinet of President Hayes. Born in Cincinnati on Dec. 21, 1843, he attended Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., and entered Yale in 1860, graduating with distinction four years later.

Graduate of Heidelberg.

Completing the law course at Columbia university in 1866, he was admitted to the bar and practiced in New York until he went abroad to enter Heidelberg university, from which he graduated in 1868 with the degree of juris utriusque doctor. He went to Paris in 1869 and, after studying for a year at the Academy de France, traveled through Italy, England and Scotland, returning to Cincinnati to form a law partnership with Gen. Edward F. Noyes, in which he continued until 1871, when Gen. Noyes became governor of Ohio and Mr. Taft was elected to the legislature.

Here he found his first opportunity for public service as chairman of the committee on schools and school lands. As a result of his efforts the Ohio school laws were codified for the first time and a comprehensive and practical educational scheme adopted for the states.

Defeated for Congress.

In 1872 Mr. Taft was nominated for congress on the Republican ticket, but the Greeley wave that swept over Hamilton county in that year defeated him. He returned to the practice of law, and in 1879 obtained a controlling interest in the Cincinnati Times, which was later consolidated with the Star. Under Mr. Taft's management the Times-Star became an influential organ of the Republican party in Ohio.

Mr. Taft was a member of the union board of Cincinnati high schools for seventeen years, one of the founders of the famous Zoölogical garden, and for a long time a director of its affairs. He was also treasurer of the May Festival association and a director of the Cincinnati Museum.

Returns to Political Life.

In 1894 Mr. Taft reëntered political life, being elected to the Fifty-fourth congress from the First Ohio district. He served one term, retiring voluntarily in 1897. From 1900 to 1902 he was a member of the board of directors of the Associated Press. In 1904 he was one of the presidential electors at large from Ohio.

Mr. Taft was married in 1873 to Miss Annie Sinton, daughter of the late David Sinton of Cincinnati.

Chief Justice to Attend Rite.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Chief Justice Taft, accompanied by Mrs. Taft, will leave here tomorrow for Cincinnati to attend the funeral of his brother, Charles P. Taft. The bonds of the two brothers were exceptionally close. Last June at the close of the term of the Supreme court the chief justice went to Cincinnati to visit his brother. The trip severely taxed his strength and resulted in illness from which he has not fully recovered.

REALTY DEALER FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN STREET

Fred L. Roe, 52 years old, 2637 North Troy street, a real estate dealer with offices at 3115 Logan boulevard, was found shot to death in front of 2326 North Kedzie avenue a few minutes before midnight last night. His body was discovered by Mrs. Clara [illegible], 2320 North Kedzie avenue, when she stepped out in front of her home to witness a neighborhood celebration of the new year.

Roe at first was believed to have been the victim of heart disease, but an examination of his body by the Shakespeare avenue police disclosed that he had been shot once through the abdomen. The police were inclined to credit the theory that he had been struck by a stray bullet from the gun of a New Year's eve reveler.

MELLON AND LAMONT THINK PROGRESS SURE

Stability Proved; No Farm Surpluses.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Optimistic forecasts regarding business conditions in the New Year were issued today by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Commerce Lamont, the two cabinet members whose duties bring them most closely in contact with the economic situation.

Secretary Mellon, while conceding that there may be some slackening of employment during the winter months, predicted a revival of activity in the spring and a satisfactory year as a whole.

Secretary Lamont, after reviewing record breaking business achievements of the last year, asserted that there will be "a continuance of prosperity and progress."

William L. Cooper, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce of the department of commerce, in a statement on foreign trade during 1929 said that new records were set both for export and imports.

No Depressing Food Surpluses.

That agriculture enters the new year with no depressing surpluses of food products to be worked off before the planting of the 1930 crops was asserted by the bureau of agricultural economics of the department of agriculture in commenting on farm prospects. Crops of the last year, it was stated, showed an increased valuation of about $85,000,000 over 1928 and live stock sales showed an increase of about $90,000,000.

"Forecasting the future course of business can never be done with any certainty that it will be borne out by subsequent events," said Secretary Mellon. "No one can fully appraise the complex forces which are always at work and it is hazardous to attempt doing so. I see nothing, however, in the present situation that is either menacing or warrants pessimism. During the winter months there may be some slackness or unemployment, but hardly more than is usual at this season each year. I have every confidence that there will be a revival of activity in the spring and that during the coming year the country will make steady progress.

Credit Situation Favorable.

"In the credit situation the trend of money rates is downward. There is plenty of credit available and we have reason to expect that the rates for new capital in building construction and expansion will be such as to facilitate the promotion and accomplishment of new undertakings. Statements from the executives of railroad, public utility and industrial concerns during the President's recent conference were, almost without exception, to the effect that their expenditures for new construction and expansion in 1930 will be as much or more than in 1929.

"The government's finances are in a sound condition, which warrants the cut in taxes, and the government itself is in a position to do its part in helping the country to meet and solve the problems which are ahead."

Secretary Lamont said that American business in 1929 "reached higher levels than ever before, notwithstanding recessions in some lines in the later months."

Lamont Report Encouraging.

"Measured by quantities, not value, the output of our manufacturing industries broke all previous records, being 8 per cent higher than in 1928," said Secretary Lamont. "The mineral production shows precisely the same percentage of gain, and here, too, a new high level was established. Freight car loadings rose by 3 per cent. Employment in manufacturing industry and the amount of wage payments were both considerably greater in 1929 than in the preceding year.

"Our domestic trade, as indicated by the sales of department stores, mail order houses, and chain store systems, attained peaks never before touched. When allowance is made for price changes, the latest figures show that in volume, our foreign commerce also reached new high levels, being much greater than even in the abnormal war period.

"Commodity prices have been steady, with a slight downward tendency. There has been no undue accumulation of stocks of goods. Divi-

Showing How Danger Lurks in Great City

For those readers who may want to know why Messrs. G. L. Potter and H. L. Robertson were questioned in the state's attorney's office yesterday a clear statement of fact seems indicated.

Mr. Potter resides in Lafayette, Ind. He recently fell heir to a considerable estate, comprising, among other things, a parcel of property in Chicago. In order to advise himself of this Chicago property, he sought out his attorney, who is the Mr. Robertson above mentioned, and proposed that they visit Chicago and inform themselves at first hand.

Want Immediate Possession.

They had no difficulty in discovering the real estate, which consisted of a lot adorned by a small building. Next they met the occupant of the building, to whom they confided their desire to acquire immediate possession of the same.

"You ain't talking to me," said the occupant. "I got a lease here and I'm thinking of keeping it."

All of which was disconcerting to Messrs. Potter and Robertson. But they were not entirely dismayed and sought with what argument they might provoke to deter the lessee from his resolve to keep the building. Even their best logic was unavailing, for the lessee, presently becoming annoyed with their insistence, abruptly broke off all negotiations with a suggestion that seemed all too sinister. To Messrs. Potter and Robertson the tone of the lessee carried the vehemence of a threat.

They Return Home.

They returned to Lafayette. In relating their adventure to the boys on the courthouse steps, they could not fail to verify all the homicidal rumors that have been spread about the city of Chicago and its citizens.

A sage old gentleman who is said to be still voting for Andrew Jackson muttered something about them pineapples and machine guns up there in Chicago. The clerk in the general store wagged his head and presumed that neighbor Potter had managed a narrow escape. Well, it was a darned good thing they got out of Chicago with a whole skin, and a body would know better than to go fooling about that town again, lot or no lot.

But business is business. It became necessary for Messrs. Potter and Robertson to return to Chicago. They just couldn't get out of it. So they tried to figure out a way of slipping in and out of the big city without being killed, or at least losing an arm.

Might Ask Police Aid.

"We might go to the police and ask protection," suggested Mr. Potter.

"O, I wouldn't do that," said a neighbor who was filled with forebodings, having read about how matters stand in Chicago. "You might as well go to the gangsters themselves. Don't you know that the police up there are hand in glove with the racketeers?"

Which put an entirely new aspect on the plan. They thought of applying to the fire department, but they had heard that Al Goodrich, the fire commissioner, had just lost half his force due to the desire for economy in the city hall. A suggestion was made to call out the marines or the league of nations.

Enter the Bullet Vests.

"I got it," said a friend in need. "Here's an advertisement about the Detective Publishing company up there in Chicago. They sell them bullet proof vests. If you had one of them you couldn't get shot clear through, even if they did hit you."

The very thing. So Messrs. Potter and Robertson slipped in to Chicago and visited the offices of the Detective Publishing company, making application there for the purchase of two bullet proof vests. The sale was made. But a detail was left open. Messrs. Potter and Robertson were a little short of pocket money.

"Didn't think they'd cost so much,"

The noisiest, most boisterous celebration Chicago has witnessed since the beginning of the Volstead era ushered in a new year and another decade last night. The celebration was wet—as usual. Some said it was wetter.

The clamor, which began earlier and attracted larger crowds of merrymakers than in former years, rose to an ear splitting climax when at midnight the blare of tin horns and shouts of bibulous voices in the loop, the rattle of musketry in the south side colored belt, and the shriek of factory and locomotive whistles all over town hailed the departure of 1929 and the arrival of 1930.

Unmolested by Drys.

All who had procured alcoholic stimulants—there appeared to be many—poured the beverages unrestrained and apparently unnoticed by the 100 prohibition agents whom Assistant Administrator George K. Hurlburt had assigned to prevent violations of the Volstead law. Early this morning Mr. Hurlburt issued a statement declaring, as he did last year, that the 1930 New Year was the driest in his recollection.

"Most folks seemed to have spent New Year's in the movies," said Mr. Hurlburt. "We attribute the orderliness of the occasion to the coöperation of the managers of the hotels and clubs. Apparently the heavy drinkers did their celebrating at private parties, for my agents made no arrests."

Among casualties reported was that of Herman Walker, 28 years old, who suffered a scorched face when an old musket back fired as he pulled the trigger to fire a New Year salvo out the window of his home, 2142 Washington boulevard. A stray bullet struck Stanley Potempa, 26, in the right arm as he left his home, 628 Bunker street.

Two Trucks of Beer.

Fifteen minutes before midnight a squad of private detectives halted traffic at 47th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Two trucks rumbled up to the Vogue café, managed by Joseph Fusco. Cases of beer were unloaded for the 200 thirsty patrons inside. A uniformed policeman strolled by, spoke a word with Mr. Fusco, and passed on.

The celebrants in the loop numbered about 20,000. The coöperation Mr. Hurlburt mentioned was discernible at the loop hotels. At the Sherman, which attracted 4,500 celebrants, no setups were served and the waiters discouraged drinking from bottles. At midnight the lights in all four dining rooms—the Bal Tabarin, the College Inn, grand ballroom, and Louis VI. room, were turned out and the numerals 1930 were flashed into white bulbs on the ceilings.

Setups Are Refused.

Three thousand merrymakers saw the old year out at the Edgewater Beach. Waiters refused numerous requests for setups and patrons with bottles had to take their refreshments raw. No prohibition agents appeared at the north side hotel, but fifteen were on duty at the Sherman.

The Terrace Garden restaurant in the Morrison and the gold room of the Congress were jammed, with scores of persons in formal dress vainly seeking admission. At both hotels cracked ice and ginger ale were taboo, but the mixing beverages were served in a chilled state and many poured highballs under the tables.

Sedate and Expensive Party.

A sedate party was held at the Petrushka club, 156 North Michigan avenue. The club served an eight course dinner with a $16 cover charge to a capacity patronage of 240.

Dan Blanco, manager of the Club Alabam, 747 Rush street, nominally one of the gayest in night life of the near north side, was bitterly disappointed at the New Year showing. His place, which is packed on the average Saturday night, attracted only 20 couples.

The so-called "key clubs" of the near north side, so-called because they admit only those who can unlock the door, did a lively business, according to Patrolmen Tobin and Brady of Chicago avenue district, who [illegible] tailed to inspection duty [illegible] flivver.

Two wags who had [illegible] faces with burnt cork [illegible] for federal sleuths in [illegible] they entered the Grand [illegible] a black and tan resort at 40th street and Grand boulevard. When the masqueraders demanded hard liquor a dozen patrons, led by the bartender, pounced on them, drenched their clothes with ginger ale, and poured raw alcohol down their throats.

Calls on Dry Agents.

Tex Guinan, chief hostess at the Green Mill, 4810 Broadway, opened festivities by calling upon any and sundry prohibition agents among the 400 guests to identify themselves and "take a big hand" from the stage. None came forward. Miss Guinan played to a capacity crowd until daylight, as did the entertainers at the Uptown Village, four doors further north on Broadway.

The loop crowd began to gather about 9:30 p. m., an hour earlier than on the average New Year's eve. Vendors were at every corner, peddling tin horns at 25 cents and cowbells at 75 cents. A hundred traffic policemen were on duty to direct traffic and maintain order.

A Sprinkling of Tipsy Ones.

Perhaps one out of every fifty persons appeared tipsy. The death of 1929 was signalized by a shower of confetti and window curtains from hotel rooms, blaring of tin horns, back firing of motors, and the blare of auto horns. Taxi drivers, incidentally, were under strict instructions to refuse all proffered beverages under penalty of immediate discharge.

The intersection of State and Madison streets was a mass of revelers wearing cockades, false whiskers, and carnival masks. Many of these were bound from one hotel to another. Many, lacking reservations, were turned away from the night life centers.

The loop movie theaters, all of which offered midnight shows, played to capacity crowds. Henrici's restaurant, departing from custom, served a midnight meal.

Broadcasting stations were besieged with requests from listeners at home, an indication that fireside parties were sharing popularity with the hotel and club celebrations. Telephone requests swamped THE TRIBUNE station, W-G-N.

Throws Out the Curtains.

The crowd in Randolph and Clark streets was treated to a New Year tableau. An inebriated guest at a private party in a fourth floor room signalized his joy over the passing of the year by hurling window drapes and shades upon the heads of those below. He was clambering out the window, apparently intending to make the forty foot leap, when his companions dragged him back inside.

Pope's Brother, Count Ratti, Dies After 2 Days' Illness

ROME, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Count Fermo Ratti, brother of Pope Pius XI., who had been ill for the last two days, died suddenly at 9:25 tonight. The countess and his son were with him at the time.

100,000 REVELERS DRINK NEW YEAR IN AT NEW YORK CAFES

New York, Jan. 1, 1:30 a. m.—[Special.]—At least 100,000 residents of New York cheered and drank the new year in at café tables. The night clubs and the speakeasies. The costlier restaurants and the dining rooms of the big hotels were jammed with celebrants early this morning.

Some of the big hotels claimed enormous numbers of guests. The Astor estimate was 3,500; the New Governor Clinton entertained 2,000; the Plaza served 1,200, and the McAlpin and the Savoy attracted 1,000 each.

The night clubs were bragging that despite cover charges of between $10 and $25 per person [the highest hotel cover charges were $15] they had all the business they could handle.

There was only one dismal aspect. That was Commissioner Whalen's pronunciamento that in the eyes of the police department the morning of Jan. 1, 1930, would look just the same as any other morning and that all night clubs would have to shut down at the 3 o'clock curfew time.

The other side of the metropolitan scene on New Year's was the celebration of "watch services" in many of the Episcopal and Catholic churches.

PARIS NABS THREE IN ANTI-FASCIST BOMBING PLOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 31.—An anti-Fascist plot to bomb the Italian delegation on its way to the league of nations council at Geneva Jan. 15, together with activities of Italian anti-Fascists in Paris, were discovered today by the "surete generale," France's Scotland Yard. Three anti-Fascist journalists were arrested. They are Alberto Parchiani, former director of a Socialist daily; Giuseppe Sarbelli, prominent in Italian revolutionary circles, and Alberto Cianca.

Police found seven packages of high explosive, seven detonators, several yards of fuse, and huge stores of arms in the anti-Fascist den.

With the arrests police believe they are on the trail of an international gang of anti-Fascist terrorists. It is also believed that there is a close connection with the recently exposed plot to bomb the wedding train of Belgium's royal family and the attack on Prince Humbert of Italy at Brussels.

Body of Hotel Guest Found in Room; Gun in Hand

The body of a man about 40 years old, who had registered Monday night as George Adams of Philadelphia, was found yesterday in his room in the Morrison hotel with a bullet in his right temple and a pistol in his right hand. He had been dead about sixteen hours, according to house detectives, who entered the room with a pass key after repeated knocks of the maid had gone unanswered. The man was about 6 feet tall, weighed 180 pounds and wore cheap clothing tailored in Chicago. Police believe the name under which he registered was assumed.

WHY HOOSIERS MET PROSECUTOR IS LENGTHY TALE

But at Last All Is Set Right.

said Mr. Robertson. "But if you'll send them over to the hotel later we'll have a check cashed."

They went out. But the salesman in charge of the bullet proof vest department, leaning the end of his nose on his forefinger, developed a lurking suspicion. The more he cogitated over this suspicion the closer he moved toward a telephone. Finally he was decided. He took up the receiver.

"Hello, Pat," said he, when he had got his connection with the state's attorney's office, "Is this you, Pat? I want Pat Roche, the chief investigator for Judge Swanson. O, it is you, is it, Pat? Well, this is the Detective Publishing company. There was a couple of dangerous looking torpedoes in here just now and they bought a pair of bullet proof vests. I thought you ought to know. The vests ain't been delivered yet. These gangsters have gone out to get the cash."

Mr. Roche almost swallowed his hot cigar stub. "Hold the vests," said he. "Hold the vests until I send a confidential man over. He'll know what to do."

Vests to Be Delivered.

Forth from the state's attorney's office went Detective Hanley Hallen, a youthful yet determined official, and presently called at the offices of the Detective Publishing company. In the meantime Messrs. Potter and Robertson had telephoned that they preferred not to make the long, unprotected journey after the vests; could a messenger be dispatched with them?

"That's right in my kitchen," said Detective Hanley Hallen, fetching his hat over his right eye with a menacing gesture. "Gimme them vests and I'll be the delivery boy. That puts the scallawags in my clutches."

Detective Hanley Hallen set off on his errand to an address in Kenwood avenue.

Now while Detective Hanley Hallen was thus ostensibly threading the streets of a great city all alone and in danger of being set upon by a pair of dangerous scoundrels, this was not really the case. For, with an astuteness bordering on telepathy, Chief Investigator Roche had immediately dispatched Detectives Casey and Capparelli on the trail of Detective Hanley Hallen, to spring the trap, as the saying goes in police circles, when the Indiana prey should come to hand.

Casey and Capparelli trailed Detective Hanley Hallen to the Kenwood place. They saw Detective Hanley Hallen enter.

"Did you bring the vests," said Messrs. Potter and Robertson in one voice.

"All right and tidy," said Detective Hanley Hallen. "Have you got the dough."

The faces of Messrs. Potter and Robertson sagged just a mite. They had failed to cash the check, being strangers in the city, and urged Detective Hanley Hallen to accept it.

"Not me," said Detective Hanley Hallen. "I took a check once. And lived on hot dogs for four weeks afterwards."

"Well, then," said Mr. Robertson, "suppose we all go together and get it cashed. It will be more chummy-like seeing we don't know much about your city."

Detective Is "Kidnaped."

Detectives Casey and Capparelli, ambushed behind snowbanks which had not been removed owing to the crippled condition of the Chicago snow removing fund, perceived to their horror that their companion and colleague, Detective Hanley Hallen, was being led out of a mysterious house by two men who bore unmistakable evidence of wearing bullet proof vests, as one might judge by the bulkiness of their middles.

"They're gonna kidnap 'im," said Detective Casey. And they flew to their automobile just up the way and cranked her up just as the kidnapers sailed round the next corner with their victim. But Casey and Capparelli put zeal in their driving and soon caught the trail. They were afraid to shoot lest they kill their colleague, so they contented themselves with hanging on.

"Goddamighty!" said Detective Capparelli. "They're goin' to rob a bank."

They pulled up and got behind trees so as to open a perfect fusillade when the robbers should emerge. They did emerge, but Detective Hanley Hallen was with them, and they couldn't bring themselves to kill that youthful looking operative. The kidnapers and their prey reëntered their car and drove off.

By this time Casey and Capparelli had gathered up a platoon of south park motorcycle policemen and the chase began. In a few moments Messrs. Potter and Robertson and Detective Hanley Hallen were neatly hemmed against the curbstone. Pistols gleamed in all directions. Messrs. Potter and Robertson said, "I knew it." Then they developed laryngeal paralysis and couldn't have spoken another word had it been to say as little as "I want to go home."

The caravan made for the state's attorney's office, where Investigator Roche stood chewing a brand new cigar stub. The party entered. And after a severe half hour of questioning, as was indicted in the beginning of this item, Mr. Roche tossed this stub out the window and said: "Well, I'll be damned."

BELGIAN AND ITALIAN RULERS CABLE HOOVER NEW YEAR GREETINGS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Acknowledging New Year greetings from King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and King Albert of Belgium, President Hoover today dispatched cables to the two European rulers expressing wishes for their happiness and that of their nations.

"I thank your majesty for your cordial New Year's greetings," Mr. Hoover told the Italian king. "May the coming years bring to your majesty health and happiness and to the great nation over which you preside continued peace and prosperity."

To King Albert the President wired:

To King Albert the President sent a message of good will and good wishes for the Belgian people.

Shayne's Overstocked Inventory Of Famous FUR COATS
MUST BE REDUCED

Genuine Shayne Furs and Genuine Savings of 25% 33⅓% 50%

There have been other Shayne sales on fur coats, but here is undoubtedly your greatest opportunity to save on furs of quality that has occurred since before the war or, for that matter, in our entire 57 years of business!

The simple facts are that we are tremendously overstocked. It means that you will have marvelous variety to select from, but it also means that for the first time we must disregard cost, profit and selling price in order to get our inventories back to normal. The reductions we are making will do the trick. As long as they last you can buy Shayne furs at prices far lower than you would expect to pay for furs of ordinary reputation; prices that make it worth your while to buy next year's fur coat now.

Space permits listing only a typical few of the hundreds of fur coats on sale! Everything is included, nothing reserved; we must clear our stocks. Attend immediately and judge for yourself, in our store, whether these are the greatest values it has ever been your privilege to witness. If you love quality, style and good taste, we assure you it will be one of the most profitable shopping trips you have ever made.

Special! Your choice of a group of American Broadtail, Natural Squirrel, Mole, Caracul, Southern Weasel, and Hudson Seal Coats at $175

Our quality . . . our prices . . . our Service can't be equaled. We make it easy for you to buy. If you are responsible and of substantial character (and most people are) that's really all that is necessary and there's no reason why you should be deprived of a Shayne Fur Coat any longer.

Men, Read This!

We invite your consideration of a fur coat purchase at this time from a hard-headed business standpoint. Shayne furs at these prices are nothing more or less than an investment opportunity such as occurs very seldom in your business or home life.

DRIVERS' STRIKE, COAL FAMINE THREATEN CITY

Conference Called Today to Avert Tieup.

Coal dealers received notice yesterday from the west side local of the Coal Teamsters' and Chauffeur's union that a strike would be effective tomorrow morning, tying up fuel deliveries. The strike call came as a surprise to the dealers. The Chicago Coal Merchants' association considered it certain that one union local would not walk out without coördinated action by the other locals, tying up all coal deliveries in the city and nearby suburbs and bringing on Chicago the calamity of a midwinter fuel famine.

The dealers' association appointed a committee last night which got in touch with the union leaders and arranged for a conference today at which efforts will be made to avert the strike.

Ask Workers' Demands.

The strike notice was served on the dealers by the drivers' local No. 782, which operates on the far west side and in the western suburbs. The dealers' committee sought out President Milton Booth of local No. 704, the most important of the unions, which has jurisdiction in the heart of the city, to learn, if possible, what the demands and intentions of the workers might be.

President Booth was located in his home last night and he announced that the workers would meet today and would accept the invitation to discuss their intentions with the employers. He would make no statement, however, regarding the possibility of the men continuing work if the new contract is not signed today, nor whether the men will accept the same wage scale that has been in effect for two years. In the event of a strike, he said, the unionists would see to it that orphanages, hospitals, and similar institutions were supplied with fuel.

James D. Rooney, executive secretary of the Coal Merchants' association, said last night that hotels, apartment buildings and many of the downtown skyscrapers have less than 48 hours' supply of coal on hand. Many homes also are without sufficient fuel to last through an emergency.

Strike to Cause Suffering.

If the strike occurs it will cause much suffering, Mr. Rooney said, as up to last night no arrangements had been made to provide coal to the needy if the teamsters and chauffeurs refuse to go to work tomorrow. The threatened reduction of the Chicago police force adds to the danger, Rooney said, as proper protection would not be available. A suggestion had been made, he said, that policemen, city firemen and perhaps the National Guard would be impressed into service to man the trucks needed to keep the city warm.

But the merchants were hopeful the negotiations today would avert the tieup. But if the conference fails they will adopt measures to get coal delivered, Rooney stated.

Whether or not the question of wages is involved could not be learned last night. The strike notification came as a surprise, although there had been talk of it for the last few weeks.

Barker Is Cause of Trouble.

The original obstacle to a renewal of the agreement between the merchants and the drivers was George Barker, business agent of Local 704 of the coal teamsters' union. The merchants had demanded his elimination, but they failed to press their demand and were hopeful that the new contract would be signed without other difficulty.

Then, yesterday, the first warning came when the Albany Fuel company, 4600 Roosevelt road, was notified by Business Agent Gordon of Local 782 that the union chauffeurs of that district would not report for work Thursday morning. The company immediately reported the notice to Mr. Rooney and within a short time many other coal dealers called to say they had heard from the business agents of the unions in their territories.

How Trouble Arose.

The trouble between the coal merchants and the unionists came to a climax a month ago when the merchants wrote a letter to the union, saying they would not renew the wage and working conditions agreement unless Barker was ousted from his union job. The union reply was that the personnel of the officers of the union was none of the merchants' business, and matters remained in that state until yesterday.

About 5,000 workers are affected by the threatened strike. The average wage of chauffeurs is $8.30 a day and the two or three handlers or "hikers" who accompany each load of coal earn between $6 and $7 a day. Their refusal to work, because of any loyalty to Barker or for any other reason, would mean more than a mere loss of pay to them and loss of profits to the companies, however, because of the needs of the public.

Weather reports for yesterday forecast slightly warmer weather in the near future, but even with the temperature remaining mild, the health and welfare of practically the entire city were in jeopardy. The merchants' spokesman said last night they realized the cost in public suffering that may come of their determination to clean up their trade by getting rid of Barker.

George Barker is an ex-convict, twice paroled and recently acquitted of a charge of murder when a policeman who had been shot retracted an identification he had made. Barker's reputation, despite the acquittal, was such as to bring constant embarrassment to the coal dealers.

Barker is the only surviving member of the gang which included William Clifford, Michael Reilly, Tom McElligott and Cy Cawley, who started in their youth as hoodlums. All except Barker have been killed in the past year.

Independents Complain.

In October two coal dealers, not members of the merchant's association, complained to State's Attorney Swanson they were being harried by Barker who told them they must join the association. Strikes were called on them frequently, the independents stated, and on several occasions they had to pay money to Barker or his agents in order to get their employés back to work.

A grand jury investigation was started, but no indictments were returned. State's Attorney Swanson was asked to take the necessary steps to have Barker returned to the penitentiary for violation of parole.

Happy New Year to The Tribune Readers

TRIBUNE NEWSIE GREETING 61 YRS. AGO IS RECALLED

Reader Has Copy of Old Verses.

Old fashioned formality long ago gave up the struggle with speed and went the way of the base burner, the kerosene lamp and the knitted concoctions known as kiss-me-quicks, but the flavor still lingers in vivid memories. A touchstone that brought the old days back to John S. Macy of 3353 New Jersey street, Indianapolis, was a New Year's greeting distributed by CHICAGO TRIBUNE newsboys sixty-one years ago today.

Three score years have hardly touched it with the yellow tinge of age. Since Jan. 1, 1869, when THE TRIBUNE carrier delivered it to his father at their home on West Monroe street, Macy wrote, it had reposed in an old scrap book, with another of the following year. On the back was a printed calendar of the new year. Inside was a lengthy poetic effort entitled "The Carrier's Address."

Verses Give Greeting.

"Listen to the bells, with their merry, merry ring, as sparkling with beauty, the New Year they bring," began the first of the twelve verses. Eight verses down the line appeared the "personal touch" of the piece:

"But now the verses are wafted again, from the carrier boys, in a still humbler strain.
"They join the chorus with 'Happy New Year,' bow low to the public they have striven to cheer;
"Summer and winter their pathway is beat, to bless all the patrons with each daily sheet;
"Bringing the news from all quarters and land, of politics, commerce, the sage congress band;
"Marriage and death, too, recorded in trust; fashion and gossip, narrate it they must;
"Mid snowstorm and rain, the carriers' wend, to bring the late news of the famed 'Grecian Bend.'"

"Chicago is a revelation as well as an inspiration," writes Macy harking back to those days before the fire of 1871. "In those days we lived in West Monroe street in a rather pretentious neighborhood—the houses remarkable for being erected on stilts. One had to mount a flight of stairs to reach the first floor. The object, to escape the annual uprising of water. There were plank sidewalks and dirt streets which became mud in wet weather.

Recalls "Daddy Baker."

"I attended Skinner school at Adams and Aberdeen streets. The principal was Mr. Baker, who wore a long white beard and whom the boys called 'Daddy Baker.' Some readers may remember names of the teachers—Miss Higbee, Miss Crosby, Miss Moulton, Miss Herrick, and Miss Brainard, whom I admired especially, until one day she shut me up in a closet for being mischievous.

"I saw President Grant when he visited Chicago. I think that was before the fire of 1871. He attended services in the beautiful Gothic edifice, the Centenary M. E. church, across from our home. Dr. Fowler, the pastor, who afterward became a bishop of high renown, delivered the sermon. There was an immense crowd in the church as well as on the outside. A number of us little boys gathered at the side entrance, where we hoped he would leave to avoid the crowd. Sure enough he did, and we followed him up the street to where his carriage was waiting."

DECEMBER SNOW RECORDS BROKEN IN LAST MONTH

In the wake of the snowiest and cloudiest December in Chicago's history, the entry of the New Year will be wet. The weather man, C. A. Donnel, predicted last night that today would be mild and probably rainy.

December's total snowfall, Mr. Donnel said, was 20.2 inches, which exceeded by 1.1 inches the heaviest previous total in December. Normal snowfall for the month is 6.4 inches.

Skies were cloudy on 24 out of December's 31 days. There was only 24 per cent of the possible amount of sunshine, a new low record. The mean temperature for the month was 24.4 degrees, which was four-tenths of a degree below normal.

NEW YEAR'S EVE IN LONDON MOST HECTIC SINCE WAR

Berlin and Vienna Also Enter in the Fun.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—London's west end went wild tonight celebrating New Year's eve. It was the most hilarious and merry celebration in years. Streets were densely packed hours before midnight with massed crowds, attired in paper hats and carrying weird instruments of music. Merrymaking was the heaviest around Piccadilly and Leicester square.

All west end places of amusement and cabarets were jammed. Restaurants and hotels were packed, with long waiting lines unable to gain admission. A festival of dinners, suppers, and dances was staged in all the hotels and restaurants.

Masses Burst Into Song.

Thousands took part in the time honored custom of trooping up Ludgate hill to the mammoth steps of St. Paul's cathedral, where the Scots in London traditionally celebrate the festival by bursting into song at the hour of midnight. The precincts of the cathedral and approaches were jammed with crowds, from which the skirl of bagpipes, the fanfare of tin trumpets and whistles burst out. It was London's most hectic New Year's eve since the war.

Berlin Has Merry Time.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—Despite the undercurrent of pessimism prevailing in Germany, Berlin enjoyed a truly carnivalesque New Year's eve. Bakers worked all night to finish 20,000,000 golden brown "pfannkuchen," known as Bismarcks.

Theaters produced their newest plays. Berlin's official state theater ushers in the New Year with a play, "Boxers," by the American, Ferdinand Reiher.

Out on the streets clownishly dressed merrymakers sang as they capered along streets from beer garden to wine restaurant, to cellars and sport halls, all turned into improvised dancing halls, where squads of tax collectors are working overtime collecting the "amusement tax," which is four times higher than any other day of the year.

U. S. Jazz at Vienna.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Dec. 31.—Despite post war poverty, Vienna tonight celebrated one of the merriest New Year's eves since the institution of the republic. Practically every restaurant and café in the capital staged a midnight supper dance with American jazz bands.

The most typical New Year's eve parties were held in private homes, where guests brought wine and food to stage impromptu indoor picnics. The traditional habit of presenting little statues of pigs, together with mushrooms and shamrock plants, as a token of good luck, was carried on.

Many Yankees at Havana.

HAVANA, Dec. 31.—The new year was ushered in here with shrieking whistles, blowing horns, ringing bells and shouts of "Happy New Year!" between thousands of Americans who came to Havana. Havana was one of the gayest cities in the world tonight, with champagne flowing freely. Thousands of Americans arrived here yesterday and today.

Aside from the president's reception at the palace no official celebration is announced for tomorrow. The American ambassador is not holding a public reception but he will call on President Machado with other foreign diplomatic representatives.

KIDNAPER ASKS NEW HEARING.

Angelo Petitti, under a 25 year sentence for the kidnaping of 10 year old Willie Ranieri, filed notice in the Supreme court yesterday that he will ask for a rehearing. The Supreme court last week denied him a new trial. The rehearing motion probably will be disposed of at the February term of court.

BRITISH LABOR GAINS STRENGTH IN LORDS; CREATES NEW PEERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—The first New Year's honors list issued tonight by the Labor government contained no great surprises. As was anticipated Prime Minister MacDonald's list included interesting appointments to the house of lords in order to increase Labor's debating strength in the upper house. The list includes six new peerages, one privy councillor, four baronets, and 48 knights.

Of the new peers Arthur Augustus William Harry Ponsonby, parliamentary undersecretary of state for dominion affairs, is the only member of the Labor government to be honored. This appointment was anticipated and his transference to the upper house will necessitate a by-election in the Sheffield division.

The best known of the new peers is Sir Hugh Trenchard, chief of the British air staff since 1919, who resigned today, and Sir Charles Wakefield, former lord mayor of London and prominent oil magnate. The latter, with Sir William Joseph Noble, former president of the chamber of shipping in the United Kingdom, constitute the two leading industrialists joining the ranks of Labor.

Many well known women received honors for public services, the most notable distinctions conferred being companionships of honor to Miss Maude Royden, famous woman preacher and sister of Sir Thomas Royden, chairman of the Cunard Steamship company, and Miss Gertrude Tuckwell, first woman magistrate of London, being appointed in January, 1920.

Miss Elsie Hughes, Lord Dawson of Penn's secretary, has been made a member of the Order of the British Empire for her services during the king's illness. Lady Bailey, famous woman flyer, is made dame of the Order of the British Empire for services to aviation. Prime Minister MacDonald's personal private secretary, Miss Rose Rosenberg, who accompanied the prime minister on his recent trip to the United States, gets the honor of commander of the Order of the British Empire.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 31.—After four meetings with Premier Tardieu, Ambassador Edge of the United States has apparently convinced the wary Frenchman that he and his country's press are all wrong in their supposition that the United States and Great Britain have reached a hard and fast pre-conference agreement on the reduction of navies.

Charged with this task by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Ambassador Edge fell to and held four long conversations during the last few days, including a luncheon where he had the aid of Ambassador Gibson, down from Brussels. These talks seem to have succeeded in chasing certain bogies from M. Tardieu's head.

Everybody in France, from the government down through the press, has been convinced that President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald signed on the dotted line and that the conference is nothing less than a setup.

That Secretary Stimson and Premier Tardieu will meet at London Jan. 19 in a preconference discussion was confirmed at the embassy today. French sources declared that an enlargement of the Kellogg pact to include some kind of enforcement measures as an answer to the French claim that there is no security outside of general disarmament under the auspices of the league of nations will be proposed by the American secretary of state.

At The Hague, however, there is no doubt after today's ministerial conference that M. Tardieu and Foreign Minister M. Briand intend to out-Snowden Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer. The French have learned, as M. Tardieu said in a speech recently, to say "No!" and the delegation is expected to bluntly say "no" to any meddling annuities.

Following this meeting, Minister of Marine Leygues announced imposing naval divisions will be sent immediately to the Antilles, French West Africa, Indian ocean and to the South Pacific. He said he had consulted the ministry of colonies on naval requirements and that three fast cruisers of the Duquesne type—fleetest in the world—will compose the "flying colonial squadron," which will dash about from one colony to another.

Obvious though this move may seem, it is all in line with French insistence that naval tonnage should be based on her importance as the second colonial power. With all of these naval units in distant waters, she will, of course, demand more craft in the Atlantic and Mediterranean.

Italy Confers with Spain.

ROME, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Dino Grandi, minister of foreign affairs, has had lengthy conversations with the Spanish ambassador, Count de la Vinaza, regarding the attitude of Spain towards a proposal in a recent French memorandum for the conclusion of a Mediterranean accord. Nothing concerning the outcome has been given out.

WIFE WHO SHOT MATE TO DEATH WINS FREEDOM

Tells of Cruelty as Relatives Mourn.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coniglio is going to have a fine silver finish metal casket for her husband she shot to death, Ralph Carmen Coniglio. She has been freed, and she feels she can do that much for him.

She fired three shots, two of which hit him, one near the heart, after he struck her on Monday night. They were in their flat at 336 North Western avenue, their 9 year old daughter, Mary, in the room with them.

After the inquest yesterday in the undertaking establishment at 624 North Western avenue the self-made widow set out with the undertaker to chose the casket.

Mother Tells of Life.

Meanwhile Coniglio's mother, Mrs. Mary Coniglio, 2319 North Austin boulevard, dressed in her mourning dress of shiny black, waiting for her boy to be "laid out" so she could see him, rocked to and fro and in broken fragments of speech told of her grief. A daughter, Lena, also in a new black sateen house dress, all they could afford for mourning, sewed a black veil on a hat for her mother and told how they had reared the 9 year old Coniglio child, Mary, until she was 5 years old.

"If I could only have her back—but I could not stand to see her mother again," Mrs. Coniglio said, clasping and unclasping her knotty hands so familiar with hard work. "I have had ten children, and had buried seven, and now my boy—she got him. I have only the two girls left.

"In the old country they would imprison for life a wife who shot her husband to death," she said. "But she should pay with her life."

Her husband, Frank, 65 years old, a laborer, sat quietly by. They were worrying because they had no money for funeral expenses in case the widow could not collect the insurance money, provided by the husband she shot.

Tells of His Cruelty.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coniglio, in rooms belonging to her brother, John Durham, 25 years old, 2342 West Monroe street, her face bleak and set, spoke bitterly of the dead man, her husband. Mrs. Coniglio is 30 years old.

"I stood it and stood it, and then I couldn't stand it any longer. Ever since I was 12 years old and my mother died I've been getting abuse. I'm human, I like a little decent treatment. Well—it was his life or mine. No, I didn't expect to get off. Yes, I'm going to keep the girl."

She didn't leave her husband, she said, because she "didn't want to break up the home." She came to Chicago from an Indiana farm, worked as a maid in a hotel at Halsted and Harrison streets, and there met Coniglio and married him secretly.

PARENTS SUED

MRS. ALTA W. SHORR.
[Lewis Smith Photo.]

A $50,000 alienation of affections suit was filed in the Circuit court yesterday against Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Warsawsky of the Belden Stratford hotel, by Maurice J. Shorr, secretary of the Cosmopolitan Investment company, for the affections of his estranged wife, Mrs. Alta Warsawsky Shorr. Mrs. Shorr's father is a retired millionaire. The Shorrs were married on June 27, 1928, and separated last May 16. Her suit for divorce on charges of cruelty is pending.

1929 DIVORCES UNDO A FOURTH OF CUPID'S WORK

43,059 Marriages; 10,366 Go on Rocks.

One divorce was granted for every four marriages performed in Cook county in 1929, according to statistics released yesterday by county officials. A total of 10,366 divorce decrees and annulments were granted in the Circuit and Superior courts as compared with 43,059 marriage licenses issued by County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer.

County Clerk Sweitzer revealed that marriages are on the increase after an era of decline. The 1929 total is the second highest in the history of the county, topped only by the 43,119 total of 1923. Despite the increase in marriages the one to four ratio set early in the year was maintained by a corresponding increase in divorces. The total of divorces and annulments establishes a new record.

Year's Marriage Statistics.

Yearly marriage statistics are as follow:

Year.	Marriages.	Year.	Marriages.
1920	42,503	1925	40,877
1921	38,190	1926	42,323
1922	38,094	1927	40,668
1923	43,119	1928	40,570
1924	42,294	1929	43,059

June, the conceded marriage month, was also acclaimed as the divorce month in the reports of M. S. Szymczak and Thomas O. Wallace, clerks of the Superior and Circuit courts. The month of wedding saw 5,605 weddings, passing the 1928 total of 5,438, but behind the record June of 1920 with 5,739 ceremonies.

Vacation Months Low.

The same month witnesses the signing of 889 divorce decrees in the Superior court and 368 in the Circuit court to establish a monthly peak of 1,257. December ran second in the Superior court with 730 decrees. The vacation months of July, August and September were lowest, averaging about 150 decrees in each month.

The ratio of marriages and divorce actions is two to one. In addition to the 10,366 broken marriages there are approximately 10,000 divorce suits pending in the two courts. Many of these will not be pressed by the contestants.

POLITICAL FAT IN BUDGET OILS SKIDS FOR COPS

Controller's Draft Shows Council "Economy."

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The city corporate budget for 1930 has an abundance of "fat." It protrudes like an aldermanic bay window. Some of the authority to spend is not even covered up with a plausible excuse.

The proposed budget, appropriating $55,264,140, named "the economy budget" by its fathers—the council finance committee—has been exceeded only three times in the history of Chicago. It proposes to reduce the police and fire forces by several hundred men, and at the same time it would have the taxpayers contribute the cost of maintaining and operating the automobiles owned by 49 aldermen. The 50th alderman, John S. Clark, as chairman of the finance committee, receives $3,500 more salary a year than his colleagues, therefore does not ask the public to maintain his private auto.

Saving a Million or So.

A study of the budget draft shows that a million dollars can be easily lopped off for the benefit of public safety. If a little pressure were applied two or three times that amount could be squeezed out, more than enough to pay the hundreds of policemen and firemen slated for dismissal.

One "economy" item of $16,000 is "for services of engineers, including one consulting engineer at $8,000 per annum, assistant engineers, bridge designing engineers, investigators and stenographers, as needed, in connection with Union station and Illinois Central station development ordinances."

The Union station was completed four and a half years ago. The aldermen know that because they celebrated its opening with a banquet, at the company's expense, in July, 1925.

The Illinois Central ordinance was passed in 1919 and no one has told the public what city engineers are expected to do on it this year. That $16,000 would hire more than six patrolmen.

Police Burglary Insurance.

Another "economy" is an item of $11,500 for "burglary and fidelity insurance," in the office of clerk of the Municipal court. About half of this is to buy burglary, theft and holdup insurance on valuables in police stations and the city hall.

Some time ago a friend of the city administration complained because he was not given a job, according to the gossip. He was in the insurance business, so it was decided to give him the burglary insurance on the police stations in which Municipal courts are located. That $5,000 or so for police burglary insurance would add more than two more policemen.

Mayor Thompson and Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe have told the world that the river straightening job was completed. They let the water run into the new channel, held a banquet and a celebration last month. But there is an item of $75,000 in the "economy" budget "for engineering services and other incidental expense on work performed by the city of Chicago as a contractor in connection with the straightening of the Chicago river." Then follows a list of 19 jobs.

If the work has already been performed, as the budget says, somebody knows its cost. The controller set down $100,000 "on the work performed," and the commissioner of public works asked for $150,000 for this purpose. Possibly there is some fat in there which might be utilized for public safety. An appropriation is an authorization to spend money in the future. It is certain that these 19 employés would have yelled if they had not been paid last year.

In the interest of "economy" Ald. Clark and his 17 other council leaders on the finance committee have said that trees and shrubs and vines and bushes are more important to the well being of Chicagoans than 65 policemen. Accordingly, for parks and forestry the budget sets aside $156,916. Even the city controller says that $92,936 of that amount could well be saved this year.

Ruin for Aldermen.

There are councilmen who say that City Controller Schmidt's budget was "impossible." Ald. Clark told the council Monday that the Schmidt budget would be "the ruination of public service."

Schmidt almost did ruin the aldermen when he cut out their automobile allowance of $35,280. But the aldermen saved it by putting it back in the budget.

The complaint against the controller is that he trimmed the proposed expenditures too much. The controller allowed $309,080 for the election commission, while the aldermen set aside only $890,000. The controller did not cut too deep there. The controller allower the prosecuting attorney $76,200, the finance committee $70,640. The controller gave the city attorney $105,940, the aldermen $98,820. The controller gave the civil service commission $140,070, while the aldermen cut it to $129,120.

The controller assigned $34,940 to the Bridewell hospital, the committee reduced it to $32,000. The controller set aside $50,000 for the impersonal service of the city hall, but the committee reduced it to $30,000. The controller was willing to spend $202,000 for trucks in sewer cleaning service; the aldermen chopped that down to $130,000. Sundry otherlike comparison are available. All of which indicates that the controller did not cause as much "ruination" as he is charged with.

Zoning Board Is Example.

Controller Schmidt has shown how the aldermen can find funds with which to maintain the present numerical strength of both police and fire departments.

The controller recommended the abolition of the building zoning board. The city council followed his advice and repealed the ordinance creating the board, saving $29,000 a year, the equivalent of 12 patrolmen. But First Assistant Corporation Counsel Breen has advised the mayor that will not do. Of course the mayor knew, before he received this legal advice that it would never do. The chairman of the zoning board is Eva Holland Hamilton, who was very active in behalf of the mayor in his last mayorality campaign.

The department of public service, for which the aldermanic budget has set aside $134,460, could be dispensed with for a year without much loss. That is the equivalent of 55 patrolmen. But the head of that department is W. J. Balmer, Thompson ward committeeman; and incidentally some of the aldermen play with the administration much more than they appear to on the surface. City Controller Schmidt thought that Mr. Balmer could get along with $77,740 for 1930.

Admit Schmidt's Fairness.

Controller Schmidt's estimates on the needs of his own office were taken by the finance committee to within 4.25 per cent. Evidently they considered him fair on matters affecting his own interests. But his estimates on the appropriations for the city council and its committees were rejected. He recommended $608,652, while the finance committee suggests $841,185. There is a saving of $232,533 which could be devoted to the police and firemen.

The controller recommended $726,840 for the city law department. The finance committee boosted it to $819,000. There is $92,236 which could have been saved for public safety.

The controller set aside $10,377,274 for the department of public works, which the committee increased to $11,114,244. There is a saving of $736,970 which would prevent the discharge of several hundred policemen and firemen.

For the election commissioners and the Municipal court the controller suggested $2,968,169, which the committee raised to $3,009,000. More coppers can be saved with that $40,831 difference.

Aside from the departments of fire, police, and finance, Mr. Schmidt allowed, the remaining departments were given $7,690,553. This was shot upward to $10,263,781 by the council finance committee. That difference is $2,573,228, which alone is more than sufficient to prevent any cut in either the fire or police departments. In that sum are gobs of "fat." A couple of illustrations will indicate the lard which could be fried out.

The finance committee allowed $310,160 to the department of license, where some aldermen are rumored to have jobs. Schmidt says that $41,820 would be enough. There is $268,340 which could easily be saved.

The committee gave the city physician $65,000. This is a job which two mayors have tried to abolish, but failed to get the state law changed. Schmidt says that $9,300 would be enough for the city physician. There is a potential saving of $55,700.

WASHINGTON POLICE SURPRISE OLD TIME BAR IN NEW YEAR'S RAID

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—(AP)—One of a series of raids with which Washington police ushered in the new year brought them into an elaborately equipped barroom with brass rails, frosted mirrors and all the trimmings.

The place was found on the second floor of a garage. Police gained entrance by following a patron who was supplied with a key. Eight men were seated at tables and standing at the bar.

The raid netted eight gallons of assorted liquors. After arresting the bartender, Francis Moore, 28, the police permitted the customers to leave.

Another raiding squad chased an automobile which laid a smoke screen. They captured the machine and its driver after they had fired upon the automobile several times and it had overturned.

FREED CONVICT FOUND SLAIN IS NAMED AS KILLER

John Dillard, one of the 150 convicts released last year by the parole board after serving six years and four months of a ten years to life sentence, was found shot to death yesterday in an alley in the rear of 1444 North Kedzie avenue.

The Illinois Supreme court later decided that the parole board's action had been illegal and that the men should have served a minimum of ten years at least. After Dillard's body had been found, he was identified as one of the bandits who slew Detective Michael Langan in a saloon at 2745 North Ashland avenue Monday night.

"If they keep up this killing of policemen the city won't have to worry about firing several hundred policemen," was the comment of Commissioner Russell, bitterly. "Just let enough hoodlums out of jail and the city's budget will be nicely cut down."

Death Called a Mystery.

There was much mystery as to how Dillard met his death. A bullet had pierced his body, entering the right side and leaving at the left side. He was not shot by Detective Langan, because the policemen had not had time to draw his gun before he was lying on the floor with three bullets in his chest.

The accepted theory was that Dillard had been accidentally slain by one of his own companions as they were firing at the policeman. Witnesses said that one of the bandits seemed to be wounded as he fled.

Finding that Dillard was dead, the remaining two killers apparently disposed of the body by dumping it in the alley as soon as they could do so without being detected.

Posed as Policemen.

Dillard and his companions were said to have engineered several bold robberies, always posing as policemen. They announced they were officers when they entered the saloon Monday night and then, when Policeman Langan started to draw his revolver, they killed him and fled.

Dillard was declared by police to have been incorrigible since the age of 15. He was sentenced to the Bridewell for 90 days in November, 1920, for carrying a concealed weapon, when he was about 16 years old. A year later he served six months in the Bridewell for larceny.

Quickly Returns to Crime.

The 17 year old boy had been released from jail only a few days when he and a companion slugged Harold Buckley, 1854 West Garfield boulevard, and stole his automobile. The two were later arrested, found guilty and sentenced to serve ten years to life for robbery with a gun.

Dillard went to Pontiac reformatory in March, 1922, and was paroled July 2, 1928, to W. F. O'Connell, owner of a south side movie theater, who gave him a job as janitor.

MILLION WASTE TOLD AT SCHOOL BUDGET HEARING

Mrs. Hefferan Would Fire Needless Employes.

The elimination of several hundred school board civil service employés was urged yesterday by Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, a trustee, at the public hearing on the 1930 school budget. The cut would have more than $1,000,000 in the educational fund, out of which the 13,000 school teachers are paid. It was not adopted.

Since the budget was submitted to the trustees last November the Thompson controlled board has refused to consider any reductions in the educational fund of $54,271,742. The other tax spending bodies of the county have been carrying out retrenchment programs to cut down expenses next year to fit their revenues.

The educational fund, which is completing 1929 with a deficit of nearly $8,000,000, will again face a cash shortage of $7,000,000 in the fall of 1930, according to President Caldwell. But the trustees said that inasmuch as salaries represent 86 per cent of the total reductions are out of the question.

Extravagance Under Fire.

Mrs. Heffernan's attack on extravagance in the school maintenance department was backed by Trustee James Mullenbach. Mrs. Heffernan and Mr. Mullenbach are the only two Dever appointees on the board.

They declared that there are hundreds of unneeded temporary employés on the pay rolls, including assistant janitors, engineers, and school clerks.

As proof a survey recently completed by Prof. Nelson Henry of the University of Chicago was submitted. It showed that since 1924 the expenditures in the operation of the school plant had increased 72.8 per cent, whereas the instruction appropriations, mainly the salaries of teachers, had increased only 25.6 per cent.

In 1925 the teachers' salaries were 80.3 per cent of the total educational fund, while in 1929 they were 70 per cent. At the same time civil service salaries had increased in percentage from 10.7 per cent to 16 per cent.

Why should there be such a decided variation in the two salary classes was a mystery, Mrs. Heffernan said. The only explanation was offered by Trustee James A. Hemingway, chairman of the finance committee, who said that the increase in civil service expenditures was due to a change in the method of cleaning schools.

Budget Totals $87,000,000.

After two hours of wrangling the board submitted the budget to the finance committee. The total budget, including the educational and building funds, calls for an expenditure of more than $87,000,000. Trustee Hemingway announced that the committee will hold afternoon and evening sessions beginning tomorrow to speed its adoption. Speed is necessary, because more than $2,500,000 in 1930 tax anticipation warrants must be sold to meet pay rolls due the middle of January.

The proposal of Mrs. Hefferan was the only recommendation made to reduce the budget. Five hundred invitations had been sent to various civic organizations requesting advice in the preparation of the budget, but only eight groups were represented.

The failure of the Strawn citizens' committee to have a representative present provoked Mr. Hemingway to inquire whom the committee was trying to help.

"The committee mainly has been working to keep the banks from advancing any more money to the board and to keep the loop property owners from higher property valuations," said Hemingway. "All we have received is criticism. We have been given no information or suggestions of a helpful or constructive nature."

SUES HAYS AND OTHER FILM MEN FOR $1,300,000

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Suit for $1,300,000 damages against the Moving Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Will H. Hays and thirty-two members of the organization, will be filed Thursday in the federal court by Ivan Abramson and the Graphic Film corporation, it was learned today.

Mr. Abramson, an independent producer, charges violation of the Sherman anti-trust law by the producers' company since its organization in 1921.

Estimating his loss because of the activities of the producers, distributors and film boards of trade making up the association at $325,000, Abramson asks three times that amount, $975,000, as damages and an additional $325,000 as punitive damages.

Senator S. W. Brookhart of Iowa and former Congressman Nathan D. Perlman will be trial counsel in the suit.

Deaths Through Violence in County Show 24% Decline

Deaths through violence dropped 24 per cent in Cook county in 1929. This was disclosed yesterday by Coroner Bundesen in a comparison of the number of inquests held in 1929, a total of 4,243, as against 5,636 in 1928. The 1929 total is behind that of 1927 with 5,113 inquests.

Homicides fell from 527 in 1928 and 476 in 1927 to 412 in 1928. The murders of 1927 were numbered at 341 and rose to 372, a record, in 1928, to fade to 329 in 1929. Of the 1929 homicides 309 victims died from gun shot wounds, or 21 less than in 1928. In the city of Chicago the murder rate faded 19.5 per cent, the 1928 toll being 367, as compared with 280 in 1929.

Moonshine Deaths Decline.

Deaths from moonshine slumped like stock market quotations. The 1929 total is 121, as against 284 in 1928, and 340 in 1927. The number of suicides fell from 652 in 1928 to 552 in 1929, an even hundred. In 1927 the number of suicides was 595. Industrial accident fatalities slide from 339 in 1928 and 307 in 1927 to 245 in 1929.

The one jarring note of the general drop, which included auto fatalities, was the railroad accident toll. With 160 fatalities the 1929 toll exceeds the 150 of 1928 and the 145 of 1927.

The decrease in deaths from violence was accompanied by a similar decrease in acts of violence, according to Police Commissioner Russell. The year of 1929 saw only eighty-eight bombings as compared with 106 in 1928. Eleven policemen were shot during the year while thirteen met death in 1928. At the same time policemen killed thirty-three felons or seventeen less than in 1928.

Fewer Robberies Recorded.

Commissioner Russell declared that the year was featured by fewer holdups and robberies particularly in the jewelry trade, than in 1928. There were far less holdups of filling stations. The number of autos stolen in 1929 was 9,536 as against 10,191 in 1928. The department made a greater percentage of recoveries than in the former year.

Commissioner Russell said that reorganization of the department had increased its efficiency by relieving more men for patrol duty, although the department is undermanned and will be even smaller in 1930. The commissioner hails the installation of the radio communication system, soon to be put in operation, as the most important achievement toward detering crime in the history of the department.

Sales of Real Estate in 1929 Show Big Decline

Real estate sales decreased markedly in 1929. A report, released yesterday by Recorder Smith, lists only 84,019 real estate tranfers at a consideration of $63,840,632 in 1929 as against 102,399 transfers at $75,549,881 in 1928. The report also discloses a drop in trust deeds and mortgages. In 1929, 94,390 of such instruments were executed involving $757,666,388 as against 120,346 involving $1,039,432,235 in 1928.

HUNT HAWK NOSE GUNMAN AFTER HOLDUP OF BANK

Robber Locks 7 in Vault at Highwood.

Chicago police last night were helping the police of north shore towns in searching for a young, hawk nosed robber who earlier in the day had robbed the Highwood State bank, in the heart of the village of Highwood, near Highland Park, of more than $3,600. He locked two bank employés and five other persons in the vault. In his haste the holdup man overlooked $10,000 in cash in the vault.

Shortly before noon the robber entered the bank and approached J. E. Engquist, the cashier, who was standing inside his cage. The intruder pulled a sawed-off shotgun from beneath his long overcoat and shoved the muzzle of the weapon between the bars of the cage. Ernest Lenencini, a clerk, who was standing nearby, also came within range of the gun.

"Get into that vault, you fellows," ordered the robber.

Engquist and Lenencini obeyed. The gunman slammed shut the steel grating door and locked it. Then he scooped up all the money in sight and backed toward the front door.

At this moment two of the bank's customers, Mrs. Steve Cassal and Mrs. Dominick Ugolini, entered and ran into the bandit. The two women were accompanied by three small children, and the robber shoved the five of them into the vault with the cashier and the clerk. Then the gunman escaped in a new automobile which he had parked at the corner.

children huddled together in every conceivable attitude. Some still moved, others were motionless. Little legs and arms were intertwined in the most appalling tangle. In some cases it took two of us to extricate one child.

"When we first entered the theater, fumes were not at all bad and firemen managed to head off one rush of children and direct them toward a safe exit.

"Another fireman says he saw one little boy so badly crushed that his head was bent back until it was touching his shoulders. I also saw a child of 18 months lying in a pile of bodies. Some of the youngsters still alive seemed to have gone mad with terror."

Surgeon Grey, chief of the Paisley hospital, declared tonight that practically all deaths were due to asphyxiation and shock following the panic.

"Scarcely one death was caused by injury received in the fight to get to the exits," he said. "Nearly all the victims were asphyxiated when they were crowded under the bodies of other children."

The chief officer of the fire brigade reported that many gas brackets in the cinema were broken apparently by children trying to climb over each others and clinging onto fixtures in efforts to escape crushing.

FIND RUINS OF SODOM, BURNED IN DAWN OF HISTORY

JERUSALEM, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The ruins of what its discoverers believe to be the City of Sodom have been found approximately five miles north of the Dead sea by excavators under the direction of the Pontifical Biblical Institute of Jerusalem.

Sodom, with its twin community Gomorrah in the vale of Siddim, was destroyed by fire and brimstone because of the great wickedness of its inhabitants. The biblical account indicates that this catastrophe occurred in the time of Abraham and Lot, but pottery and other remains found by the biblical institute researchers show that the place was built early in the bronze age and was thus older than Jericho.

Store Manager Shoots Two Men in Maywood

Two men were wounded last night when H. B. Payne, 35 years old, manager of a chain grocery store in Elmhurst, paid a visit to Maywood, where he had formerly worked. Payne first shot Frank Satturo, 60 years old, a barber at 1702 West Harrison street, in the arm and later wounded John Kallmer, manager of a store at 1702 West Harrison street, in the hip. Payne was once the manager of the store where the second shooting occurred and his wife is still working there. They were estranged before he was transferred.

Mary Miles Minter Flees Gossip of Taylor Tragedy

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Embarrassed, her landlady thinks, by the reopening of the unsolved mystery of William Desmond Taylor's murder, Mary Miles Minter has disappeared from the Hollywood apartment where she resided for two years without giving a forwarding address. "I feel sure that she has gone to a distant city," her landlady said. "She would not have left but for the renewal of comment about her friendship for Mr. Taylor."

AMERICA CUTS DEBT BY BILLION DURING THE YEAR

Revenues Are Increased in Same Period.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—A billion dollar reduction in the public debt was accomplished during the year 1929. The total debt stood tonight at approximately 16 billion, 300 million, as compared with 17 billion, 310 million at the end of the calendar year 1928.

While there will be a temporary increase in the debt within the next few weeks as a result of soldiers' bonus investments amounting to 112 million dollars, it is expected that the debt will be cut by the end of the fiscal year 1930 below the present total. The debt reduction during the fiscal year is expected to amount to between 800 and 900 million dollars, the total at the end of the fiscal year 1929 having stood at 16 billion 931 million dollars.

Big Reduction Since June.

Of the billion dollar cut in the debt during the calendar year 1929 about 630 millions of it has been accomplished since June 30. Large income tax receipts due to stock market profits helped in an important degree to make this possible. The treasury was able to issue 843 millions less in short term securities during the last six months than it did in the corresponding period of last year.

After allowing for a shrinkage in income tax receipts during 1930 due to the stock market collapse and after allowing for the tax reduction recently approved by congress, it is expected that there will be a surplus of as much as 200 million dollars in the fiscal year 1930. This would make possible a debt reduction of about 825 millions during the fiscal year, as the reduction through the sinking fund and receipts from foreign nations are estimated to amount to about 625 millions.

Total Revenues Increase.

Total revenues received by the treasury during the calendar year 1929 amounted to approximately four billion 240 million dollars, or about 200 millions more than in the calendar year 1928. The total includes income and miscellaneous taxes, customs and other sources of revenue.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the revenue receipts was the tremendous total of income taxes of about two billion 505 million dollars, as compared with two billion 170 million in the calendar year 1928, an increase of about 335 millions. Miscellaneous taxes brought in about 630 millions, which represented an increase of $25,000,000 over 1928. Customs collections amounted to about 606 millions, an increase of about $40,000,000. Exact figures on the year's operations will be available within the next two or three days.

NEW ZEALAND TO KEEP FIRM GRIP ON BRITISH SAMOA

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Sir Joseph Ward, prime minister of New Zealand, said today that the government would continue a firm policy in the administration of those islands of Samoa which are under its mandate from the league of nations. He said the disorders in which one policeman and eight natives were killed would have no effect on that policy.

Sir Joseph said that if the resident administrator of Samoa noted any further aggressive acts by the Mau, or native league of home rulers, any reinforcements he required to preserve order would be placed at his disposal from New Zealand.

[A dispatch from Charles Dailey, The Tribune's chief correspondent in the far east, who is now in Pago Pago, America Samoa, reported yesterday that the natives of British Samoa dislike British rule and are urging New Zealand to give up its league of nations mandate over the islands. They desire to petition the United States to take over the rule of the colony and consolidate it with Eastern, or American, Samoa. Native leaders of British Samoa, after a visit to the American possessions recently, praised the American policy and methods for the government of these islands in the South Pacific.]

Hindenburg Sues Fascist Editor for Defamation

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—(AP)—President Von Hindenberg has entered suit for defamation against the editor of the Fascist periodical, Angriff, conducted by Paul Goebbels, a member of the reichstag. On Dec. 29 this periodical published an article captioned, "Is Hindenberg Still Alive?" alleging that the president had not voted against the Young plan because "he always does what his Jewish and Marxist advisers tell him to do."

MELLON GREETS NEW YEAR WITH BUSINESS CHEER

Lamont Adds His Note of Confidence.

dend payments of industrial and public utility corporations were about 20 per cent greater than in 1928.

Substantial Progress Proved.

"The only important branch of business showing less activity in 1929 than the year before was construction—the decrease in new contracts being very largely confined to residential building.

"The solid economic progress that I have indicated was not in any sense the result of a 'boom.' Its very substantial character helped greatly to alleviate the effects of the marked break in prices of stock exchange securities during October and November.

"The most important single indicator of economic activity is the index of the output of the manufacturing industries. This showed an increase of approximately 20 per cent over 1923—a very active year.

"Automobile production last year reached about 5,500,000 units, by far the largest output ever attained.

"While there was some advance in the general level of wholesale prices in 1928 over 1927, the year 1929 showed a slight recession.

"The new construction contracts awarded fell off considerably. But the backlog of large contracts placed during 1928 and in the early months of 1929 made possible an actual volume of construction nearly as large as that reported for 1928.

Money Reasonably Plentiful.

"Except possibly for certain branches of the construction industry, legitimate business found funds plentiful and reasonably cheap, despite the sharp rise of interest rates before the stock market crash. The year end finds most of the key industries of the country with stronger capital structures and in better cash-and-inventory positions than at any time in our history.

"Following the security liquidation in October and November, interest rates declined to the lowest levels in eighteen months.

"Broadly speakin, the business history of 1929 recorded the continuation of a movement which has been substantially unbroken for an exceptionally long period."

Foreign Trade Records Surpassed.

Director Cooper of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce said that exports and imports in 1929, when adjustment is made for changes in the buying power of money, decidedly surpass any totals attained even during the war and the immediate post-war boom.

"This gratifying result was not brought about by any temporary causes," said Mr. Cooper. "It marks the continuance of a movement practically unbroken since 1921 and 1922."

GOVERNOR LOOKS UPON 1930 WITH OPTIMISTIC EYE

Hopeful Seaway Will Be Pushed.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Taking stock, Gov. Emmerson today issued an optimistic statement concerning the outlook for 1930. He reviews with satisfaction the completion during 1929 of roads which have brought the total of hard surface roads to 6,876 miles, and adds:

"The volume of road construction in 1930 is dependent on the gasoline tax law which, if held valid, will render available for construction during 1930, approximately $25,000,000. Detailed surveys have been made and all plans completed on 422 miles of unfinished roads and 1,128 additional miles have either been surveyed or will be in a short time.

Limited by Constitution.

"We are hopeful that during 1930 the way will be definitely opened for the completion of the Illinois waterway, constitutional limitations preventing the appropriation of state funds for the building of canals have barred the state from providing the necessary funds for the completion of this work, upon which approximately $20,000,000 has been expended or contracted for.

"President Hoover and Secretary of War Hurley have indicated their great interest in the completion of this project and there is every reason to believe that federal assistance will be forthcoming during the year to assure the necessary funds to finish the work.

"The biggest building program in the history of the state's welfare institutions is now under way and will be extended during the year so that proper living quarters may be made for all the state's wards."

For Park Improvements.

The governor refers to plans for other buildings, including the addition to the Centennial building, the reconstruction of the Lincoln monument and park improvements. He tells of what has been done toward working out a new revenue system and of plans for improving traffic conditions.

"The last year," the governor said, "has been one of progress in all lines of individual and community endeavor and officials in charge of the state government enter the new year determined to do everything possible to promote the best interests of the people of the state."

Sleuth Freed; Aid Whom Woman Accused Is Fined

Louis E. Dannenberg, a private detective, and Kennth Wilson, one of Dannenberg's agents, were arraigned before Judge Max Luster in Town Hall court yesterday, charged with assault and impersonating police officers by Mrs. Jean Irving, 26 year old divorcee of 5453 Wayne avenue. She said the two tried to arrest her and that Wilson struck her, at behest of Mrs. Edna Lowry, who is suing Mrs. Irving for alienation of affections. Dannenberg was dismissed but his agent was fined $50 and costs.

● Imported Printed Dress Linens Special 58¢ Yard

An unusual price for these smart linens which bid fair to achieve a new peak of smartness this season. Fashion forecasts prophesy their importance for costumes for informal daytime wear—frocks, ensembles, lounging and beach pajamas.

These come in a wide variety of colorful patterns and are very effective either alone or combined with plain colors. All 36 in. wide.

Second Floor, North, State.

PLAYTIME SOUTH

The minds of fashion have set to work to specify certain clothes for certain games, and they have smartly succeeded not only in finding appropriate apparel, but they have given a new fascination to each event that takes place in the south.

Just now we emphasize the fashions for the milder sort of play in daytime. And even in this one phase, fashion says "change to suit the hour and the occasion."

Sports Frock, $50

Early afternoon, when one sips an icy lemonade, there's the "Dressed-Up" sports frock. The sketch at extreme right is a three-piece frock with tuck-in blouse. Monogrammed in contrasting color on angel pink, lettuce green, and saffron. The jacket is beautifully tailored. $50.

After Chanel, $18.50

Hand-Blocked Prints, $50

Fourth Floor, South, State.

SHOES

Shoes are simple but exacting in detail to suit the hour and occasion of the day. Shown here are pumps and strap slippers of linen with oxide kid trimming. They may be dyed to match the sports frock. Low priced because they are included in the Semi-Annual Sale. $12 the pair. Dyeing is $1.

Third Floor, South, State.

Pique Frock, Below, $35

When one is on the beach as a spectator, the cotton pique frock is smart to wear. White is its favored color to focus attention on the pastel shaded jacket that accompanies it. This pique frock with long sleeves shows expert tailoring. The sleeveless jacket in blue, flesh, peach, and gold, has little bits of hand embroidery. Right. $35.

Knitted Frock, Below, $27.50

The knitted frock in a loose weave is fascinating and cuts a definite figure on the side lines. One-piece with silk crepe scarf collar. Black and white, tan and brown, green and white, maize and orange are blended in its weave. Sizes 14 to 38. Sketched at the left. $27.50.

Fourth Floor, East.

This Palm Beach Season Has Inspired the Entire Millinery Section

The brimmed hats, and there are many, may revert to other years for their inspiration, but this new scoop brim has a delightful modern aspect. Brimless hats have long, snug crowns with clever manipulation. Every section is resplendent—from the Ready-to-Wear with hats priced as low as $5, to the French Shop with hats from $18.50 to $35.

THE OPTIMISM OF THE SCIENTIST.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan, holder of the Nobel prize and one of the leading living scientists, expressed some opinions before the American Association for the Advancement of Science which deserve some special consideration not only because of the eminence of the speaker but because of their timeliness. There is a good deal of superficial pessimism abroad in the world today and it is not constructive. There is nothing more helpful to man or nation in the unending struggle with circumstance than a well considered optimism, and it is much needed in an age that has suffered some violent disillusion and lost some precious faiths.

Dr. Millikan is a philosopher as well as a specialist in his own field of physics, and his remarks on certain fallacies regarding modern life and especially the rôle of science in human progress seem to us as sound as they are heartening. We are familiar, for example, with the theory that physical science and its applications have far outstripped our fitness to make good use of our knowledge and that in fact science is becoming a Frankenstein's monster which soon will destroy civilization. One form of this fallacy is that science gives new facilities for destruction in war. We think these fears are greatly exaggerated, for there is nothing an examination of military history shows more persistently and clearly than that as man's invention of destructive methods has proceeded it has been paralleled by the invention of methods of defense. Dr. Millikan treats the subject more broadly, pointing out that while science has loaned to war its resources it has created new preoccupations, interests, and values for mankind which increasingly weight the scale of man's purpose against war. Primitive man found in war one of his few interests and resources. War in primitive life is virtually perpetual, but as man has advanced, has acquired more command over nature, including his own nature, war has decreased in importance to him. This accelerated human progress, this elevating and enriching of the life of men and nations, has been led by science.

"I think," says Dr. Millikan, "a survey will show conclusively that every scientific advance finds ten times as many new, peaceful, constructive uses as destructive ones." We think this an underestimate. "In my judgment," he proceeds, "war is now in process of being abolished chiefly by the relentless advance of science, its most powerful enemy. It has existed in spite of religion, philosophy, the golden rule—simply because it has had survival value"—that is, we would add, because in the world as it is there were worse alternatives than war. And Dr. Millikan predicts that war "will disappear like the dinosaur when the conditions that have given it survival value have disappeared, and those conditions are rapidly disappearing primarily because of changes in the world situation being brought about by modern science."

Dr. Millikan attacked another fallacy, namely, that modern applied science has "deadened and routinized labor." This is a pet notion invented and disseminated chiefly by literary men. Dr. Millikan invites us to a more realistic view of the question, and points out that "even the most routinized laborer has far shorter hours than the dumb agricultural drudge who hoed potatoes for twelve hours a day through all the history of the world before the machine age appeared." Indeed, we need not go to the past to explode this sentimental error. A comparison of labor in the United States, even the most routinized and mechanical, with the labor in China which has not yet reached the machine age is relevant.

No doubt the race of man has much of bitter conflict before it, and if one were to look as some do only or chiefly upon the evidences of human folly and passion in their work of obstruction and destruction, there are quite enough to darken hope and tempt despair. But if we broaden the survey we shall see forces of the human mind and spirit coping successfully with problems which have defeated and oppressed mankind for ages, and if our comparisons are true in perspective we shall see mankind moving forward and upward still. Each generation is inclined to think its catastrophe final and its retreats permanent while their shadow is still over us. But the shadow passes and men go forward again in unconquerable and conquering hope.

PREPARING FOR THE APRIL PRIMARY.

The Legislative Voters' league has memorialized the organization leaders of the Democratic party and of the factions of the Republican party in Cook county to produce slates of strong candidates for the state legislature in the April primary. The communication has been sent to the right men. It is well to impress the voters with the responsibility of the party committees.

Cook county's representatives in Springfield are, with exceptions, incompetent and faithless to their constituents. Chicago and Cook county cannot afford this extravagance. We are grossly underrepresented in the legislature by the defiance of the downstate bloc for the constitutional provision for periodical redistricting. In addition we are misrepresented, a circumstance which not only weakens what strength we nominally possess but threatens our chances of obtaining justice by providing the nullificationists with an object lesson. A popular downstate argument against obedience to the constitution is to point to the representatives of Chicago as examples of what we would send to Springfield if we had more seats in the assembly.

As the Legislative Voters' league understands perfectly, the party organizations in Cook county can improve the character of Cook county's legislators. Few candidates may aspire to nomination without the indorsement of their party committee. Accordingly a slate of weak candidates reflects on the party organization, while the committee may take the credit for a strong list. At this time, when the voters are watching eagerly for an indication of true leadership on the part of some faction of either party, ambitious politicians should compete to bring out the best candidates for the assembly.

SUGGESTED TO CERTAIN AMERICANS.

In February, 1660, Gen. Monk, having come down from Scotland to London with his army, assumed control of a government which was disappearing in a conflict of sectarians. It had been a question if the revolution were not destined to dismember the British territorial combination which was to be, if it were not then, the British empire. Cromwell had been equal to the task of holding it together, but at his death the revolutionary elements with their religious diversities were incapable of reconciliation and a government apparently could not be brought out of their antagonisms.

Monk is esteemed by historians as a patriotic man. He was able and, for his times, he was moderate and not overly self-seeking. The army he commanded in the occupation of Scotland was the most effective unit of the revolutionary forces. Monk in London called a parliament to be freely elected to decide upon the future of Great Britain. It was understood that this parliament so organized probably would recall the Stuarts. Monk could have dictated a different policy, but he was reconciled to the fact that as things had gone with the revolution the British must revert to the principles of hereditary monarchy or go into a species of anarchy. They did not show evidence of being ready for republicanism. There were stout republicans, but the revolutionary groups, factions, and sectaries were too violent and too narrow.

The parliament summoned by Monk met. Charles II. issued the declaration of Breda April 14, endeavoring to give satisfactory pledges for his conduct if he were called back to the throne, and May 8 he was proclaimed king. The one adventure of the British people in a form of government not based upon the monarchical principle had ended in failure. Most of the republicans were forced to the conclusion that without a crown the people could not maintain a government. The reasons for the failure were apparent, but so also was the failure. Privilege, caste, nobility, religious intolerance, personal ambitions, tory principles, traditions, etc., combined to make Great Britain dependent upon the institution of royalty for the continuance of a parliamentary form of government. The British could struggle to keep a king within bounds, but they could not do without him, and they have not tried it since. Later they threw James II. out, but they then followed the line of the Stuarts into the Netherlands and brought in William and Mary, taking William because his wife was a descendant of Henry VII.

Gen. Monk is accepted by historians as a patriotic Englishman who saved his country from ruin, but the curiosity of it is that some indefinite reproach attaches to his name. He is no one the British remember to honor. There is almost a taint of betrayal indicated by his career. Because he was the instrument by which a republican hope was renounced as futile he seems to bear the responsibility of faithlessness to a higher principle. It is unjust, but the name of Monk does not stand for patriotic service. He returned the people as subjects to a family which had abused its trust and which was to continue in that conduct.

The Stuarts made unruly or scandalous kings for the British people, and Monk has been made to carry the blame for their return. Repute is inflexible in its condemnation of men who have even seemed to do their country an injury. When the betrayal is flagrant, as in the case of Arnold, the ignominy is complete and permanent. It is so much the crime of crimes that the reproach it brings can, as in the case of Monk, be unjust. His act may have been forced, but it was his act which destroyed the greater ambitions of the English revolution against the crown. It brought back the kings, and even the people who since then have accepted monarchy without protest do not greatly honor the able man who brought the kings back.

Editorial of the Day

HERE IS REAL NEWS.
[Kansas City, Mo., Star.]

We submit, as the most startling news item of the week, the following paragraph from E. W. Howe's Monthly Devoted to Indignation and Information:

> A reader of this publication lately ordered it sent to President Hoover, every member of his cabinet, and every member of congress. . . . I sent his money back; I do not wish to further burden the useless mail of the gentlemen mentioned.

A CONSOLING THOUGHT.

It was necessary for taxation purposes to decide which side of the Canadian and United States border a farm, which an old lady had just purchased, actually lay. Surveyors finally announced that the farm was just on the American side of the border. The old lady smiled with relief. "I'm so glad to know that," she said. "I've heard that winters in Canada are terribly severe."—Philadelphia Star.

WHEN CHARLIE TOOK A DIG AT DOUG.

Some of the gang had foregathered and were talking about "the good old days," and in the course of the chat Charlie Chaplin remarked to Doug Fairbanks:

"Some one told me that when you were on the speaking stage you took a crack at Shakespearean rôles and that the crowd hooted you."

"That's a lie!" Doug defended himself. "There was no crowd."—Border Cities Star.

OPEN FIREPLACES.

THERE is an abiding opinion that heating by an open fire is healthful, more so than other heating methods. When the advocates of this method are pressed for their arguments they commonly reply that an open fireplace ventilates—removes the impurities from the air. Against this the opponents of the method file a list of arguments. The method is wasteful.

Most of the fuel values of the coal, gas or wood escape up the chimney. It is dirty. Dust, composed largely of ashes and smoke, settles on the carpets, curtains and beds. It is troublesome making fires, and cleaning out ashes is an unpleasant job and help will not tolerate it. It is drafty heating. There are always currents of cold air from the windows and doors to the fireplace. It causes cold floors. The cold currents to the open fire travel along the floor.

It is uncomfortable heat, as it overheats one side of the body and chills the other. It is inefficient heat. In a room heated that way the space next to the walls is too cold for desks and typewriters; that next to the fire is too hot. It causes poor ventilation. The fresh air shortcuts from the window to the fire and leaves the general air supply uncleaned.

Then the advocate for the fireplace puts in some more evidence. He says the heat from such a fireplace is radiant heat. That radiant heat is superior to convection and conduction heat in that it contains ultra-violet and infrared waves as well as heat waves.

He is reminded that infra-red makes up a part of the heat waves and probably both convection and conduction heat contain them. He then makes his stand on ultra-violet and some qualities of light not yet discovered. He reminds us that a few years ago we knew nothing about ultra-violet, X-rays, or the wave lengths used by the radio. The probability is that a quarter of a century from now we will look back with contempt on our present knowledge of heat and light. And there the question must rest. He cannot prove that open fireplace heat has these mysterious, unknown qualities. Neither can his opponents disprove the contention.

GAS AND PERNICIOUS ANEMIA.

T. R. writes: I am convinced that there is something to the theory that burning gas jets in a closed room will cause blood poison. The writer, a man 60 years old, was in the habit of cooking his own breakfast, then shutting the kitchen door and lighting four gas burners, then reading for thirty minutes. He had been doing this for three weeks when he was suddenly taken down with a desperate case of pernicious anemia. The blood count was very bad, the cheeks sunken in and three doctors thought he would not live a week. However, after treatment, he was cured.

There must be something to the theory advanced that the burning gas uses up all the oxygen in the room and that it affects the blood stream in some unknown way.

REPLY.

Leaking carbon monoxide and unburned gas can cause chronic poisoning as well as the acute kind. However, it is not due to deficient oxygen in the air.

If you had pernicious anemia some other cause was in operation.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE DIET.

P. G. writes:

1. What is a good diet for a person with high blood pressure?
2. Is 218 very high?
3. Where is the best climate to get relief?

REPLY.

1. Dieting for high blood pressure is not of major value unless one is obese. The obese should diet to reduce. Otherwise, live largely on sour milk, vegetables and fruit. Eat meat in moderation. Do not tolerate constipation.
2. Yes, especially if the subject has any kidney, heart or eye trouble, or is given to worry or anger.
3. Climate is of minor importance in high blood pressure. Perhaps it is well to live in a soft, lazy climate and at a low altitude. How are your kidneys, heart and eyes? Do you worry?

UNNECESSARY SHOWERS.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—I would like to call your attention to a building in the 5000 block Blackstone avenue where porches without gutters extend over the sidewalk. Whenever it rains this is very annoying to people passing beneath. E. P.

You are advised that an inspector has been assigned to make a thorough investigation, and if any violation is observed over which we have jurisdiction proper action will be taken to effect an abatement.

NEW LEASES—OLD LAWS.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In accordance with the new leasing system that has been inaugurated in Chicago, which permits the writing of leases to expire any month desired by tenants, my lease was written to expire June 1st, 1930. Does the sixty-day notice to the landlord apply in this new kind of leasing? My lease does not specify what notice is required. Will you please inform me as to the status of such a lease in regard to notice in case I want to move at the time my lease expires? J. L. Y.

The law as to these leases is the same as with respect to any others. Section 13 of the landlord and tenant act provides "when the tenancy is for a certain period and the term expires by the terms of the lease the tenant is then bound to surrender possession and no notice to quit or demand of possession is necessary."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MINOR SIGNS CONTRACT!

Chicago, Dec. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My son at the age of 17 enrolled in a correspondence school without my knowledge. After taking the course four or five months he gave it up and is unable to meet his monthly payments. The school insists he must pay. 2. Can I be held responsible? W. T.

His minority is a defense to liability on the contract. 2. Not unless you sign.

CONFESSION.

The year has ended as the year began:
There are the gods and the devils,
And in my soul are both doubt and faith;
My purse is empty; my heart is full;
I am rich in rare old friendships—
Friendships aged in the welter of the world . . .
Tonight, there is that eternal paradox
Of sound and of silence;—
Some are near and some are far—very far:—
They troop with the silver stars!
I repent of some thing, but I do not regret
The deep draught of wine taken,
Nor stolen glances at deathless beauty;
And I remember tonight with great joy
My defense of one overtaken in a fault,
And a lie I told to save a house from sorrow . . .
But how I repent tonight of seeking
The company of the proud and the smug;
Of striving with a fool in his folly
While the wise waited at my door;
And of playing the hypocrite
That I might win the favor of hypocrites!
But deeper than all sorrow is my failure
To bind up a dog's gashed foot,
To put a baby bird back in the nest,
And to smile when a child smiled at me—
Oh, how I repent!

ABORIGINE.

January 1, 1930.

WE CAN make no report as yet on the cruise of the Water Wagon which was scheduled to leave last night on the stroke of 12. We had intended going ourselves, but at the last moment decided to call up and cancel our reservation. However, we hope many were aboard the Water Wagon and that they are having a most prosperous and happy voyage. We trust tomorrow to have a detailed story of the trip from our own correspondent.

OUR YEARLY REVIEW OF THE POETRY MARKET.

In presenting our annual review we wish to say that the outlook for poetry during the New Year is most encouraging. There is every prospect of a greater supply of poetry, grade A1, fresh fancy, hand-picked, and choice western, than ever before. The supply of poetry, both on the hoof and from the poetry packing plants, is very large for this time of year. Poetry, in common with other stocks, suffered during the late unpleasantness, declining from 165 to 33¾. A sharp bull movement, however, has set in, and spring poetry of the better grades sold on the market yesterday at 68 7-9, with love poems at 43⅝ and moonlight poems at 38. It can be truthfully said that while poetry seemed to show a great loss in 1929, much of it was paper. Reports from Indiana and Iowa, the great poetry belt of the country, received yesterday show that almost all poets are returning to work, and poem plants which have been shut down for weeks expect to be running full time before May. Poetry for early spring delivery is quoted at 1¾@ higher, June 2 1-3@ higher, cold storage 1 4-5@ higher. This is all very encouraging and bears out our prediction that 1930 will see a great boom in the poetry market.

Happy New Year!

ANYHOW, this isn't like Christmas; nobody has to look in his stocking to see if he got any presents. But a lot of birds we know, naming no names, had better look right quick in the newspaper as soon as he's able to see and try to find out whether he was arrested last night and what it was for. We do hope it wasn't murder—but look and see.

OH, IT'S TOMMY, TOMMY ATKINS!

Our Sealyham terrier who has taken Vangie's old job of eating all contributions to the Line which do not stick to the ceiling wishes to announce to one and all that he begins the New Year with a changed name. His name from now henceforth, to one and all, will be Mr. Thomas Atkins. Tylwyth Teg, his former nom de plume, seemed to be too difficult for his public. Even Teg did not get over, but was changed to Peg, Tag, Jag, and even to Mag. The Mag was too much, and when certain people (useless to name them, they could not understand) persisted in saying, "Here, Mag, pretty girlie, come here, Mag," it was much too much. With tears in his eyes the little Sealyham begged that his name be changed to Tommy Atkins. It was easy to do, because Tylwyth Teg was not his real name anyhow. His official name, written down in the London Kennel club, is Samphire Standpat, Samphire being the name of his ancestral home at Battle, Sussex county, England, and the Standpat added to his family name to distinguish him from all the other little Samphires that go out into the wide world to seek their fortune. But to his friends Samphire Standpat will in the future be known as Mr. Thomas Atkins, or Tommy for short. To those not contributors of the Line he will be addressed more formally as Mr. Atkins. (Hey, Tommy! stop eating that poem; it's free verse, and we've told you a thousand times you mustn't eat free verse; it will make you sick! Here, Tommy, Tommy, Tommy! come here, Tommy; that's a good little soldier!)

To Every One!

HOW DULL it must have been last night with no wassail bowl or merry flagon of wine with which to welcome in the glad New Year. It is sad and depressing to violate the sacred traditions of a thousand years and welcome the New Year in ice cold buttermilk or malted milk. Yet, as the country is under prohibition and has been for ten years, of course that is all the unhappy revelers had to drink last night. So we remained in our home, and as the clock struck midnight we welcomed the New Year with a huge tankard of sassafras tea. (Lykell, lykell, lykell!)

LESSON FOR MY HEART.

On the roofs of the city
The snow
Lies sodden, passive, worn and soiled.
Far off in the forests
(Mark this well, my heart!),
The branches
Of the great stiff pines break
With its weight;
But from the supple willow tree
It slides gently off. . . .

PIERROT.

THE ANNUAL PASS

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 1, 1865.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 1, 1900.

NEW YORK.—Members of the various Masonic lodges in the city commemorated the 100th anniversary of the death of George Washington by religious services in the historic churches of the metropolis, most notably in St. Paul's chapel of Trinity parish.

CHICAGO.—Coal wagon drivers of Chicago decided to strike at noon today unless their demands are granted, and this the boss teamsters say will not be done. The union claims to have 725 members in its organization and to be able to enforce its demands. The wages demanded are $2.25 a day for drivers of two horse teams, $2.50 a day for drivers of three horse teams, and 35 cents an hour for time over ten hours a day.

CHICAGO. — Henry Foreman, 82 years old, died at his residence, 3418 Vernon avenue, after an illness of several months. He was one of the first of the early merchants of Chicago, and although he retired from active in business in 1867 he had been connected, through his sons, with the Foreman Shoe company, the Foreman Bros. Banking company, and Mandel Brothers. With his brothers, Gerhard, Benjamin and Joseph, he started the first wholesale clothing house in this city.

NEW YORK. — Charles Fichman, the actor, and Miss Jane Grey were married in St. George's church in Stuyvesant square by the Rev. Dr. W. S. Rainsford. The ushers were the earl of Yarmouth, Walter Price, Harold Heaton, White Whittlesey, Robert Reid, and Francis J. Carlyle.

CHICAGO.—Three priests of the Episcopal church were ordained in St. James' church, Cass and Huron streets, by Bishop McLaren. They were Harold E. Addison, Frank E. Brandt and Webster Hawkes.

NEW YORK.—Charles [Kid] McCoy and Peter Maher will meet at the Coney Island Sporting club this afternoon in a twenty-five round battle, the first great sporting event of 1900. The betting is 100 to 80 on Maher. It is expected 10,000 persons will see the fight.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 1, 1920.

CHICAGO.—[By Percy Hammond.]—The services of the night, marking Chicago's greeting to 1920, were much as usual. That part of the ceremonial which is performed in the various spas was true to the routine, save that the celebrants provided and poured their own libations. Receptacles containing the cheery cordials ranged from the spacious thermos to the humble half pint, and no male hip was too proud to bear a cannikin of the heating waters. Each café was a wet cafeteria, the guests toting their own portions of the wild cow's milk. What is known as hard liquor was the most popular brew. Loop cafés were crowded.

NEW YORK.—For New York the entry of the year that is now on its way has never been excelled in brilliance and spontaneous celebration. Finery was everywhere, as thousands took their places around tables in the glistening restaurants of the Waldorf Astoria, Ritz Carlton, Astor, Plaza and Vanderbilt hotels. From 8 o'clock in the evening until the sun rose there was life and gladness and revelry. And how they sang as the clock struck 12 to the popping of corks and shouts of "Good-by forever!" All restaurants did a large business in "corkage."

WASHINGTON.—"Old year 1919," who built the great American water wagon, rode to his doom in Washington tonight in a firewater chariot, amid scenes of sparkling, splashing gayety. Although it was in Washington that the old year issued his war time and all time prohibition decrees, he was too far gone tonight to enforce them, for hip parties were fashionable, numerous, and unrestrained.

INDIANAPOLIS.—Alleging nonsupport, Mrs. Adelaide F. Timmons, daughter of the late Charles Warren Fairbanks, former Vice President, filed a petition for divorce from Capt. John W. Timmons of the Third naval district, Brooklyn.

REWARDING THE BIRDS.

River Forest, Ill., Dec. 26.—The winter residents and visitors among our birds are facing terrible hardships, if not actual starvation, because of the thick blanket of snow that effectively covers up their food supply.

Most of our winter birds are seed eaters. They destroy unbelievable quantities of weed seeds, thus conferring a great benefit on us. It is estimated that weeds work harm to our cultivated land to the extent of one dollar per acre a year.

The tree sparrow, a winter resident in our latitude from the Hudson bay region, has, by careful computation based on innumerable stomach and crop contents, been found to do away with 875 tons of weed seed in the state of Iowa alone. Its season there lasts from October to April.

Other weed seed destroyers among our winter residents are the junco and the redpoll. Let us, therefore, pay back a part of the debt of gratitude we owe them at this time of their need and put up feeding shelves and other feeding stations. A window shelf on which is daily placed food in the form of groundup nuts, canary seed, crumbs, and the like may not only be the means of saving the life of many of these useful and lovable denizens of our outdoor but, at the same time, provide great enjoyment to children and grownups, who may watch their antics from inside the window.

Especially should this be done in the case of such extremely useful but rapidly disappearing species as the bobwhite, or quail. The recently introduced Hungarian or red partridge may also be included, although I am against the introduction of foreign at the expense of our native species. For that is what it amounts to. That other big, overgrown foreigner, the pheasant, can take care of himself. People having quail in or near their gardens, orchards, and fields ought to get busy during this Christmastide to provide feeding places under corn shocks or in other places. Boy Scouts and Isaak Walton leaguers and other public spirited citizens ought to help in this work.

In addition to the feeding shelves, pieces of suet fastened on trees may serve to attract to one's home or garden such highly colored species as the cardinal and the blue jay. Though the last is a rascal of the deepest dye, yet his bright colors and droll behavior are a distinct addition to any house or garden. Nuthatches, chickadees, and woodpeckers will also crowd around.

C. W. G. EIFRIG,
President Illinois Audubon society.

CHEERING FOR THE COAST GUARD.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 29.—Every damn Yank killed in New England or New York is worth ten thousand votes in the south. OLD CONFEDERATE.

DEFINING A MACHINE GUN.

East Chicago, Ind., Dec. 30.—A writer in Sunday's TRIBUNE informs us that only guns mounted on tripods are machine guns; all others are automatic rifles.

Accordingly, all rapid fire weapons mounted on or synchronized and built into airplanes in war time, were automatic rifles; and a blunderbuss mounted on a camera tripod becomes a machine gun.

Admittedly, THE TRIBUNE, and other newspapers used the wrong nomenclature in describing weapons found at St. Joseph, Mich. But a machine gun has always been regarded as a weapon equipped with a belt or drum type of magazine holding many rounds of ammunition, and in both cases giving the gun an awkward appearance, while an automatic rifle is symmetrical in appearance, as its magazine holds only a few rounds and is contained within the trim lines of the weapon. A sub-machine gun is a machine gun with a miniature drum or belt, and lightened in other ways, permitting its use from the shoulder.

JOE KIRWA.

RADIO ADVERTISING.

Macomb, Ill., Dec. 30.—Remember the old time medicine show? We all waited patiently for the free show. And because it was free, it was the general opinion that we had no right to kick no matter how rotten the show. The black face comedian sang a song, cracked a few jokes and then the doctor informed us that in just a few minutes more better and funnier songs and music were in store. He then proceeded to tell us the merits of Dr. Wise's sure-shot corn cure. After an hour of corn cure we had another song with promise of more. Next we were enlightened on the lack of judgment of any who failed to buy a bottle of the cure-all of which a limited number of bottles were being put on sale for the last time. If there had been a large number of shows in town at the same time we might have rushed from show to show in an attempt to see the acts. But the chances are we would have got to each show in time for the corn cure program.

Today we have the radio programs which have degenerated into the old medicine show complex. If you have the time to rush to the radio and turn off the baked bean, cigaret, home heater, by courtesy of this and that, you might hear a little something. But the turn of the dial only tunes in on another "by the courtesy" stunt.

At the present rate you will soon attend a courtesy opera. After the star sings her great song a voice will inform you that you are privileged to hear madam through the kindness of the city educational corporation, and that the fine form and voice of the singer is due to the fact that she has smoked the smokewell cigaret since childhood.

Isn't the radio public entitled to something better than the cheap messy, stuff we get? As I write an announcer is directing me to get a pencil and paper to be ready to take down some information after the orchestra plays "Am I Blue?" Free, Yes. But who wants such stuff because it is free. What is the effect when a beautiful piece of music, well rendered, is sandwiched with the sardine, limburger cheese advertising stuff that comes between the parts of the program? For my part I would rather pay a radio tax and have programs free from junk. What say? SHEVY F.

Frederick & Nelson Store

WE DESIRE TO REPORT PROGRESS

The year 1929 marked the greatest advances our corporation has yet accomplished.

On June 14, 1929, we purchased the business of Frederick & Nelson, Seattle, one of the finest department stores on the Pacific coast.

On October 19, 1929, we completed and opened our West Suburban Store at Lake Street and Harlem Avenue, Oak Park, in order to serve better the people of the great west suburban district of Chicago.

On November 23, 1929, we completed and opened our new Evanston Store at Church Street and Sherman Avenue.

These suburban stores have taken rank among the most beautiful and most completely equipped department stores in the country.

The Davis Company, a subsidiary, reports its best year, having opened 21,460 new charge accounts —a noteworthy record.

The retail stores, located in various cities, owned and operated by Marshall Field & Company, report a satisfactory year's business.

Our manufacturing department, represented by twenty-five mills and numerous factories producing over sixty important lines of quality merchandise, reports substantial progress, with greatly increased production in some lines.

Our main retail store remodeling program saw the completion of several important sections.

Our foreign organization has been extended and improved.

The New York wholesale store reports important extensions of its importing, manufacturing, converting and selling activities.

In the Spring of 1930, our wholesale organization and the sales headquarters of our mills and factories will move to new quarters in the Merchandise Mart. In the mammoth building, which is to be one of the world's greatest centers of merchandise distribution, will be located sales displays of more than one thousand leading manufacturers and wholesale distributors of merchandise.

Our major plans for further development proceed to completion.

REGULIN LIGGETT BLDG. NEW YORK

Wright Is Indicated to Be North Side Chief.

BY PARKE BROWN.

After devoting weeks to looking up the many men whose names were presented to him, Gov. Emmerson yesterday appointed entirely new boards for the Lincoln park and the west park systems.

He made public the two lists of seven names each at Springfield late in the afternoon after he had waited to receive the last of the wired acceptances. With him a large part of the day, it was said, was Speaker David E. Shanahan, one of his closest advisers, whose views probably had something to do with the final makeup of the two commissions.

As had been predicted, the governor named Warren Wright as his choice for the presidency of the north side body and W. R. James as his selection to head the west side commission. They probably will be elected as soon as the new appointee's commissions arrive and the first board meetings are held.

The list of the appointments follows:

LINCOLN PARK.

Warren Wright, 209 Lake Shore drive.
Oscar Reum, 429 Roslyn place.
Sheldon Clark, 1367 North State street.
Edwin L. Read, 5435 Beacon street.
George W. Blomgren, 1520 Belle Plaine avenue.
Thomas W. Gilmore, 6139 Winthrop avenue.
George W. Dixon, 1360 Lake Shore drive.

WEST PARK.

W. R. James, 118 North Ada street.
John A. Pelka, 1942 West 22d street.
John P. Garner, 525 North Central avenue.
Theodore W. Bunte, 118 North Homan boulevard.
Philip E. Gilbert, 3451 Douglas boulevard.
Eden T. Brekke, 1010 North Latrobe avenue.
James J. Cullen, 5033 West Adams street.

U. J. Herrmann, who was backed by the yachtsmen for a north side commissionership, was offered the appointment, but he declined it because of his interest in the municipal library board of which he is president. He did not want to surrender the library post and felt there might be some criticism if he held two public positions even if only honorary.

Few New Names Seen.

There are not many new names in the two lists, nearly all of them having been published in advance as among those the governor was looking over. From the political standpoint the west park board is more political in makeup than the north side commission where the governor is reported to have found it much easier to find good material not identified closely with party organization matters.

Four of the new west side commissioners are men whose names are well known in Republican politics. Garner is a former alderman, Brekke is the regular committeeman from the Thirty-seventh ward, Cullen is the Deneen leader in the Thirtieth ward, and Pelka, now city commissioner of compensation, is known as a lieutenant of Charles V. Barrett. So far as politics is concerned, Barrett, the west side chief of the present regular organization, is thought to have fared better than any other leader. In addition to being able to count on Pelka and Brekke, it is said that his wishes may have an attentive ear from Commissioner Gilbert whose appointment is traced largely to Paul Rothenberg, the regular committeeman from the Twenty-fourth ward.

James Named by Governor.

President-designate James was Gov. Emmerson's personal selection, the new commissioner having been for years one of the executive's hunting and fishing companions. He is the head of the C. D. Gammon Cartage company.

Warren Wright, whom the governor has said he would like to see elected president of the Lincoln park system, is a wealthy man interested in outdoor life, particularly as it concerns children. He is an enthusiast about golf and tennis. Something more than a year ago he sold large holdings in the Calumet Baking Powder company and, although he still holds the title of president of the corporation, has indicated that he will have plenty of time for his new task.

In all the Lincoln park list there is not a man known as a professional politician. Oscar Reum, a plastering contractor, had the indorsement of the Brundage-Wallace group and George W. Blomgren was said to have been indorsed by Scandinavian organizations, but the rest of the board were said to have been selected with little regard for political connections, although all are said to be Republicans. Sheldon Clark is an oil man and sportsman, Mr. Gilmore is a coal man, Mr. Read is president of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, and George W. Dixon is better known for his activities in the Methodist church than for organization politics.

RIVER TRAFFIC JAMMED WHEN DREDGE STICKS

Elevated service on the Metropolitan division of the Chicago Rapid Transit company was tied up for over an hour yesterday when a derrick-dredge owned by the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company became jammed beneath the open bridge between Van Buren street and Jackson boulevard.

The dredge was being towed by a tug when it crashed into the piling at the bridge. The impact released one of the four stabilizers, a 30 foot steel beam used as an anchor while dredging, which sank into the pilings. Hundreds of passengers were marooned on blocked trains and a score of west side trains were forced to circle the loop until the stabilizer was cut with an acetylene torch.

FALL FATAL TO WOMAN.

Mrs. Betty Price, 84 years old, 4559 South Michigan avenue, died at the county hospital yesterday of injuries she suffered in a fall on Dec. 27.

SEES CHICAGO NEARER WORLD SUPREMACY GOAL

Simpson Cites Many '29 Improvements.

James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission, stated yesterday that Chicago "took a big stride toward its ambition of becoming the world's premier city" in the work done on thirty-six major civic improvement projects during 1929. Substantial progress toward the completion of the improvements, despite lack of funds, was reported by Mr. Simpson in his annual report on the work of the commission.

"The Chicag Plan commission," said Mr. Simpson, "feels that this year's record of accomplishment is one of which the city may well feel proud, particularly in view of the fact that during 1929 the city was confronted with financial difficulties growing out of the fact that no taxes were collected during the year and because of other reasons.

"This made the lack of funds for civic improvements more acute during 1929 than ever before in the city's history. It is to be hoped, therefore, that during 1930 some solution of the city's financial problem may be worked out, so that the development of Chicago may proceed vigorously and continuously."

Lists Improvements.

Among the major improvements Mr. Simpson listed the following:

1. A new outer drive boulevard, 140 feet wide, connecting Grant park with Lincoln park was agreed upon and the finances arranged.

2. A new Randolph street boulevard, 128 feet wide, connecting Michigan avenue with the outer drive boulevard, was agreed upon and the cost apportiond between the Illinois Central railroad and the south park commisioners.

3. A new Field boulevard, 140 feet wide, connecting Randolph street with Wacker drive, was also agreed upon and the cost financed.

4. The extension of Wacker drive eastward from Michigan avenue, at a width of 112 feet to Field boulevard and 140 feet wide between Field boulevard and the outer drive, was agreed upon by the Illinois Central, the city and the south park commissioners. The 140 foot section of this extension forms a part of the outer drive connection.

River Is Straightened.

5. The straightening of the Chicago river between 18th and Polk streets was compieted by the department of public works. The new channel is open to navigation and the old channel will be filled during 1930. This is the first of three steps toward the complete solution of Chicago's south side railway terminal problem.

6. Plans and specifications were completed and a contract was let by the city for the construction of the Wabash avenue bridge.

7. The Clark street bridge was completed during the year.

8. The plan for the exchange of property between the city and the board of education for the enlargement of the municipal airport was revived. Only by the adequate enlargement and development of the municipal airport can Chicago hope to remain the aviation center of America, the report said.

9. Splendid progress was made by the Lincoln park and the south park commissioners in connection with the park and playground development of the Lake Michigan shoreline.

Park Bonds Voted.

10. Needed legislation was secured from the legislature, giving the Lincoln park commissioners power to issue $9,000,000 worth of bonds to carry their park extension work on north of Montrose avenue. A $3,000,000 bond issue to finance a year's work was voted by the people.

11. The Shedd aquarium was virtually completed and construction of the Adler planetarium progressed rapidly.

12. A contract was let for restoring the old Fine Arts building in Jackson park and work is now under way to make it a museum of science and industry.

13. The board of local improvements completed the widening of Halsted street between Vincennes avenue and the Calumet river; widened and paved Peterson avenue between Clark street and Caldwell road; completed 95th street between State street and Western avenue; built a bridge across the river at North Damen avenue and started another in South Damen avenue.

14. The city council passed, and the Illinois Central railroad and the south park commissioners accepted, a number of amendments to the 1919 lake front ordinance providing for the new Randolph street suburban station and a dozen or more improvements of considerable importance to Chicago in the railroad area east of Michigan avenue and south of the river. This work will proceed at once.

15. A competition was held, and the winning design was chosen, for a war memorial to commemorate Chicago's part in the world war.

16. The legislature imposed a tax upon gasoline and authorized counties to spend a portion of the proceeds in improving the pavements of such city streets as form continuations of state aid highways. It is hoped many Chicago streets will be improved during 1930 and subsequent years out of funds derived from the gas tax.

Provide for Improvements.

Amendments to the lake front ordinance, Mr. Simpson says, provide also for the double decking of Beaubien court, and extensions of Lake and South Water streets eastward and the construction of a number of north and south streets in the area north of Randolph street and east of Michigan avenue.

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, according to the report, will complete the widening and improvement of Ashland avenue, Ogden avenue, La Salle street and Western avenue.

SCHIRESON ASKS COURT TO BLOCK MEDICAL TRIAL

Dr. Henry J. Schireson yesterday filed a petition in the Superior court for an injunction to restrain the medical committee of the state department of registration and education from proceeding with the hearing of the revocation of his license. The bill charges that the hearing is the result of a conspiracy on the part of Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, members of the association, and Assistant Attorney General Harry A. Ash to conduct a sham hearing into the professional conduct of Dr. Schireson.

The bill challenges the right of the medical committee members to hold their offices. It charges they are affiliated with medical schools and hospitals and sit in violation of a state law forbidding such connections. The bill characterizes Dr. Fishbein as a "czar" of medicine, dominating the association, and charges he caused the action against Dr. Schireson as the result of personal ill feeling.

Dr. Schireson is on trial before the medical committee for unethical practice in an operation performed by him to straighten the legs of Miss Sayde Holland. An infection made necessary the amputation of both legs. Dr. Schireson settled a civil suit brought by her for $40,000.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR WAUKEGAN'S BIGGER HARBOR

A draft of plans for harbor development on a gigantic scale which will insure for Waukegan a leading place in the shipping of the Chicago industrial area was completed yesterday at Waukegan by Maj. H. J. Wild, United States district engineer. The plans provide for the construction of a breakwater a quarter of a mile in length which will give Waukegan a stilling basin that will quadruple the capacity of the harbor. It also provides for enlargement of the inner basin. A recommendation that these plans be adopted will be made to the rivers and harbor committee of the United States senate when that body convenes Jan. 6.

AISLE OF TABLES

For the month of January formal and informal dinner tables, luncheon, tea and breakfast tables are arranged on the second floor. Many of these are set by prominent Chicago hostesses who have gained recognition for their distinguished tables.

They have used gay linens for the weekend party breakfast, impressive damasks in the new panel designs, delicate handpainted cloths for the finest glass, linens for every occasion and good.

Second Floor, Wabash

LINEN TALKS GO ON AIR

Beginning Monday, January 6, 11 A. M., daily talks upon table decoration will be given over station WGN.

Miss Caroline Kirkland will open the series with a talk upon Tables in Social Life of Chicago. Other speakers during the month include Princess Rostislav, who has arranged a tea table on the second floor; she will describe the Russian Tea over the radio. Mrs. William Vaughin Moody's subject is The Epicure Sets a Table; Mrs. Howard Shaw, author of Songs of a Baby's Day, will talk upon nursery parties; Mary Hastings Bradley's subject is, Linen, the Symbol of civilization. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Jr., will discuss Sunday Night Suppers.

Other speakers and daily programs will be announced in newspaper advertisements.

BUDGET TABLES

On the second floor of the Main Store and in the Evanston and West Suburban Stores a group of six tables planned for the moderate budget are displayed. Mrs. Wilbur Fribley, chairman of the American Home Committee of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, has set two of the budget tables to show the smartest and most practical use of color in linen and table service.

A radio is being specially installed in the Lenox Room on the Second Floor, so the morning shopper may hear the current discussion and examine the linens and tables described.

CHICAGO IS DRIER THAN EVER, SAYS FEDERAL REPORT

U. S. Attorneys Praised for Their Help.

A picture of prohibition enforcement for 1929 in the thirteenth district, containing Illinois, Iowa, and Wisconsin, was contained in a summary report of the year's activities issued from Administrator Yellowley's office yesterday.

Importation of genuine liquor and diversion of whisky and alcohol from legitimate channels to bootleggers has been reduced to a minimum, the report says, and the character of dry personnel has been raised to a "very high standard." Prohibition activities in the large cities have shown particularly favorable progress.

"Consistent progress has been made in the enforcement of national prohibition in this district during the year 1929," the report reads, "with particularly good success in the city of Chicago.

Praise Coöperation of Law.

"We are enjoying splendid coöperation from United States district attorneys in the district. In Chicago we have the coöperation of the state's attorney and commissioner of police, who have issued direct orders to their personnel to actively enforce the prohibition laws. This coöperation is resulting in the gradual cleaning out of the saloons and speakeasies, and has enabled this office to concentrate on the still cases and larger sources of supply."

The report stresses the small amount of good liquor being sold. "Only 1 per cent of 9,000 samples analyzed originated with the diversion of alcohol, whereas 81 per cent show that the liquor was made from moonshine alcohol and moonshine spirits.

"Three quarters of one per cent of all samples analyzed show pure whisky. Nine per cent consisted of whisky flavored spirits. One quarter of one per cent of samples analyzed were Scotch whisky, two per cent gool alcohol, and six per cent colored and uncolored spirits from good alcohol."

Cites Absurd Booze Story.

William H. Kennedy, assistant administrator in charge of permits, asserted yesterday that "a story circulated recently of a $50,000,000 alcohol diversion is utterly ridiculous."

"Sacramental wine withdrawals for the district," the report says, "have averaged approximately 5,000 gallons per month as compared to 100,000 gallons per month for the state of Illinois alone during the years 1922, 1923 and 1924."

Number of arrests	6,110
Illicit stills	1,250
Illicit breweries	214
Automobiles seized	372
Beer seized [gallons]	162,037
Alcohol seized [gallons]	88,763
Mash seized [gallons]	3,514,235
Permanent injunctions	1,150

Sixty-three conspiracy investigations involving 540 defendants were made by the investigation unit, the report says. "These cases comprise the results of painstaking investigative work, involving the 'higher-ups' and the men who are usually behind the scene of operations who furnish the brains and money involving the larger cases of prohibition violation."

YELLOWLEY A WITNESS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Chicago's liquor situation passed in review tonight before the President's law enforcement commission. E. C. Yellowley, prohibition administrator at Chicago, conferred with members of the commission in a closed conference. He appeared at the commission's invitation and described enforcement methods employed and present conditions.

The verbal warfare over prohibition continued to rage during the day. Senator S. W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], who has frequently assailed Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, renewed demands that the President remove him. The Iowa radical also asserted that Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, and Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran should be dismissed.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, who has immediate supervision over both the prohibition bureau and the coast guard, issued a brief statement relating to the killing of three rum runners off Newport, R. I., by coast guardsmen on Sunday. He described the occurrence as "unfortunate, but unavoidable."

PILOTS SET NEW RECORD ON HOP TO CLEVELAND

A new flying record between Chicago and Cleveland was established Monday evening when Pilots Ray Fortner and Garnett Caldwell of the Universal Air lines flew the distance in one hour and thirty-seven minutes, or an average of 202 miles an hour. Using a tri-motored Fokker plane and carrying twelve passengers, they took off from the Municipal airport at 4 o'clock and landed in Cleveland, 326 miles away, at 5:37 o'clock.

DELAY IN TAX BILLS IS LAID TO LACK OF CLERKS

Tax doctors yesterday again diagnosed the case of the reassessment with plans to operate and eliminate delays so that tax collections may be speeded. County officials, civic leaders, and attorneys met to consider methods of hurrying funds into the bare county cupboard. After two hours of mutual recrimination the consultants agreed that unless money is found to supply larger clerical forces there is little hope of speed.

Members of the board of review declared that the assessors take too much time in their work and the assessors charged the reviewers with responsibility for the delay. Suggestions for acceleration offered by Silas Strawn, chairman of the citizens' committee, and George O. Fairweather, chairman of the committee on real estate valuations, met with legal objection. They asked that the assessors discontinue hearings to allow all adjustments to be made by the reviewers.

The reviewers insisted that unless their staff is increased it will be May 1 before the clerks can begin work on the country towns.

Taxpayers paid $150,000 to County Treasurer George F. Harding yesterday in advance of 1928 tax bills. The payments were made by property owners in order to make corresponding reductions on income tax returns. Yesterday's payments swelled the partial payments on 1928 bills to $400,000.

TRIBUNE BUREAU OPEN TODAY TO HELP WAR VETS

Veterans of the world war, or their legal dependents in case of deceased veterans, may receive aid in making application for the federal compensation, otherwise known as the federal bonus, from the Public Service bureau of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, 1 South Dearborn street, today and tomorrow. The bureau will remain open until midnight both days. These applications must be made by such veterans as have not yet applied for the bonus, not later than tomorrow, Jan. 2, according to an official ruling. Information and application blanks may also be procured at the United States Veterans' bureau offices, 111 North Canal street.

U. of Michigan Physician Heads College Health Group

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Dr. Warren K. Forsythe, medical director of the University of Michigan, was elected president of the American Student Health association today. He succeeds Dr. J. F. Edwards of Iowa State college. The association is composed of medical directors of 100 colleges and univeristies.

Compiled by WIEBOLDT'S
what the months will bring

JANUARY
. . . long dresses will be seen everywhere . . . bright new print dresses will liven the winter scene under fur coats . . . the home will take its usual important Winter place in the sun. with housewives looking to Wieboldt's White Goods sale and Blue Ribbon Events to stock up depleted linen closets and to refurnish every room . . . so will go January.

FEBRUARY
. . . new modes in motor cars will reveal a trend toward duller metals . . . Wieboldt's February Furniture Sale will feature much that is new in line and wood and unpainted furniture will be sold in quantity . . . Valentine's Day will become more of a day for giving useful gift valentines or things decorative . . . coats will have belts and new hats will show much straw.

MARCH
. . . the sleevesless dress will appear on the Spring fashion horizons . . . there will be many breath-taking new ideas in baby raiment seen at Wieboldt's . . . a new color, Peach, will be used for all types of clothes, and new shades in makeup will be available to carry it off . . . so will pass the stormy month.

APRIL
. . . by now you will see yellow everywhere . . . you will see sweaters in great numbers . . . Easter will come on the 20th and blossoms will likely be well out by then . . . many of us will have decided on the new house or apartment and will have ordered the new rugs during Wieboldt's Rug Sale . . . and now for the month of flowers.

MAY
. . . we will see more evidence of solid colors in most everything, much of it resulting from the high vogue of peach and green . . . there will be much black, contrasting with yellows and greens . . . the Summer home furnisher will consider new furniture and Mother's Day will bring millions of gifts to happy homes . . . homemakers will delight in Wieboldt's great Anniversary Sale . . . and so on to the month of roses.

JUNE
. . . and now travelers will choose luggage bound in stainless chromium, and more compact pieces will be introduced, which they will buy during Wieboldt's Homecoming Week . . . every one will have a suit in her wardobe and it will be cut on wondrous new lines . . . and boys and girls will look forward to vacations in clothes that come from Wieboldt's . . . and thus on to the great vacation month.

JULY
. . . 48 hour cross-continent travel will become almost common through combined air and train transportation . . . smart women tennis players will look with interest on new sports trousers that came North with the Southern migrators . . . and the famous Blue Ribbon Events of Wieboldt's will bring fresh new Summer things to thousands of homes at fractional prices . . . so we pass into the dog days.

AUGUST
. . . fur styles in the great annual August Sale will be new to flatter the silhouette that by now is universal . . . the clever homemaker will consider doing over her home by complete rooms . . . and her wardrobe will be enlivened by new details in her dress . . . the line of the new Fall dresses will be broken by blouse effects . . . and so we approach the last great Summer holiday, Labor Day.

SEPTEMBER
. . . the first thoughts for the home will begin, and she will discover in Wieboldt's delightful ways to transform her home, and she will order new rugs at Wieboldt's Rug Sale . . . blue will be one of the first three colors in Fall fashion, and even men will be seen in shoes of a shade of blue . . . shrewd housewives will plan to order Winter furnishings during Wieboldt's Founder's Week.

OCTOBER
. . . evening gowns will adopt metallic fabrics and it will be a season of bejeweled splendor . . . we will see many new uses for beautiful glass, and mirrors will be found in charming homes . . . and gay home parties will be given . . . there will be Air Clubs formed just as we now have Country Clubs . . . there will be new decorative things at Wieboldt's to make homes more beautiful . . . and next, November.

NOVEMBER
. . . now football crowds will sit wrapped in ingenious one-piece outfits or snug coats of wool that rival fur . . . parties will be planned for Thanksgiving and suddenly Wieboldt's will be changed into the great Christmas Bazaar that has just been closed as you read this . . . your newest dress may well be in apricot shade and you will want to choose accessories that sharply contrast.

DECEMBER
. . . and once again around the clock of the months to Christmas . . . Christmas clubs in banks will disburse scores of millions of dollars for joyous gift-giving . . . one of the first colors of winter will be cerise, and the southern resort fashions will introduce shades of solid colors into stockings . . . Christmas 1930 will find Wieboldt's a still greater and better treasure house of gifts.

U. S. READY TO SAVE BUFFALO DRY SLAYERS

Federal Trial Seen for 3 Coast Guards.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Three coast guardsmen involved in the fatal shooting Dec. 25 of Eugene J. Downey Jr., suspected rum runner, were ordered held for the grand jury on charges of second degree manslaughter after their arraignment this afternoon in City court. The guardsmen, Randolph H. Thompson, Asa Ennes, and Orville Lagrant, pleaded not guilty. They were placed under bonds of $5,000 each.

Their cases will be presented to the grand jury early in January, District Attorney Guy B. Moore said.

Appearing in court after being fingerprinted at police headquarters, the guardsmen, on the advice of their counsel, Federal Attorney Richard H. Templeton, waived preliminary examination.

It was indicated that the government would take action to transfer the case from state to federal courts and seek a change of venue to some city other than Buffalo.

Downey was under indictment for liquor smuggling at the time of his death.

Senator to Ask Inquiry.

Providence, R. I., Dec. 31.—(AP)—United States Senator Jesse H. Metcalf announced today that he would ask for a senatorial investigation of the killing of three rum runners by coast guards in Naragansett bay early Sunday if it appears that investigations now in progress "are not reaching the root of the matter."

Senator Metcalf's statement says:

Charles Travers, of Fairhaven, Mass., the survivor of the Black Duck, pleaded not guilty here tonight before United States Commissioner Archibald C. Matteson, on a charge of smuggling under the prohibition act. He was released in $10,000 bail for trial Jan. 16.

Sift Coast Guard Rum Theft.

New London, Conn., Dec. 31.—(AP)—With the investigation into the theft of liquor by coast guardsmen from the seized rum runner Flora del Mar was completed today. Capt. L. T. Chalker, chief of staff of the destroyer force, today said that five men have been confined to brig for court martial. Several other coast guardsmen are on report.

Capt. Chalker denied reports that $75,000 worth of liquor had disappeared. Not more than six cases of liquor, he said, were stolen Sunday.

"According to the coast guard, a warning was given in the case of the Black Duck. According to the sole surviving member of the rum running crew, the coast guard craft opened fire at a close, deadly range without a warning."

Dry Shot by Dry Dies.

Columbus, Kas., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Shot during a gun fight between two parties of dry raiders, each of whom believed the other to be moonshiners, John Crawford, a deputy constable, died here today as officials continued an investigation of the affair.

Seize $12,000 Cargo.

LaFayette, Ind., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The value of Indiana's farm products increased more than $4,755,000 in 1929 over 1928, according to Prof. M. M. Justin, agricultural statistician of the Purdue university agricultural experiment station and United States department of agriculture. Value of major crops in Indiana, exclusive of live stock, was $208,149,000 in 1929.

According to Justin, corn was the most valuable farm crop in Indiana this year, with a valuation of $97,656,000 from the crop raised on a total acreage of 4,124,000. Seven hundred and ten thousands more acres of wheat were raised than in 1928, with a valuation of $31,048,000 from a 1,631,000 acre crop averaging 16.5 bushels per acre.

HUTCHINS' FRIEND QUITS BUSINESS FOR U. OF C. JOB

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Resigning as assistant treasurer of the Bankers Reserve Life company, of which his father, Walter G. Preston Sr., is president, Walter Preston, first vice president, left today for Chicago to join the administration department of the University of Chicago.

Preston told friends that he was giving up a business career to become associated with his friend, Robert Maynard Hutchins, the university's president, who was a classmate of Preston at Yale.

Dr. Hutchins and Preston are about the same age. They worked on the Yale Daily News together and are both honorary members of the Wolf's Head, an honorary society.

POISON DOSE IS FATAL.

Bishop's January Values Compare Favorably

See Our Showing and Be Convinced

Compare Before You Buy

Compare before you buy your new fur coat; be convinced that you are getting proper value and style by comparing the coats we have prepared for you this January.

These are not coats made for sale purposes but the OLD RELIABLE BISHOP standard of manufacture which we have for your consideration at all times.

This showing comprises all the new silhouettes which have caused such a furore during the late fall and early winter, all the new lengths wanted by Chicago's smartly dressed women.

When we say this we do so with a conviction that these statements will stand the test of critical comparison and make for a purchase at a substantial saving which will prove a satisfaction and comfort to you.

Come in and see these wonderful January special fur coats. All sizes 4 to 50, but not in all furs.

AUTO DEATH TOLL CUT FOR FIRST TIME IN 1929

1,022 Killed by Motors, 6% Under 1928.

For the first time in the history of Cook county the yearly auto toll in 1929 failed to establish a new record. One death yesterday raised the 1929 toll to 1,022, or 6 per cent below the 1928 record total of 1,089. The toll exceeds the 1927 figure of 969.

Coroner Bundesen ordered an examination of inquest findings, which resulted in the addition of two names to the year's auto death list. The decrease in 1929 has been constant throughout the year, at times being as high as 16 per cent, but the peak months of September, October, and November added heavily to the total.

The decrease was due to a sharp drop in fatalities in the city. The city's toll was 799 as against 916 in 1928, or 13 per cent less. Fatalities increased in the country town areas.

Reduction Cheers Bundesen.

"The decline in auto deaths should be a source of satisfaction to the entire county," Coroner Bundesen said. "I feel that it is due to increased caution on the part of motorists. The realization of the fact that carelessness contributed almost all deaths brought a reaction.

"I believe that further education toward safety for both the motorist and the pedestrian, and wider roads and better paving would bring a still greater drop in 1930. The decline should spur every one to increased effort, so that we may eliminate unnecessary accidents."

The last victim of the year was Abraham Davidson, 73 years old, who was killed by a hit and run motorist in front of 3077 Palmer square.

Edward Rush, 30 years old, 9044 South Marshfield avenue, is near death in the Auburn Park hospital as a result of injuries incurred last night when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at 89th street and Marshfield avenue.

A man tentatively identified as James R. Johnston, 41 years old, was injured, probably fatally, last night when he was hit by an automobile driven by William Swartz, 3620 West 16th street, while crossing Jackson boulevard at Aberdeen street. Johnston was taken to the county hospital.

Killed in Crash.

Lloyd Kinney, 21 years old, of Bremen, Ind., was killed when the automobile in which he was riding with his brother, Howard Kinney, 31, and the latter's wife and two daughters struck a truck four miles west of Warsaw, Ind. Howard Kinney, who was driving, was blinded by a dense fog. He and his wife and children were seriously injured.

PEOPLE CEASING TO EAT AT HOME IN THE U. S., SURVEY SHOWS

Even kitchenettes are becoming passé and women are more and more feeling it their duty to go out and make money rather than stay in and cook, a recent survey of cities from coast to coast, made by the National Restaurant association, indicates.

Carl G. Stoddard, Cedar Rapids, Ia., president of the association, announced the results of the survey here yesterday. People cannot afford to eat at home in this age, and as a result gross business has increased in 185,000 restaurants surveyed.

No matter how much men pine to see the little woman stirring up muffins or tenderly supervising a beef stew, they feel they must stifle their impulses, as her time is too valuable to be wasted among the pots and pans, according to Mr. Stoddard.

Whereas 10 years ago 60 per cent of all apartment houses were equipped with kitchenettes, themselves a far cry from the old fashioned kitchen, today only 20 per cent include kitchenettes, Mr. Stoddard said. The restaurant business increased 5 per cent in the last three months, he said.

39 years of PROGRESS

In the gay days of 1891 a new idea in Restaurant service . . . made a timid bow.

Pioneer of more progressive days to come . . . the 39 New Years which have since unfolded have seen the idea blossom into an outstanding institution of public service.

From that one little restaurant on South State Street . . . where Mr. John R. Thompson first made known his new ideas . . . 121 Restaurants have grown.

Daily . . . now . . . nearly 200,000 meals are served to hundreds of thousands of patrons in the 42 cities of the United States in which Thompson Restaurants are located.

Through 39 changing years the John R. Thompson organization has followed steadily those ideals of Progress . . . of Improvement . . . which were the inspiration of the founder.

In the searching laboratory of practical experience new ideas are constantly being tried out. Those of sound value are retained . . . along with the best of the old . . . to survive or make way for the new.

Thus, through the ceaseless quest of new opportunities for improved service . . . we expect to find in the New Year of 1930 . . . new opportunities for continued growth.

To those whose patronage has helped make 1929 a sales-record year, we express cordial thanks. To all . . . we express the hope that you may share liberally in a busy, prosperous New Year.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

AT the dawn of the year 1930 we wish to emphasize the tremendous importance to every Chicagoan of investing his knowledge, his work, and his money here at home during this and succeeding years. No matter how bright foreign fields may be, we must remember that here at home—in Chicago—we will find our own personal gateway to success.

If America's integrity is to be preserved, if its coming years are to be filled with opportunity, if it is to be the same land of rich returns it has always been, then Chicago—America's most progressive city—should be the bright spot in the future history of this favored country.

In wishing our friends a happy and prosperous New Year, it is with the hope that 1930 will come laden with precious gifts of opportunity for us all; that the great civic improvements so long planned for Chicago may this year find expression in something real; that the business life of our wonderful city may be quickened and that in a spontaneous response to Chicago's activity we all may find boundless prosperity and happiness.

HURLEY ORDERS CHICAGO WATER FLOW CUT AT ONCE

Reduced 1,250 Cubic Ft. as Year Opens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—An immediate reduction in the amount of water diverted from Lake Michigan at Chicago for sanitation purposes was ordered today by Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

Under the terms of a new diversion permit, issued to the Chicago sanitary district, the present authorized flow is reduced by 1,250 cubic second feet on Jan. 1 and will be reduced by an additional 750 feet on July 1, 1930, a total reduction of 2,000 feet within six months.

The old 1925 permit which expires at midnight tonight allowed an annual average flow through the main drainage canal of 8,500 cubic second feet plus 1,200 feet for domestic pumpage, a total of 9,700 cubic second feet measured at Lockport. The new permit reduces the total diversion, including pumpage, to an average of 8,500 cubic second feet. On July 1, the permit provides that the diversion shall again be cut to an annual average of 6,500 feet plus pumpage, which in the past has averaged around 1,200 feet.

Reserves Right to Change.

As one of its conditions, the war department reserves the right to make still further reductions in the annual flow at Lockport if a decrease in pollution makes such action warranted. The permit is rendered null and void on the effective date of the final decree entered by the Supreme court in the Chicago water diversion litigation.

The war department announcement that the water diversion was to be immediately reduced marked a victory for the lake states now opposing a Chicago diversion before the Supreme court.

As finally written the war department report goes even further than was recommended by Charles Evans Hughes, special master for the Supreme court, in the lake level cases.

In his recommendations submitted to the court a few days ago, Mr. Hughes suggested reducing the flow to 6,500 feet plus pumpage on July 1. While referring to the lake states' contention that an immediate reduction should be effected, Mr. Hughes did not so recommend to the court.

The conditions of the old permit which required Chicago to meter its water supply are not included in the new license. The new document does, however, require that Chicago pay its share in the cost of compensating or regulating works for restoring lake levels.

Text of New Permit.

"This is to certify that the secretary of war, subject to the following conditions, hereby authorizes the said sanitary district of Chicago to divert, through its main drainage canal and auxiliary channels, from Lake Michigan, an amount of water not to exceed an annual average of 7,250 cubic feet per second, or such lesser annual average diversion as will restrict the average annual flow measured at Lockport, to 8,500 cubic feet per second until July 1, 1930, after which date the amount of diversion will be limited to an annual average of 6,500 cubic feet per second in addition to domestic pumpage."

LOCAL OFFICIALS SATISFIED.

Officials of the sanitary district last night said they were satisfied with the new federal permit reducing the amount of water diverted from Lake Michigan from a total of 9,700 cubic second feet to approximately 8,500 cubic second feet.

"I think the new permit is fair," said E. J. Kelly, chief engineer of the district. "We can get along all right with the smaller amount, which, for the next six months, will total about 8,500 cubic feet per second, including pumpage. After July 1 the total diversion still will mount to about 8,000 feet, which can be made to meet our needs. At present we are diverting 9,200 feet.

"We had anticipated a reduction. Accordingly we are not disappointed, although we naturally would have preferred to continue under the old order."

Mr. Kelly pointed out that in the new permit Secretary Hurley had followed the recommendation of Gen. Jadwin, while the further reduction on July 1 is in line with the recommendation of Mr. Hughes.

Plans Not Materially Affected.

"The reduction will not affect our program materially," said Walter E. Beebe, chief legal adviser of the sanitary board. "Outside of the reduction in flow of water, the new permit is the same as that granted in 1925, except that the clause making provision for the city of Chicago to meter its water service has been eliminated."

By the old permit, the city was expected to meter at least ninety per cent of its water service at the rate of ten per cent a year. This program has been carried out only partially.

H. C. Moir Jr. Is Awarded Divorce from Second Wife

Harry C. Moir Jr., 22 years old, son of the owner of the Morrison hotel, yesterday won a divorce from his second wife, Mrs. Martha Greif Moir, 20 years old, a former actress, before Superior Judge Sabath. No alimony order was entered. Moir charged that his wife left him Feb. 14, 1927, because he failed to send her a valentine. She filed a cross bill for divorce also charging desertion. They were married April 22, 1926.

U. S. ARMY ENGINEER FAVORS AN ADEQUATE WATERWAY SYSTEM

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Lieut. Col. George R. Spalding, Western Division army engineer with headquarters here, decided today to discuss his reports to Washington on the feasibility of nine foot channels on the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri rivers, but he said he favors a decisive policy of adequate waterways "without half way improvements."

The upper Mississippi and lower Missouri now are six foot projects. Col. Spalding said that only adequate waterways service pays, but added that to improve waterways adequately "costs a lot of money."

The engineer said the present six foot channel on the Missouri river between Kansas City and St. Louis could not be completed by 1931. By that time, he said, a six foot channel would be ready except in two or three places, but that those places were "pretty bad."

ALWART BROS COAL CO. — SATISFACTION — QUALITY — SERVICE

Appreciation

THE Alwart Brothers wish to express their appreciation of the splendid co-operation they have had with the large number of coal consumers, which has made it possible to say that the year just closed has been one of their most successful years.

A THOUGHT FOR COAL BUYERS FOR THE ENSUING YEAR

You would not expect our competitors to admit to you that ALWART'S COAL is as good or better than their coal, because we are selling it at a much lower price, would you?

Granting that all dealers deliver the best quality of coal, then ALWART COAL would still be the outstanding coal on account of the PREPARATION it receives before leaving our yards, this is made possible by a special process which is covered under the ALWART PATENTS, an exclusive service for ALWART CUSTOMERS without added cost.

(Send for a circular describing this feature.)

Because we buy at such times and in such quantities that enables us to get a much lower price than other dealers can command WE CAN AND DO SELL FOR LESS.

Over 25,000 CASH CUSTOMERS have approved of ALWART'S MONEY SAVING PLAN and is the reason why they BUY FOR LESS.

Our QUALITY and SERVICE are equal to the best, our PREPARATION is superior and our prices are lowest. Can we do more to merit your patronage?

PETITIONS SEEK TO RUN ASH FOR COUNTY OFFICE

Want Him on Ticket for Treasurership.

What was believed to be the first petition for a county office candidacy for the approaching campaign appeared in the loop yesterday. It carried the name of Harry A. Ash as a candidate for the county treasurership on the Republican ticket.

HARRY A. ASH. [Melvin Sykes Photo.]

But Mr. Ash, first assistant to Attorney General Carlstrom, said in response to questions that the collecting of signatures to place his name on the primary ballot was not initiated by him but by a number of friends who for some time have been urging him to make the race.

Called Independent Move.

He said he was not ready to make any statement at this stage of the proceedings, but even the appearance of the signature gatherers started a lively line of conjecture concerning the effect of the move. Politically the move was considered an independent one but one that might raise bob with some of the factional lineups.

One candidate already has been brought out with a big demonstration at a Palmer house banquet. He is Walter E. Bacon, who is sponsored by the Lundin camp, and, it has been rumored, may have the support of the Deneen group. One other man, Assessor Charles Krutckoff, who lines up with the Snow-Harding forces on the south side, is known to have had his eye on the place for something like a year and he has been groomed for it by his organization associates.

Carlstrom Opposes Bacon.

With Ash, Bacon and Krutckoff in the fight and with the possible addition to a Deneen entry, some of the already existing or half-formed alliances might be smashed. Attorney General Carlstrom, Ash's political chief, has been considered as at least leaning strongly to the Deneen camp at this time. But he and Lundin are far from being friendly, and Bacon's candidacy is said to have irritated the attorney general particularly because of the impression that the Deneen people may—possibly secretly—get behind it.

Such a development as Deneen support for Bacon by a mere failure of that camp to put up a candidate of its own might bring a break between the United States senator and the attorney general. On the other hand, it is pointed out that with a large field a Deneen entry's chances might be improved so that this group would put up their own man and fight Bacon, Ash and Krutckhoff.

Point to Ash's Record.

Attorney Ash's friends point particularly to his record in charge of the attorney general's tax inheritance office in Chicago, where, they say, he has received the commendation of the leaders of the Chicago bar who have handled cases in that office. Those friends also mention that Ash is a service man, that he is well experienced in law, and that his training included the schools of law, taxation, and finance, that he is a skilled accountant, and that he has stood the test of administering an important public office efficiently.

During the last governorship campaign when Carlstrom withdrew in favor of Emmerson, Ash had started on organized campaign work for his superior which he immediately swung over for Emmerson's benefit. He also took charge of the safeguards against fraud at the polls, employing 500 private investigators and 750 women workers who served as special watchers on election day.

The treasureship also came into the limelight in the Democratic fold when County Commissioner Emmett Whealan said in a newspaper interview that he will run in his party's primary for the job. He said he had sent word to the organization leaders that he wants their support when slate making is begun.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE NEW CANDIDATE

CUSTOM BUILT

By SIDNEY HERSCHEL SMALL

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees, but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job she scolds him and calls him a playboy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him that he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara, and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses and tells her he is going out to Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco, and starts for California. On the train he meets Anne Ames, who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying good-by in Utah John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

INSTALLMENT XXI.
THE GAME.

Frowning, John Andrew stopped the roadster, and, getting out, surveyed a flat front tire. Next he looked up and down the street, and saw no sign of any garage; the only two places near which were open were an all night lunchroom and a pawnshop. John Andrew looked at the front tire, flatter than his pocketbook, and then at the three gilt balls. He jingled the silver in his pocket, and then told the Mercury, "Duty before pleasure, my Hermes," and, whistling softly, went into the shop. When he returned, still whistling, the $52.45 had become $72.45. John Andrew's watch had been a very good one. And John Andrew felt that, in several ways, he had taken time by the forelock.

He attacked the tire immediately, and the physical action restored something of his usual complacent manner; when the last lug was wrenched tight, and the damaged tire fastened behind the Mercury, he drove away, not in better spirits, but better able to control his dejection. That a garage, several blocks along the street, was open, did not anger him, although his hands were grimy; he turned in, asked the way to the hotel from a sleepy mechanic, and, giving the man a half dollar, went his way. Not until he was almost at the hotel did he realize that $72.45 was now $71.95.

At the desk the night clerk handed him the key and a yellow envelope, saying, "Going to be a fine day." John Andrew tore the telegram open.

"Need double anastigmatic lenses, also synchrony gears, otherwise machine all ready. Wire two hundred dollars.—William Blake," was what he read. He jingled the silver in his pocket as he had in front of the pawnshop, but not facetiously.

"It was a collect wire, sir; we've charged it against your room."

"Um," John Andrew said, engrossed with his own thoughts. "Honest men ought to be in bed, eh?"

"Thanks," John Andrew said. He stood uncertainly a moment, and then made a motion to look at his watch.

"What time is it?" he asked.

"Um," John Andrew said, engrossed with his own thoughts. "Honest men ought to be in bed, eh?"

As John Andrew went toward the elevator the clerk, having missed neither John Andrew's attempt to look at his own non-present watch, nor the guest's apparent and troubled thoughtfulness, made a notation for the manager that perhaps it might be well to keep an eye on Mr. Kellogg, unless, of course, the gentleman had taken his watch to be repaired, or left it in his room when he went out.

Checking through Kellogg's brief residence at the Poinsettia, the clerk found that John Andrew had not used the telephone, that he had sent two suits to be cleaned and pressed, that he had signed his breakfast check instead of paying the waiter, that also there was a daily garage charge being made. A call to the hotel garage showed that the guest drove an expensive Mercury [spare tire flat] which was very new. This did not decrease the clerk's suspicion; the slickest crooks were seemingly the wealthiest; a bum could not rook the hotel, but a "gentleman" could. John Andrew went on the suspicious sheet for no greater reason than trying to look at a watch he was not wearing. If the management had known where the watch was reposing, John Andrew would have [with extremely logical excuses] been presented with a bill before he had climbed into bed.

A man may put on glasses through which to view the world to match his thoughts, but, although the morning was bright, John Andrew's were not sanguine. He stopped the handsome roadster as near to the doors of the Consolidated studios as he could—not closely enough to be seen, and this time was subjected to a severe cross-examination. He wanted to see one of the engineers, did he? He had an appointment? He didn't? Who, then, did he wish to see, and, if so, why? Well, had he a card? [He had, but all that it said was John Andrew Kellogg, which did not help.] The man at the information desk said he'd see what could be done, but didn't do anything about it; John Andrew smoked several cigarets, wishing that the only man he knew might appear—Carey, the actor—or that the clerk's fountain pen would become a stick of dynamite and explode.

When the clerk at last asked John Andrew if he were waiting for any one, Kellogg was able to intimate that he was. "Yeah . . . yeah," the man at the information desk said thoughtfully, "you're lookin' for some one in th' engineerin' department. . . . Well, I phoned inside, and they're all on th' lot this mornin'."

"And they'll be on th' lot all afternoon."

John Andrew lit another cigaret without comment.

The clerk stared at him; what hazy recognition might have passed through his head Kellogg did not know, but the man scrawled a few cabalistic words on a pink pad, tore off the uppermost written slip, and handed it to a boy. "Take 'm t' see Mist' Fitzgerald," he commanded. "An' come right back when you're done."

John Andrew had hoped that he might be taken to the sound stage engineering room, where he perhaps would not only be able to talk with the friendly red headed engineer, but also have an excuse to see Anne. However, the office into which he was shown was apparently that of some one fairly high in the organization of Consolidated, for it contained a huge desk of polished wood, padded chairs, and the usual trappings of executivehood.

"Mist' Fitzgerald's office," the boy said. "He's around somewhere, an' you c'n wait f'r 'm here, huh?"

John Andrew sat down.

People walked along the hallway; voices came into the office; at last John Andrew's attuned ears caught faint sounds from the next room. He stood up, went close to the connecting door, and verified beyond any doubt what he had heard.

John Andrew, had he known the comment of the man at the information desk this day, would not have been entirely pleased: "He's a good lookin' bozo," the clerk had remarked. "Kinda thin, but with good features. Th' women'd be crazy about him. He's tryin' t' work some guy in th' engineerin' department into givin' him a chance to get on th' lot. Prob'ly he went to a engineerin' school, and b'longs to some s'ciety of 'em."

Standing beside the door, his habitually grave face alert as he listened, John Andrew might indeed have been an actor—the melancholy lover who faces the world alone when his beloved has married the Other Man.

Opening the door quietly, John Andrew saw five men—all under his own age—kneeling on the floor, very intent upon two bouncing cubes which were dropping to the floor.

"Is this personal, or can any one get in it?" John Andrew asked, grinning. "Aside from that, I'm looking for Mr. Fitzgerald."

"I'm Fitzgerald," one of the young men said, looking up without nervousness or fright. "But I'm in conference—crap shooter's conference—and you can either wait until I get some of my coin back, or dust yourself a place for your knees. Maybe you'll change my luck."

In fifteen minutes John Andrew again saw that exact thing—only it wasn't his money which had increased. To be perfectly exact, John Andrew had the following resources:

One ten dollar bill
Sixty cents in change
Two hard round silver dollars which last were to be used only to wire Craig. And so he remarked sadly, "All or nothing . . . shoot the works," and dropped the banknote to the floor.

John Andrew, seeker after wealth, blew on the cubes and rolled them from his hand. One stopped almost at once, with one spot showing; the second, dots indecipherable for an instant, hesitated [so all could see] with six spots plainly visible, and then turned completely over.

"A pair of aces may be some good in a poker game," John Andrew said, as the ten dollars were swept away, "but I'll be hanged if they're of much use now."

Ruth Davis	Jean Ashworth

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning! And the happiest sort of a New Year to all of you!

I could make these reviews long, for today, as on Sunday, you'll have lots of time to read. The chances are, though, that you're pretty tired from last night's festivities, or, maybe, don't feel so much like concentrating. So we'll just be short and snappy, tell you what we think is what—and go about the w. k. business.

"So Long Letty," adapted from the stage production, proves light and hilarious entertainment. It features that tall, blonde clown Charlotte Greenwood, who sings, dances, cavorts, and makes faces after her much approved fashion.

Miss Greenwood is ably upheld in her antics by Grant Withers et al. Lively "extras" contribute quantity and enough quality to make the ensemble a pleasing one.

Direction, photography, and synchronization do well by the story, which concerns an exchange of wives by a couple of dissatisfied young men who are plenty glad to get their proper partners back, said p. p. having entered into a confederacy to make them feel that way.

"SKINNER STEPS OUT."

Produced by Universal.
Directed by William J. Craft.
Presented at the Rialto theater.

THE CAST.

Skinner	Glenn Tryon
Honey	Merna Kennedy
Jackson	E. J. Ratcliffe
McLaughlin	Burr McIntosh
Perkins	Lloyd Whitlock
Mrs. Crosby	Katherine Kerrigan
Gates	Frederick Lee
Neighbor	Jack Lipson
Neighbor's Wife	Edna Marian

Henry Irving Dodge's story, "Skinner's Dress Suit," in the screen adaptation of which Hazel Daly and Bryant Washburn once played, now serves as a vehicle for Glenn Tryon and Merna Kennedy, who do pretty well by it.

Skinner is a $35 a week third assistant cashier with the McLaughlin company. His wife thinks he is WONDERFUL, her opinion of him being based on his glowing accounts of his prowess. In her own sweet way she prods him on to ask for a raise—which he doesn't get . . . procure a dress suit in which he makes somewhat of an ass of himself—and in various ways brings himself to the attention of folks who can do something for him. The little man has a hard row to hoe till the end of the picture—when he finds his clouds all painted with sunshine.

Glenn Tryon is likable but his comedy is too obvious. Merna Kennedy is sweet and pretty. The best work is done by the elderly Burr McIntosh as Skinner's boss and by E. J. Ratcliffe as a business competitor.

The action moves along at a pretty good clip and direction and photography are all right.

See you soon.

Public Invited to Candle Lighting Service at Chapel

A candle lighting ceremony, symbolizing Christ as "The Light of the World," will be used in the Epiphany service next Sunday at 7:30 p. m. in the University of Chicago chapel, to which the public is invited. To appropriate hymns and scriptures, a candle taller than a man, and representing Christ, will be lighted. Three lesser candles, symbolizing the Wise Men from the East, are then to be lighted, and lastly all the candles on the altar. The service will close with the choir moving in procession down the aisles to symbolize the carrying of the light to the world.

Librarians Praise Newspapers for Rag Paper Editions

Commendation from the council of the American Library association, in convention at the Drake hotel, was forthcoming yesterday for THE TRIBUNE and other publications printing historical editions on paper stock of lasting quality. A resolution introduced by H. M. Lydenberg, assistant director of the New York public library, expressed appreciation of the service given to libraries in the introduction of rag paper editions.

Other periodicals mentioned in the resolution were the New York Times, the Detroit News, the United States Daily of Washington, D. C.; the Hanover Gazette, Dartmouth, Hanover, N. H.; the Unionist Gazette of Somerville, N. J.; Labor of Washington, and the American Mercury.

Dr. Paul Gottschalk of Berlin, a connoisseur of rare and valuable volumes, described his success in unearthing an autograph of Handel, the composer.

"I had a letter of Handel to his brother," he said, "discussing the death of their mother. Handel's signature is among the rarest of any of the composers. The signature and the last few words had been torn off the letter.

"Years later a collection in Leipzig was put up for auction after the death of its owner. I inspected the catalog and found this item: 'Small piece of paper with a few words and signature.' I sent an agent to bid for me. The scrap of paper fitted in exactly with the hole in the letter, and contained Handel's name."

Forrest B. Spalding, city librarian of Des Moines, asserted that the center of culture in this country as represented in patronage of libraries has moved from the east coast to the west coast. The midwest is second and the east a poor third, he said.

Near East College Fund Is Completed; $15,000,000 Raised

Completion of the $15,000,000 fund of the Near East College association was announced yesterday. Several Chicagoans were generous donors to the fund, which was raised during a three and a half year campaign as a memorial to the late Cleveland H. Dodge, whose death occurred in 1926 while he was working in behalf of American education in the near eastern countries.

Among those mentioned in the list of contributors are Thomas D. Jones, Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mrs. Douglas Smith and a large number of other Chicagoans. The institutions that will benefit are the American University of Beirut, Robert college, Constantinople Woman's college, the International college at Smyrna, American college at Sofia, and Athens college.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Harry Hamilton, 411 East Main street, Benton, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

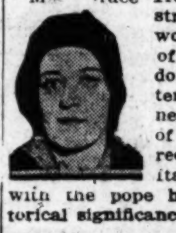
The Answers.

Henry A. Boeche, 35 East Wacker drive, claims attorney—I should say the government dry agents' promiscuous shooting of prohibition law violators and suspects. It is not reasonable that private citizens should be shot without the establishment of their guilt.



Miss Grace Trainor, 1314 East 72d street, student—The world encircling trip of the Graf Zeppelin doubtless will be written in large letters near the top of the list of great events. The reconciliation of the Italian government with the pope has considerable historical significance.

William H. Jordan, 4236 North Irving avenue, real estate dealer—Herbert Hoover became President on the 4th of March, a matter of small or great consequence according to the way things shape themselves during his administration. The Graf Zeppelin's flight around the world was one of the most spectacular events of all time.

Mrs Myrtle Swanson, 4835 Kimball avenue, public school teacher—The tragic slump in the stock market. Thank goodness, good judgment, or circumstances, we didn't get caught in the crash, but for many a man and woman it would have been a more prosperous year and a happier Christmas if they had never heard of the stock market.

Fred Hebel, 4606 North Racine avenue, photo mountings manufacturer—The stock market slump. It involved so many people of modest means. Those who bought stock outright and were able to hold on to it possibly may escape without serious loss, but those who had to sell are out of luck.

Religion Returning to College Campus, Ministers Declare

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Religion is returning to the campuses of American colleges and universities through an entirely new religious interest among professors and college administrative officers.

This fact was confirmed here today by more than 100 campus pastors from nearly as many central west colleges and universities and representing Catholic, Protestant and Jewish faiths. The conference of church workers in universities in the north central region of the country opened last night at the McKinley Foundation on the campus of Illinois university under the presidency of Dan R. Leland of Westminster Foundation of the University of Nebraska.

While campus pastors in the various churches still retain the responsibility for religious leadership of the students, they declare that they find the most effective results of their work through the professors.

"If I had to choose between going to a prayer meeting and attending a meeting of the faculty club," said the Rev. N. N. Comfort, Oklahoma university pastor, "I would go to the meeting of the faculty club. At the church prayer meeting Noah's whale is still discussed. They don't know hat Noah is dead. Just the moment that the professors realize that religian is alive they become interested in it, and convey that interest to the students."

The Rev. John W. Miller, student pastor at Ohio State university, said that his study of the college situation pointed very clearly toward the fact that faculties can be interested in religious matters. He stated that he undertook his work on the campus with the feeling that professors were cold in religion.

Hoover to Shake Hands with 3,000 New Year Callers

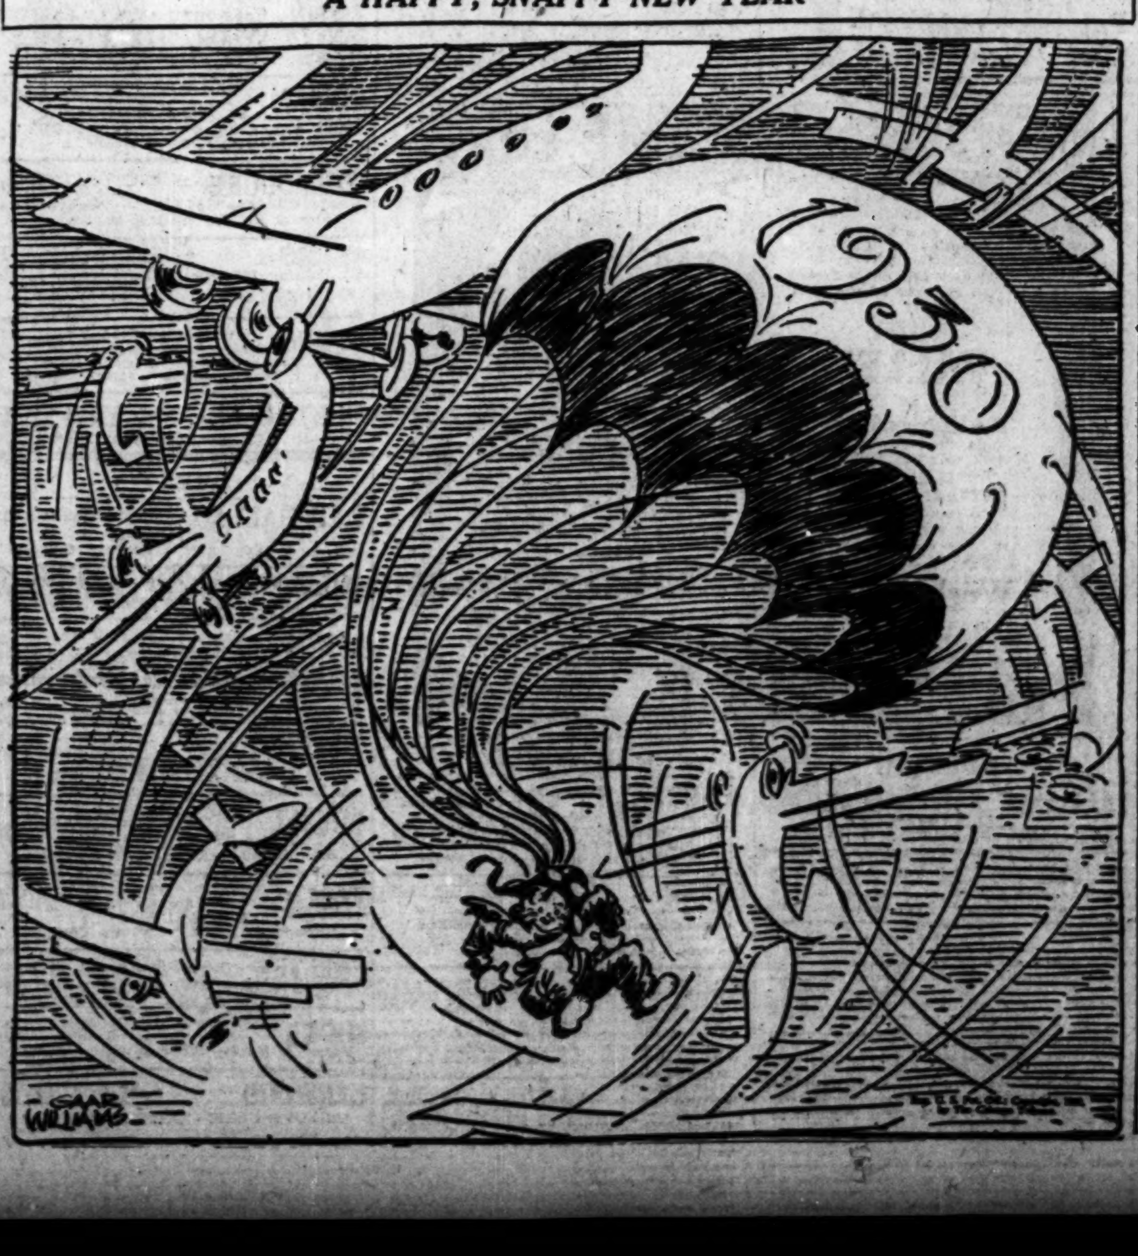
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—More than 3,000 Washington residents are expected to shake hands with the President and Mrs. Hoover at the annual New Year's reception tomorrow.

High officials of the government, headed by the cabinet, will begin the long procession through the White House at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, when they will be greeted by the head of the nation in the east room. From then until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, with a half hour for luncheon, the President will be busy shaking hands with New Year callers.

Tomorrow's reception will be the first since 1928.

A HAPPY, SNAPPY NEW YEAR



THEATER

MALVOLIO is not among the "great" characters in Shakspere; but it has, ever since Henry Irving played it in such a fashion as to have it entered by the London critics as one of his best conveyances, been attractive to the stars when, for one reason or another, they have felt impelled to put "Twelfth-Night" into their répertoire. Thus, when Miss Marlowe acted Viola, Mr. Sothern took up Malvolio; and I have been told that he regards his performing in the part as his best next to what he does as Hamlet. There is record that Henry E. Dixey was liked in the rôle when he acted it to the Viola of Miss Ada Rehan; but I found him uninteresting enough as Malvolio when, about fifteen years ago, he acted it with Miss Phyllis Neilson-Terry. Malvolio is just a comic villain—Shakspere's forecast of the professional Prohibitionist in the social life of 1930 in the United States: the potential sadist who, not caring for this or for that pleasure or pastime, seeks to deny it to all others. He has, of course, one excellent comic scene—that wherein he peacocks before Olivia in the yellow cross-garters; but the scene is not more comical than that of a Dry in the Congress who has his baggage searched and found wet. . . . And Mr. Leiber is Malvolio in the week's revival of "Twelfth-Night" in the Civic, finding plenty to do in the rôle, and finding excuse or reason for some of his antics in the circumstance that the second part of the play's title is "What You Will." Miss Vera Allen is the Viola. . . . Next week's bill will be "King Richard III."

Richard Bennett, the bad orator and good actor, will headline next week in the Palace, where he will have a sketch named "A Box of Cigars."

"The Field-God," by Paul Green, is indicated as the bill in the Goodman after "Tour du Monde" shall have run its course. Mr. Green wrote "In Abraham's Bosom," performed last season in the Playhouse.

Next week will be the last of "Queen-Bee" in the Cort. . . . The attraction to follow is not yet announced, but is expected to be a new piece with Lynne Overman in the principal rôle.

Mrs. A. Starr Best asks that, in the Drama League's playwriting contest, one-act Christmas pieces be sent to John Allen Stewart, Foster Street, Evanston; "full-length" secular plays to Mrs. J. L. Hawley, 4422 Oakenwald Avenue; and "full-length" religious plays to Mrs. Best, herself: her residence is 828 Michigan Avenue, Wilmette. F. D.

Belgian Princess Starts Packing Her 50 Wedding Trunks

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Dec. 31.—Princess Marie Jose of Belgium started packing today. On Friday night the royal Italian train with eight parlor and two luggage cars will start from the Brussels north station and take the young princess and her family to Rome, where she will become the bride of Crown Prince Humbert on Jan. 8. Though Princess Marie Jose has no time and probably could not possibly do any actual packing, considering that she is a princess, she gave orders as to how things were to be distributed in something like fifty trunks.

The two Maltese dogs that Prince Humbert offered as an engagement present, along with a ruby and diamond ring, will travel with the princess in the parlor cars.

The wedding gown and cloak of white silk velvet trimmed with a 15 inch border of ermine and a bridal veil of Brussels needlepoint lace, the gift of the entire Belgian nation, will be packed in a luxurious morocco leather suitcase, together with silvery white sheer stockings, lamé slippers, and white crêpe de chine undergarments.

Nearly a score of trunks were packed today by an army of royal valets and maids.

The gifts proved the hardest to pack. They are not only small in size but precious, such as a diamond ring which was the offering of the Belgian nation, a Brussels lace bedspread with the coats of arms of the houses of Belgium and Savoy worked in. There are bulky presents, too. Among them are a huge crystal dish from the Belgian government, a silver tray, the gift of war veterans, and a solid silver framed mirror containing the Belgian and Italian coats of arms.

'Conchita' Wins Praise for All But the Dance

It's Debunked "Carmen," in Critic's View.

"CONCHITA."

Opera in four acts by Riccardo Zandonai. Revived after sixteen years by the Civic Opera company, Dec. 31, 1929.

THE CAST.

Conchita	Rosa Raisa
Mateo	Antonio Cortis
A Forewoman	Constance Eberhart
Dolores	Thelma Votipka
Rufina	Ada Paggi
Estella	Alice d'Hermanoy
The Mother of Conchita	Maria Claessens

And some eighteen other characters of greater or lesser importance.

Conductor . . . Roberto Moranzoni

BY EDWARD MOORE.

But, if you will be advised,
You will have it bowdlerized.

It has always been the belief of at least one person that when "Conchita" was brought out in the gay days before the war, it was musically just slightly in advance of its time. That person still believes it, and is willing to add that the times have now caught up with it.

It is a curious sort of piece, an unsentimentalized, debunked variety of "Carmen," whose leading character insists that in spite of all appearances and all the strong language that she may have occasion to use, she is still what is technically known as a good girl. All that it takes is a good beating, which does not arrive until the last act, to make her a nice girl as well.

That is about all there is to the story. As matter of act, her protestations are a little unnecessary, in view of the way this revival was staged. There is a scene in the second act which, if you read the libretto, indicates a dance to be done only when the police are not present. Probably it would need a certain degree of circumspection in staging. But as Miss Raisa did it last night it would have been considered mild in a Y. M. C. A. entertainment.

Considered as a bit of drama, it just about ruined the piece. Too bad, too, because Miss Raisa was exceptionally vivid and exceptionally fine in everything else that she was permitted to do. As a brilliant piece of singing and acting, her Conchita measures up well with her Maliella in "The Jewels of the Madonna." And it would have been so easy by a simple device of concealment to indicate what should have been indicated in this brief incident.

Musically the work is unconventional, and charming, the high points of the vocal score consisting of four duets, one for each act, by Miss Raisa and Mr. Cortis, in all cases brilliantly sung, the rest of the music, quite as fascinating, being done by small rôles, and an atmospheric orchestra.

Two of the small parts, a pair of Englishmen, are credited on the program to Fausto Bozza and Tomaso Nascimbene. There is an entr'acte just before the final scene that is a marvel of beauty. There are other incidents, too, well worth your hearing. As I have said, it is unsentimental, but it has its own drive.

Tansman at the Symphony.

As was the case on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, Alexander Tansman lent his presence and his music to the concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra yesterday afternoon, repeating his solo performance of his piano concerto, but in the second half conducting some of his works that had not been heard before. These were three: "Overture Symphonique," Sinfonietta for small orchestra, and "Danse de la Sorcière."

It would seem that Mr. Tansman has immersed himself thoroughly in the modern musical idiom and managed to remember a good deal of it. His music sounds as though he were disinclined to go further down the spiny path of atonality than a number of his contemporaries, which is perhaps the reason why it is less of a strain to listen to his works than to those of some of the others.

For though it is difficult to confess a deep affection for his music—one is always thinking how a tincture of vital melody would transform it—on the other hand one feels little resentment. Hearing new music is frequently interesting, even though a good part of yesterday's auditors found their desire for novelty sated before the "Danse de la Sorcière" was reached.

Welcome 1930!

1929 has been the greatest year in our history!

55,000,000 persons have been entertained in the Balaban and Katz Theaters during the past year—a total amounting to almost half the population of the United States!

To serve over 1,000,000 people each week with happiness is indeed a privilege. To do this again—and more—in 1930 is a responsibility for which we have made full preparation.

Always in the lead—always seeking the new and the original—always planning ahead, improving, creating—Publix-Balaban and Katz Theaters will carry their screen, stage and music entertainment to even greater heights in 1930 than they did in 1929.

We have set the entertainment standard for all the world, and at the beginning of this new decade, it is our pledge to preserve, and to improve, that which we have fostered.

To all Chicago, We extend A HAPPY NEW YEAR

Engagement of Florence Ball Is Announced

BY THALIA

Happy New Year's greetings for at least two families will be mingled with felicitations and congratulations on the romance that concerns them both. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Young Ball of Winnetka announce the engagement of their daughter, Florence Paisley Ball, to Dr. Stuyvesant Butler, son of Mrs. Hermon Beardsley Butler, also of Winnetka.

Miss Ball was graduated from Wells college a year ago last June and Dr. Butler is a graduate of Yale university and Rush Medical college. He finished his interneship last year and is now a member of the staff of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital in Boston. The wedding is planned to take place next September. Miss Ball revealed the news to a group of her intimate friends yesterday afternoon, but there is to be no large announcement party. Dr. Butler has been here for the holidays with his mother.

The good old fashioned custom of New Year's day calls and "at homes" is being revived each year with greater fervor. The introduction of 1930 discovers a sizable portion of society holding forth at informal receptions at their respective residences and another large quota making the rounds for stop-in visits.

John R. Leonard, who receives with his son, Daniel Leonard; his daughter, Miss Harriet Leonard, and his son-in-law and daughter, the Hibbard Casselberrys, at Wildacre, his Winnetka place, is one of those who adhere annually to this pleasant tradition. The Kellogg Fairbanks are giving their annual large buffet luncheon at their residence in North State street, and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Storey are expecting their friends to call on them at their apartment at 199 Lake Shore drive between 4 and 7 o'clock this afternoon.

The reception Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. are to give is more of a special affair, to introduce their son's bride, Mrs. Cornelius Crane.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barrett of Winnetka are giving a debut tea for their daughter, Miss Barbara Barrett, and Mrs. Rudolph Matz, also of Winnetka, and her daughter, Miss Ruth Matz, are to hold open house.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Miller of 1500 Lake Shore drive and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strong, have received about 200 acceptances to their invitation to drop in for some "eggnog by the fire" with them. The Edwin M. Ashcrafts are having a tea-dance for their young daughter, Anne, and her contemporaries at their Evanston residence.

One of the largest of the New Year's day affairs is the luncheon Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clow Jr. are to give for their daughter, Miss Beatrice Clow, and her fiancé, Lloyd Laflin, son of Mrs. Louis E. Laflin. The Clows are opening their Lake Forest place for the party.

The Twelfth Night ball invitations are out! Stunningly elaborate as usual, they bid the recipients to the annual costume party that is really the gayest of the season's entertainments. The invitations are large folders of black, lettered in white and embellished with gold figures characteristic of the Alexandrian epoch that is to be the theme of this year's ball, and inclosed with them are smaller black cards with more gold figures, ostensibly suggesting the type of costume suitable to be worn.

The summons is couched thus: "To meet her Pharaonik Highness, Kleopatra, you are invited to join all other dwellers in her Mediterranean world at an Alexandrian holiday which has been arranged for Friday, Jan. 10, at 11 o'clock precisely, by the Twelve Knights."

The Philip B. Mahers are to give one of the dinners that will precede the ball at the Casino, and the Thomas Wheelocks [Dorothy Rend] are also planning a small dinner beforehand.

Miss Henrietta Countiss wore pale green lace for her belated but gay debut tea yesterday afternoon at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Whiting of 1534 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Whiting wore cocoa-colored chiffon. The debutante assistants included Rosemary Baur, Carol Bourne, Betty Dixon, Martha Fitts, Janet Kirk, Phoebe Logan, Frances Wood, Margaret Emily Lynde, Marianne Stevenson, Anne Small, Frances Weary, and Betty Williamson. Following the reception the Whitings gave a dinner and later the party adjourned to Miss Anna Lynch's studio for a New Year's eve party.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham of Evanston gave a midnight supper-dance for their daughter, Miss Cherie Burnham, last night. The party took place in the patio of the Burnham residence and was from 11 to 3 o'clock.

French Water Color Group Put on View at Art Institute

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Contemporary French water colors lent by Martin A. Ryerson have been put on exhibit in gallery 43 of the Art institute. They make a fascinating and colorful room. It is as if the walls were powdered with the wings of butterflies or the flying feathers of tropical birds.

Maufra paints with a more substantial brush. He, too, however, gives us color and light and beauty. Rather dark and stern is his "Entretat" but quietly beautiful is his "Antifer" and charmingly gay is his "Breton Village."

Vlaminck is present with "Stormclouds," a brilliant sketch in blues, indefinite, charming—trees and houses. "The Little Village" catches Vlaminck playing ball with colors again. The touches of black stamp this, as most of his paintings, for his own.

Degas is represented by two sketches of ballet girls. G. H. Sabbagh has two splendid compositions, one an unusually well done "Still Life" and the other the "Road to Shore," in which a road runs to the sea and there are trees and rising ground and two peasant women walking with a child.

Signac, Maufra and Vlaminck control the exhibit, however, and they lift it, carry it and place it in a category by itself, one that sparkles with life, color, beauty and exquisite grace. The black touches of Vlaminck and the occasional sober browns of Maufra tie to earth what otherwise might be considered paintings of fairy realms.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover observed the passing of the old year and coming of the new quite informally, with the members of their family and a few close friends, some of whom are members of their house party.

The secretary of commerce and Mrs. Lamont will be among those not receiving tomorrow as their new home in R street is not in readiness.

Mrs. Gann, sister of the Vice President and hostess for him, will not receive tomorrow as the wives of the members of the cabinet will, but she will attend the reception at the White House with the Vice President, and in the afternoon will make calls upon the wives of the cabinet officers.

The speaker and Mrs. Longworth also will be among those not receiving tomorrow. Mrs. Longworth has never had a New Year's reception, nor is she at home generally to the public on Wednesdays, the regular receiving day for the speaker.

Mrs. Frederick McCormick-Goodhart, who will receive tomorrow afternoon in her home, Langley Park, will have her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frederick H. McCormick-Goodhart, with her for the afternoon. Her other daughter-in-law, Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, will not be present because of illness.

Radio but No Batteries.

"A short time ago some one gave me a radio set, but there are no batteries with it, and I wonder if a reader has some I may have. I am a patient in this veteran's bureau hospital and cannot get them myself.
"E. M."

Perhaps you've recently invested in a new radio and will no longer need the batteries which served so well in your old one. They could be put to use here in providing entertainment for these ex-service men.

Foibles and Figures of 1929 Portrayed in City Club Skits

Events that occurred in Chicago and elsewhere during 1929 were parodied last night in a series of skits at the City club under the caption, "Scandals of 1929." A dinner preceded the show and there was dancing afterward.

President Hutchins of the University of Chicago, Mayor Thompson and Frank J. Loesch were among the Chicagoans to whom the cast, led by S. J. Duncan-Clarke, paid their respects. And the reputed battle for social supremacy in Washington between Mrs. Edward E. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, and Alice Roosevelt Longworth also was travestied.

Dr. A. W. Palmer to Take Seminary Helm Tomorrow

Dr. Albert W. Palmer, who resigned recently as pastor of the First Congregational church of Oak Park to become president of the Chicago Theological seminary, will take over the president's duties tomorrow from Dr. James Tufts, who has been acting president since the resignation last summer of Dr. Ozora Davis.

ENGAGEMENTS

The engagement of Miss Margaret Alice Neilson, daughter of Mrs. James D. Neilson of Evanston, to John Leonard Fix, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fix of Kenilworth, was announced yesterday at a luncheon given by her mother. Miss Neilson attended the Art Institute of Chicago and the Academy of Fine Arts in Evanston. Mr. Fix is a graduate of the University of Illinois and a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Dare Whitman of 640 Hill road, Winnetka, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Genevieve, to Donald Moore Hasletine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Hasletine of 4935 Dorchester avenue.

Society at the Opera

An assemblage of social notables attended the performance of "Conchita" last night before going on to midnight celebrations to welcome the New Year. Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson had with them their son, John Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. A. Watson Armour and A. Watson Armour Jr.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, whose box subscription is for Mondays and Thursdays only, engaged a box last night. Her guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Howard, Miss Lucy Martin, Mrs. Chauncey B. Blair, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Giorgio Polacco, Ove Vett and Edwin D. Kresm. Miss Judith Waller, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Strack and Guy Hardy were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson were hosts to Dr. and Mrs. William Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Foster and Kennett L. Rawson. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Drake and Dr. and Mrs. Lewis L. McArthur were with Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Dean Bevans. Walter H. Wilson's guests were Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bush, Mrs. Ernest Freund, Miss Irene Wilson and Robert Eskridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Peterson were hosts at dinner and at the opera to Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Guthrie, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Smith and Maj. W. S. McHenry. With Mr. and Mrs. George T. Leach were their children, Marjorie, Don and Arthur Leach, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Redheffer and Miss Anne Redheffer. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hibben Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Roger M. Combs Jr. were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Newton Hudson had with them Katherine and William Hudson and Mr. and Mrs. John H. McGibbons. In Mrs. William L. Hodgkins' box Mrs. Hodgkins' mother, Mrs. W. G. Press, and her sister, Miss Belle Press of Los Angeles, were hostesses to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter, Mrs. P. G. Lefens and Miss Katherine Lefens.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Schuyler's guests included Mrs. Ferdinand Peck, Miss Marion Cooper of Pasadena, Mrs. Arline Peck Warwick and William Schuyler. With Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze were Mr. and Mrs. George L. Cragg, Henry Cragg and Miss Medora Pelouze.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

Hens being highly energetic, to keep up their normal vitality during egg production a part of their feed must be of an easily and quickly digestible kind. Poultry authorities therefore recommend a properly balanced "mash" feed for getting the most eggs from laying hens.

A mash is a mixture of ground grain and grain by-products, animal protein such as milk, with meat scraps or tankage, and minerals. The amounts of different materials in a mash vary with the kind of grain most easily and cheaply available—the main idea being to use the feeds grown on the farm and properly to mix them with other egg making materials.

Before a hen can manufacture an egg she must have in her feed all of the materials of which eggs are made. For instance, to make the white of the egg a hen needs such feed as meat scraps or tankage and milk or buttermilk. When she has to depend on only what she can pick up here and there she slows up on her egg laying, or quits altogether. The mash is the best method of supplying hens with part of the necessary egg material.

Likewise, the mash is the most desirable means of providing bone meals and common salt, which are the only additional minerals needed when oyster shell and grit are kept before laying hens.

"I Love You."

My most embarrassing moment occurred several years ago when the song "I Love You" was popular.

On our way back to the office from lunch my girl friend asked me if I knew the words to the song "I Love You." I assured her I did, and began to recite them.

No sooner had I finished than two young men walking in front of us turned around.

You can't imagine how mortified and embarrassed I felt when one of them turned out to be a boy friend I had quarreled with a few days before. He probably thought I was trying to patch up things. Anyway, it worked, and we are still the best of friends.

Here's an Ideal New Year's Wish for All Parents

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A "Play Booklet" by Mrs. Bevans for mothers of pre-school children will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Holidays, special days, red letter days are a good invention. They all do something to you in thought and feeling. They break up the even tenor of your way, making you either gay, reminiscent, or thoughtful.

Christmas makes you the first two—gay and also reminiscent of other Christmases, either happy or sad. New Year's makes you the last two—reminiscent and thoughtful.

"What about last year?" you ask yourself. "Was it so good? And what about this coming year? What shall I do with it? Ninetten-thirty sounds so different from nineteen-twenty-nine. Can I make it different and better? And how?"

Naturally, because of my general interest in the subject of children and also because of my personal interest, my thoughts at New Year's turn to that part of our lives that is concerned with them.

Who, I thought, is wise enough and eloquent enough—who cares enough—to put into words a description of what we desire to do for our children? In reading that brilliant, profound, simple book called "Growing Into Life—a Magna Charta of Youth," by David Seabury, I came across this encompassing passage:

"The right of parents is to study their children, understand them; to learn all they can of each child's nature and then help that child to become his true self, to be faithful to his own inherent nature.

"It is the child's right to grow toward the light with the parent's help, according to the forces God put within each individual, even if that leads into utterly different directions from the biases of the parents.

"Most of all, the parent is or ought to be the guardian of his child's emotions, since mother and father, from the love tie, possess a natural contact with the inner world of the child's feeling."

I can think of no more beautiful New Year's aspiration for any one who really cares for a child.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Today we should like to make a plea to mothers who have unwittingly, perhaps, drifted into the habit of referring to their offspring as "MY son," or "MY children," or "MY baby." Mothers-in-law are included in this form of assault upon the poor adult male, who really contributed quite an important factor in the child product. They say "My daughter's children."

Children, any student of human welfare assures us, have a right to two parents. But to hear the type of mother to which we refer talk you'd think her youngster or youngsters were half orphaned. You'd never suspect they ever had a father. And in the light of current quick and easy disappearances of fathers it would seem where one actually was present on the immediate horizon he might be alluded to once in a while as part of the family. For that he is, so long as he sticks around.

If a woman had just cause to separate from her mate and the burden of the youngster or youngsters fell upon her, no one would deny her the pleasure of adopting the MY baby attitude, because it is something she earns the right to say; granted, of course, that father is not still contributing to the upkeep and that the just cause to separate was just.

The point we would like to drive home to the MY-woman is that she adds not a hair breadth of an inch to her status as mother; neither to her status as a woman. By putting her husband in the light of a noncompetent, which this one-sided partnership of hers certainly suggests, she reflects on her own poor judgment as a mate chooser. And there is something that goes heartily against the grain of every listener when a wife's attitude or words reflect on the man whose name she bears.

More often than not it is simply a thoughtless appropriation of a claim that has two sides—NOT ONE. After all, science has not yet evolved any substitute for father's very necsary coöperation in the scheme of progeny, and until such time as science does the youngsters have a right to hear something about OUR parents—not just about OUR mother. And there is another thing to remember: Dads are people with feelings toward their young, feelings of pride in, affection for, and responsibility about them. And if to keep the home fires going for them and for their mother his duties carry him off for the day, that does not put him out of the OUR partnership. On the contrary, he thereby reinforces his claim to a frankly acknowledged share in the parenthood.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

She's Not So Bad.

"Dear Miss Blake: What would you think of a girl who said she couldn't go out with me because she had to go out to a party with a few girl friends, but went to a show with her girl friends? WORRIED."

Give her another chance. The party may have been called off or changed to some other time.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Sheer metal cloth in beige coloring would make up beautifully in this design for an informal evening frock and so would dahlia purple transparent velvet, with the bows of the same shade. The two piece circular skirt with dipping sides is seamed and stitched to a two piece yoke, which in turn is attached to a two piece bodice. The sleeves are full length and close fitting. Made at home, this wouldn't be an expensive dress.

The pattern, 2627, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅜ yards of 40 inch material with ⅝ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

C. S. E.: AN ORANGE STICK should be used for cleaning the nails, as a pointed instrument is apt to cause a roughening of the under surface of the nail, where the dirt lodges. To overcome this roughening insert cold cream, allowing it to remain on during the night.

M. N. G.: TOEING IN IS A CONdition frequently found in children. It may be overcome by toeing out. If the condition is very marked have the child fitted to a straight lasted shoe, with a lift of one-fourth of an inch put in under the outside of the sole. The heel will wear out on one side. Then have it repaired.

Femmes Are All Playing Game of Hunt the Waistline

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Murders and scandals and neighborhood indiscretions may come and go, but the old reducing theme for bridge and tea chatter goes on at a faster clip than ever.

What this new silhouette has done to waning diet enthusiasms is the doctor's business. Is AGAIN the doctor's business, I should say. There was a lull for a while, when a nervous breakdown could be called an honest one—not a reducing aftermath.

Hunting for a waistline, they call this revived pastime, at which three-quarters of the female population is supposed to be playing.

"I had one of them once (meaning a waistline)," says Mrs. Roly Poly. "Wherever did I mislay it? I must find it quickly. I've got to have it for that dear little belted Chanel model." So Mrs. R. Poly and her sisters, more or less Poly, scuttle the ship for the quickest waistline turnover.

Perhaps you may have noticed that this here adviser on matters pertaining to silhouettes was never one for advocating freak diets! She preferred, somehow, to keep her customers out of sanitariums and other places of rest, temporary or eternal. When she got through with her customers she liked to see the bloom of youth still on their cheeks, under their chins, and the spring of youth in the soles of their feet.

She's been what you might call most awfully conservative on diet programs. Too much so, she's been accused. But she has seen in her not brief career the rise and fall of a half hundred or so freak methods of getting thin (and they FALL; don't forget that). Also, she has seen a deal of physical chaos left in their wake. So don't blame her if she sticks to her platform of sane diet and exercise, not too strenuous, but strenuous enough to keep the lazily inclined out of easy chairs and chocolate manned hammocks.

Of course, you have to recover that waistline! You just can't go anywhere this season (or the next, if I'm any judge) without it. You must get it back. And the way of this particular treasure hunt is in the direction of the dining room. If you're training down for that aforesaid little Chanel model, train so you can wear it eventually—not so you'll wind up in one of those hospital coveralls, which aren't so awfully becoming, really. Look in this spot tomorrow for help on how to do it.

The Clever Little Suit Is Always in Style

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—With all the tumult and shouting about elegance and mystery in Paris styles, the suit has come out stronger than ever. There was, indeed, dirty work at the crossroads of fashion earlier in the season, and a dastardly attempt was made to kill this useful garment which we inherited directly from the unfussy clothes in which men get about their business with such agility.

Attempts have been made in most of the fashion-hatching salons here to feminize the suit—a sure way to cut off its span of life abruptly—but the real tailored suit has come out of the fray smarter, trimmer and more in the ardent favor of fashionable women than ever before. True, it lost something of its former stiffly correct aspect in the fray—its collar is gone for the good of chic, and its boxlike jacket has been replaced by the kind of jacket you see in our sketch.

Please observe it well, this jacket, because it is what Paris calls "the princess cutaway" (the name is translated freely from the original French). Jeanne Lanvin made this suit, and she, with the rest of the greatest and grandest Paris dressmakers, just adores such jackets, which hug the waistline and are cutaway in the front. They look more like waistcoats which is just what Paris meant. There isn't any collar and a couple of big white broadcloth tabs are attached like clips to the left side of the closing, just add to the chic effect.

This suit is a sit-about, gad-about or run-about garment, designed to wear under your winter coat. It's made of black extra heavy crêpe marocain (canton) that is just beginning to be supremely smart in Paris again after a number of years' absence from styles.

Under the jacket is a one piece dress with a circular skirt and a bolero waist trimmed with one sideways triangle of white broadcloth in front and one in back. The black knitted wool hat from Agnès, the ivory pin that trims it, the white slip-on gloves, and the black antelope oxfords make this trim and not swooningly feminine suit one of the last words in Paris chic for daytime.

Tribune Cook Book

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

Potato Bread.

It is a bit intriguing to receive a letter asking for a recipe I printed eighteen years ago. The author says: "I was at that time a 'new housekeeper,' or rather, new at cooking. I made bread according to this recipe and every one who tasted it declared it excellent." She gives a few other details regarding this bread and tells how she gave up housekeeping for some years and so the recipe was lost.

The recipe in question has so far refused to come up out of the past, but ten years ago, out of a collection of forty or fifty potato bread recipes, the following was selected, tested, and found delicious when it was fresh: One and one-half cups of solidly packed mashed potato, two and one-fourth cups flour, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon shortening, one-hal teaspoon salt or more, according to taste, one-half cake of compressed yeast softened in one tablespoon of lukewarm water.

Wash and brush till immaculate three potatoes of medium size or enough to make one cup and a half of mashed potatoes. Cook these until genuinely soft, pour off the water, dry the potatoes a minute over the fire, then peel and mash them thoroughly while hot so that there will not be a lump of any size in them. Beat in the butter when the potato is hot then the sugar and salt. When it is lukewarm add the yeast which has been rubbed smooth in the water in which it was softened. Add no more water, but work in all the flour possible, usually about one cup. Let this rise until two or three times its original bulk, or until the dough is exceedingly soft and light. A temperature of 80 degrees is perhaps the best.

When the dough has risen to the extent add the remainder of the flour mentioned in the formula and knead until the dough is smooth and elastic. It must be a stiff dough because the boiled potato is wet. After it is in the loaf form, let it rise until double in volume, bake forty-five minutes to one hour in a moderate oven just short of four hundred degrees in order to get an interesting brown crust.

CUBA SUGAR MEN URGED TO PAY CROWDER A FEE

Low Duty Interests Run Short of Funds.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Information that American sugar interests in Cuba had run short of funds to carry on their opposition in Washington to a higher sugar tariff and had sought assistance from Cuban mills in paying for the employment of Enoch H. Crowder, former American ambassador to the island republic, was disclosed in letters made public today by the senate lobby committee.

Writing on last June 5 to Aurelio Portuendo of the Cuban Trading company of Havana, H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba company, said Crowder had been of much help to the Cuban interests in Washington since Jan. 15 and had an "approach to senators which is not excelled by that of anybody."

Sought to See President.

Lakin said he understood Crowder's "arrangements" with the Cuban mills for work in Washington on the tariff would terminate Sept. 1 and added that he was eager to learn if the mills had any intention or would be willing to extend the retired army officer's "retainer" for a few months more, "until this fight is finished."

Replying on June 12, Portuendo said he had been endeavoring to see President Machado to lay the matter before him, but had been unable to do so. He agreed that Crowder had been "useful" in Washington and said he would try to see Machado later. Whether this interview ever took place was not disclosed, only these two letters being made public by Chairman Caraway of the committee.

Action Is Postponed.

Saying he had been paying Crowder's expenses, but that Crowder had declined to accept any compensation, Lakin informed Portuendo that he expected some difficulty in finding enough money to continue meeting the expenses in view of the postponement of action on the sugar tariff.

If the mills would take care of Crowder's compensation for three months, "it would help just that much," Lakin added. He asked Portuendo to see Machado or whoever was the "proper person," and continued:

"If the mills can do nothing, I shall have to try to get the money somewhere, because I know Crowder could not afford to work three or four months without pay, though he would be patriotic to Cuba's cause to do so."

COURT RETURNS KIDNAPED GIRL TO GRANDMOTHER

Five year old Arlene Claire Shafer, who was kidnaped by her paternal grandfather when her father was on his death bed, was ordered returned to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Martha French, 66 years old, 3657 North Luna avenue, by Judge Dalton of the Probate court of Kent county, Mich., yesterday. The grandmother will file a petition for appointment as guardian in the Cook county court this week through Attorney Harry X. Cole.

Arlene had lived with her grandmother since her birth. When her mother, Mrs. Hazel Shafer, died May 10, 1028, her father, Harold Shafer, continued to make his home with Mrs. French. Last October he became seriously ill. His father, Roy Shafer, a city fireman of Grand Rapids, Mich., came to visit him.

The grandfather arrived Oct. 13 and took the child from her father's bedside, disregarding protests of his son. Mrs. French followed him to the door screaming. Her cries attracted neighbors who called the police, but the grandfather had fled before they arrived. These facts are set forth in her petition in Kent county.

Shafer died three days later. Mrs. French accompanied his body to Grand Rapids. There she was told by the grandfather that Arlene would be returned to her in a few weeks. At the same time, she alleged, she was asked to sign a paper releasing her from payment of any portion of the funeral expenses. Later she learned that she had signed away the granddaughter to Shafer, Sr. With this paper Shafer secured appointment as guardian to Arlene, who was left an estate of $20,000 by her father.

Before Judge Dalton Mrs. French testified that the grandfather had seen the child but three times in five years and was interested in securing her custody only because of the estate. She offered to waive administration of the estate.

CITY'S RECORD REFUTE CLAIM OF GANG CAPTIVE

George Cassidy, who told police raiders at the Moran gang headquarters at 127 North Dearborn street that he was an investigator in the office of Corporation Counsel Ettelson, was identified yesterday as James Fawcett, who has not been employed in the city's law office for a year and a half. The records in the office disclosed that Fawcett was sponsored in the city position by James W. Breen, first assistant corporation counsel.

Cassidy was present last week when the police raided the office and was arrested. He was released, in company with Si Gorman, whose fleet of trucks is operated in city business, after he had explained to the policemen that he still was an investigator for Ettelson.

TRIBUNE'S NEW PLANE LEADS TO DIXIE SUNSHINE

Leisurely Trip Points Way to Winter Refuges.

BY ROBERT WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The "Arf Pint," THE TRIBUNE'S new flying yacht, stretched its wings and flew south today, a refugee from winter, bound for the summer sunshine of the Gulf coast and Florida. The new year found it 500 miles away from the lands of overcoats and frigid winds and only a short hop away from the balmy breezes and straw hats of New Orleans.

The "Arf Pint" is on a leisurely cruise to Miami. Tomorrow it will fly down the Mississippi to New Orleans and on to Pensacola the following day. Later it will hop over to Tampa, to the eastern coast, and down to the winter playground of sun seekers, for a month of flying.

This red and yellow flying boat is a two motored Sikorsky amphibion, a successor to the "'Untin' Bowler," which was destroyed last summer in an attempted flight to Berlin.

Points Way for Others.

Like THE TRIBUNE'S automobile and its auto editor, THE TRIBUNE'S plane is migrating southward to point the way for others to follow. In a manner of speaking the new ship is 'Arf and 'arf—as much at home on water as it is on land. It is an amphibian because THE TRIBUNE believes that a land and water craft brings more assurance of safety. It has two motors because an extra motor gives the aerial tourist an ace in the hole if either of the Was pengines cuts out. That has never happened, however, in the experience of the Bowler or its sister ship.

Radio equipment, has been installed as another aid to safety, and today it demonstrated its effectiveness in keeping the pilot informed of the trends in weather.

Radio Operator John McAndrews had the earphones clapped to his head as the ship took off in the haze of the Chicago municipal field at eight o'clock this morning and periodically he received the reports from the weather stations. Every half hour the voice of the weather man could be heard relaying the data on cloud formations, visibility, wind direction and temperature.

Provision for Dark Days.

There wasn't much chatter on the aerial party line for the skies were clear throughout the middle west and the weather was little worry to the airmen. On a muggy day when a change is expected the ear phone of the "'Arf Pint's" radio picks up the voices of a half dozen mail pilots in the vicinity asking for more frequent word of the weather.

From Chicago to Urbana the ship's radio picked up the high buzzing code of the radio beacon which guides the mail planes straight to their destinations over an invisible air path. The signals were lost as the plane passed east of St. Louis where the broadcasting station for the Chicago-St. Louis mail is located.

At Cairo the "Arf Pint" left the snow behind, and farther on Pilot Homer Berry shed his heavy flying coat. With Little Egypt well to the stern, the ship crossed the Ohio river and picked up the broad Mississippi, following it down to Memphis.

Rests Beside Memphis.

Little more than six hours after taxiing around a mountain of snow in front of the gray good hangar in Chicago, the big ship landed here near a field where Negroes in short sleeves were loading cotton bales into a rickety wagon.

Memphis boasts one of the most modern airports in the south. Within a twenty minute ride from the center of business the city has developed an airdrome whose improved acreage is greater than that of the Chicago City field.

NATIVES OF HAITI CALL 'ATROCITY' STORIES 'FABLES'

U. S. Marines Cleared of "Hard Fisted" Charge.

BY WILLIAM LAWSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 31.—A careful search for some evidence of atrocities that Senators William King, William Borah and others in the United States frequently charge against American occupation forces in Haiti has proved futile, unless one considers imprisonments without trial and the graft of minor city officials as atrocities.

In the course of a 500 mile tour in northern Haiti scores were asked to cite specific instances of cruelty or brutality committed by American marines and marine trained Garde d'Haiti, or civilian agents of the various treaty departments of the occupation. They were told that an investigation of circumstances would be made on the spot, wherever such incidents have occurred.

No Recent Atrocities Recalled.

Some admitted cases of brutality by marines in the early days after the intervention of 1915 and the suppression of the so-called Caco insurrection later on. Not one case within recent years was mentioned, and the killing of a dozen or more rioting natives at Aux Cayes by marines during the recent uprising was not once cited as an atrocity.

Many peasants in the remote mountain districts had never heard of the Aux Cayes incident, an indication of their amazing ignorance of the world beyond their own mountain range. Some insisted Gen. Nord Alexis was still president of Haiti because of his likeness on Haitian coins. Others believe that Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, American high commissioner, is president.

They do not know, and do not care who is president, but talk volubly about the oppression of local officials and the failure of the courts to act promptly and fairly, with the result that friends and relatives, charged with trivial offenses, have been imprisoned for long periods without trial.

Bail Too High for Natives.

In most cases the sum, which might effect release, pending trial, is more than many of the peasants will ever see in cash in a lifetime. They point to filthy, evil smelling, thatch covered, and in many cases uncovered, market places as mute evidence of the embezzlement of communal taxes.

Communal taxes are exacted from peasants and townspeople for various purposes. There is no such thing as uniform accounting methods, and in many towns that were visited, a safe is unheard of, and the communal taxes are kept in the pockets of the mayor.

The result has been either outright embezzlement of taxes or wasteful extravagance. It increases resentment in the mind of the peasant, who cannot distinguish, knowing nothing of the treaty and its restrictions, between the American occupation forces and the Haitian government, which alone controls the courts and communal governments.

Minor Officials Corrupt.

Intelligent Haitians assert, and occupation officials agree, that the failure of the treaty to provide from the first for supervision of courts and conduct of communal affairs by the occupation forces, has been unfortunate for Haiti.

Occupation forces have worked marvels, it is pointed out, in stabilizing finances, building good roads, cleaning pest holes by modern sanitation, and checking disease; but the peasant today is still at the mercy of exploiting minor officials and corrupt or lazy courts.

RULES "L" STUB BLOCKING OPERA MAY BE RAZED

Structure "Nuisance," Ettelson Says.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson ruled yesterday that the stub of the elevated railroad in Market street in front of the new Civic Opera house "constitutes a public nuisance in the street and as such may be removed by proper legal proceedings." The opinion was written at the request of Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe and will be transmitted to the city council, which has asked the corporation counsel to take steps to remove the stub.

Agitation for the removal of the stub was started before the war, when the structure was virtually abandoned as a transportation unit in the elevated system. Since the erection of the opera house the agitation has grown, complaints being made that the structure is unsightly and cuts off a view of the beauties of the opera building.

Two Ordinances Passed.

Two ordinances have been passed by the council, one in 1914 and one in 1922, ordering the removal of the stub, the opinion states, but these have not been carried out. The elevated lines have used the stub to store cars for the rush period on the Lake street line and to carry patrons to and from the opera.

The city, when completing the Wacker drive improvement, moved some of the elevated supports along the stub at its own expense. Attempts were made to collect this money, but the elevated company refused payment. The opinion states that it is doubted whether the city may recover the money thus spent.

"Protects Train Movement."

Engineers for the Rapid Transit company pointed out that the stub protects the movement of trains to the west side in the event of a tie-up on the loop structure. The stub also is described as a part of the property guaranteeing the first mortgage bonds of the company and it is asserted that until some other asset is brought forward and accepted by the courts in place of the stub it cannot be touched.

No decision will be made, according to a statement from the Rapid transit offices, until a close study has been made of the corporation counsel's opinion. The opinion was signed by three of Mr. Ettelson's assistants, Edward C. Higgins, John G. Drennan and John Lewson.

Finds Exhausted Carrier Pigeon in His Back Yard

A carrier pigeon with 1173-A.J.24-E.G. inscribed on its legband was picked up by Robert Booth in the rear of his home at 442 East 34th street yesterday. Booth said the bird apparently was exhausted and that he would care for it until its owner could be found.

INDIA CONGRESS VOTES TO SMASH RULE OF BRITAIN

LAHORE, India, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi, elderly ascetic, who for years has been the symbol of the Nationalists' hopes of India, today, in a challenging speech, won almost unanimous support of the India national congress for his objective of independence.

The debate had lasted seven hours among those who favored postponing any action, those who at once would break all relations with Great Britain, and those who favored the middle path of Gandhi toward the ultimate objective of an independent India. At the final vote only 6 out of the 2,000 delegates voted against Gandhi's resolution.

The resolution authorized the all-India congress committee, an executive body of about 300 members, to launch, whenever it thinks the time ripe, a program of civil disobedience to include nonpayment of taxes and similar resistance to British rule.

It called upon Nationalist members of central provincial legislatures to resign and proclaimed a general boycott of such assemblies. It stated also that no good purpose could be served by representation at the proposed round table conference in London to discuss constitutional reform for India. It did, however, express appreciation of the efforts of Lord Irwin, viceroy of India, to effect a peaceful settlement of the problems.

Gandhi, in his speech, declared that his resolution could not stand the change of even one comma. If members of the congress did not endorse the appreciation of the efforts of the viceroy they had better hound Gandhi and Pandit Motilal Nehru out of the congress in the matter of the proposed boycott of the provincial councils.

He agreed with the Pandit that those bodies were played out, but he suggested that if the congress thought the councils could win independence they could go there, even though he personally felt this to be inconsistent with the creed of independence.

The only opposition came from Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya and Subash Bose, the one seeking to postpone any action for the present and the other calling for a declaration of a complete severance of British connection and the establishment of a parallel government. So little support came to these leaders that their amendments were voted down without division.

Meanwhile at the conference of the National Liberal federation of Madras, its president, Sir Phiroze Sethna, characterized the cry for independence as "chimera." He paid tribute to the good faith of secretary of state for India, Wedgwood Benn, and declared the way to India's heart was to grant immediately a full responsible government and dominion status.

New State Tax Rate Will Cost Lake County $104,000

The nine cent increase on each $100 valuation for the state tax will cost Lake county approximately $104,000, according to an estimate made in Waukegan yesterday by Robert J. Pearsall, head of the tax department in the office of County Clerk Lew A. Hendee. He based this figure on the valuation of a year ago in Lake county, which was $113,891,817.

WALKER SWORN IN TO SECOND TERM, BIGGER SALARY

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Mayor James J. Walker was sworn in today for his second term of office as chief executive of the city by Justice Victor J. Dowling of the Appellate division of the Supreme court, the simple ceremonies attending the event being enlivened by the mayor's announcement that he had the bills approving the salary increases for himself, the controller, the aldermanic president and the presidents of the five boroughs.

Effective tomorrow the mayor's salary will be increased from $25,000 to $40,000 a year, that of Controller Charles W. Berry from $25,000 to $35,000, that of Aldermanic President Joseph V. McKee from $15,000 to $25,000, and those of the borough presidents from $15,000 to $20,000.

MICHAEL BOLDA, 84, DIES.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Michael Bolda, 84 years old, collapsed tonight at his home, 631 Scott street. He was pronounced dead upon entrance to Emergency hospital.

BUSINESS MAN TELLS INTERESTING STORY

MR. ROY A. SIEGELSEN

Wife certainly gave right advice

"A man in my business is subject to frequent colds and coughs, because he's constantly exposed to the weather," says Mr. Roy A. Siegelsen of 2912 35th Ave, Minneapolis. "Our winter's very long and cold and I'm busy delivering fuel all over the city. I had a bad cough this winter that nothing relieved. Then my wife said to take REM and it helped me at once. It's strange how she happened to hear of it. One day she had a very bad cough and a friend told her she had something to relieve her. My wife said she didn't believe anything would help that cough. Well, this friend gave her a dose of REM, and it gave her such quick relief that she went right away to the drug store and got herself a bottle of it. The good results she got from it sold me on it too."

THE new MODEL 45 Bryant Boiler is streamline and completely enclosed, with all controls concealed. Housed in a cabinet of handsome, crystalline finish, it is such an attractive piece of basement furniture that it needs no screening or partitions and, because of its cleanliness, can be left exposed to view in a basement recreation room or in the hall or passage leading to it

The Bryant 45 is the only heating plant which makes the modern treatment of the livable basement completely practical.

Even if you only whitewash a basement room to serve as a gymnasium for the children . . . . or wall it inexpensively with composition board as a playroom . . . or fix up a part of it with a modern, colored concrete floor and furnish it inexpensively as a den or recreation room for entertaining . . . you will definitely increase the size and usefulness of your house to you and add measurably to its sales-appeal when you come to sell it.

SOME people assume that it is the man-of-the-house who has most reason to be enthusiastic about Bryant truly automatic Gas Heating, because it frees him so completely from furnace room slavery.

More and more, however, it is the woman who makes the initial move to get Bryant Heating, because of the hours of household labor it saves each week, the protection it gives to her treasured possessions and the improvement that it means to her family's health.

With Bryant Gas Heating the furnace ceases to be a source of dirt and grime, of greasy vapors or unpleasant odors. The basement is no longer a place barred to guests and forbidden ground to children.

No fuel bin or tank, no refuse cans or tools, take up desirable space. No one needs to play nursemaid or chauffeur to the furnace. "Tending furnace" consists principally of winding an 8-day clock once each week plus taking a semi-occasional glimpse at a gauge on the panel-board. The whole household can go out of town for a winter week-end and return to a warm and cozy house.

A single match is the usual "winter's kindling." There are no revolving parts to call for lubrication or frequent adjustment, nothing to wear itself out of kilter. And, finally, a Bryant "orders its own fuel" and Bryant owners do not pay for their fuel until after they have used it.

China and silverware are guarded from grime and rapid tarnish.

The daily dusting requires less elbow grease.

SOLAR SYSTEM ON 300 MILLION YEAR MARATHON

Science Bares New Antic of Our Universe.

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 31.—(AP)—One of astronomy's latest discoveries, indicating the world is traveling more than 2,000 times as fast as the Schneider cup record in a vast whirl including the sun and all the stars visible to the eye, was reported today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Existence of such motion long has been believed in by many astronomers and the discovery described today is speed measurement and verification of the whirl. In this whirl, not only the visible stars, but everything for many billions of miles beyond them rotate around a massive center. In the direction of the constellation Sagittarius, a center so distant that its light takes about 47,000 years to reach us.

A Canadian Discovery.

The findings were presented before the astronomical section at Drake university by Dr. J. S. Plaskett, F. R. S., Director of the Dominion Astrophysical observatory at Victoria, B. C. They were obtained in six years' study with the second largest telescope in the world by Dr. Plaskett and his assistant, Dr. J. A. Pierce.

All imagined speeds pale alongside the dizzy celestial gaits revealed. For they give the earth four separate and simultaneous motions. There is the daily revolution on the axis, about 23,000 miles an hour; the yearly trip around the sun at a speed of about 18 and one-half miles a second, or roughly, 1,200 times that of an express train; a "random" motion in which the earth is moving along with the sun in a journey not seemingly in the direct path of the great whirl, and finally the high speed spin of the entire nearby section of the universe.

300 Million Year Trip.

So vast is this whirl that Dr. Plaskett estimated about three hundred million years are required for one rotation about the center.

"The first point shown quite distinctly," he said, "is the rotation of the whole galactic system at a speed of about 300 kilometers a second, or around 200 miles, which would be more than 2,000 times the speed of the present Schneider cup record."

That record is 355.8 miles an hour, man's fastest.

The evidence on this rotation was found while checking something supposed to be "errors." These were certain puzzling phenomena in spectroscopic records of starlight, which Dr. Plaskett said astronomers for 20 years usually have regarded as due to errors in instruments and possibly partly due to an Einstein shift effect. They went by the name of the "K component," and were indications of star motion not well accounted for.

Studied 810 Stars.

Dr. Plaskett studied this speed in 810 B type stars. These are the hottest of stars, some of them he said, 1,000 times as bright as the sun. All are thought to belong to the same star family as the sun and all are within about 3,000 light years from earth. That makes them just a fair sized bit of the greater star system which constitutes the general wrirl.

The second important result of the investigation, he said, gets rid of the K component of error. Part of it disappeared in the general rotation findings. The rest of it, he found, indicated that certain of these B stars, the brightest of them, all in the southern sky, are speeding away from the earth and sun at rates averaging from six to ten kilometers a second.

These are "random" speeds, indications apparently of some not fully understood motions. Dr. Plaskett suggested that these motions may be an indication that parts of the universe are new enough so that they have not yet entirely settled down.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST

Indiana—Rain Wednesday; Thursday mostly cloudy, probably local rain or snow; colder Thursday.

Lower Michigan—Rain Wednesday or Wednesday night, probably changing to snow by Thursday; somewhat colder Thursday.

Upper Michigan—Rain or snow Wednesday; Thursday cloudy and somewhat colder, probably local snows.

Wisconsin—Unsettled Wednesday, probably local rain or snow, colder in west portion; Thursday partly cloudy, colder in east portion.

Ohio—Cloudy, followed by rain; warmer in extreme east portion Wednesday; Thursday fair and colder.

Kansas—Unsettled and somewhat colder on Wednesday; Thursday mostly fair.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL SYSTEM — COURTESY — EFFICIENT SERVICE — ALWAYS

Dependable for 79 Years

Modern life is highly exacting in its demands upon the railroads. Freight requirements are an illustration. The railroads must move freight in shipments ranging from packages to trainloads over distances of from a few miles to thousands, accepting traffic as it is offered, handling it promptly and delivering it safely and punctually. The dependability of the railroads in meeting such exacting demands under all conditions explains their pre-eminence as a means of transportation.

The importance which the railroads place upon the dependability of their service is seen when there is a threatened interruption of service. They have won public renown and community gratitude in fighting floods. They have as diligently fought against the ravages of snow, ice and hurricane. Disaster always finds them striving to keep their lines in operation and to restore service at the earliest possible moment on a line where service has been temporarily interrupted.

The reputation of a railroad is staked upon its dependability as a servant of the public. The skill with which the railroads strive to uphold that reputation is evident in the dependability of railway performance.

The Illinois Central System has such a reputation. For more than three-quarters of a century it has been upbuilt and strengthened year by year in dependability filling the exacting transportation needs of an ever-progressing territory.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

L. A. DOWNS,
President, Illinois Central System.

INDUSTRIAL ART SCHOOL IS 1930 GIFT TO CHICAGO

$360,000 Is Donated for Institution.

Chicago's auspicious start for the new year, it was announced yesterday, will include the launching of an imposing institution that has been in the project stage for some time. It is the Industrial Art school, to be opened in conjunction with the Art institute under the auspices of the Association of Arts and Industries.

On condition that $260,000 be deposited with the Art institute as trustee by Dec. 31, 1929, the Laura Spelman Rockefeller foundation pledged an additional $100,000 toward the founding of the school, the third of its kind in the country. Sufficient pledges had been received some time ago and the total amount was collected and paid to the Art institute yesterday. The leader in the project now reaching success is William Nelson Pelouze.

To Improve Native Art.

It is the purpose of the Association of Arts and Industries to improve native American art through this school, prototypes of which are to be found in every European country. England alone has 34.

Master designers of American industries up to the present time, it is pointed out by officers of the association, have been, almost without exception, foreigners who were trained in European industrial art schools. Exceptional opportunities afforded there for the study of this specialized art, they explain, is one of the principal reasons why foreign nations excel the United States in this field.

Manufacturers of Europe, it is argued, are constantly striving to enhance the beauty of their merchandise, an art that requires training of a distinct order, and that is the reason so much prestige attaches to imported articles.

To Aid Industries.

In the Chicago school the aim will be to encourage art in the way of improved design in American industries, to the end that products of American labor may be as artistic as those of any other country of the world. The burden of this instruction has rested heretofore with the industrial art school at Philadelphia and the one at Providence, R. I.

Among the generous contributors to the fund for establishing this center were Julius Rosenwald, Mrs. Catherine Barker Spaulding, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Max Adler, S. L. Avery, John F. Cuneo, A. B. Dick, T. E. Donnelley, Samuel Insull, Adolph Karpen, Frank G. Logan, George Lytton, Harold F. McCormick, Mrs. R. R. McCormick, George A. McKinlock, James A. Patten, Martin A. Ryerson, and Harold, Edward F., and Charles H. Swift and Mr. Pelouze.

Aurora Couple to Observe 67th Wedding Anniversary

New Year's day marks the 67th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Vosburgh of Aurora. Mr. Vosburgh, a retired wagon builder, is 90 years old. Until this year he rode a bicycle for exercise. Mrs. Vosburgh at 87 is as hale and hearty as her husband, and gets as much out of life. She does all her work, even to washing and ironing. She ascribes her good health to the fact that all her life she has had something to do and has not worried. Toleration and moderation are her husband's recipes for long life. Mr. and Mrs. Vosburgh are both natives of Luzerne county, Pennsylvania. They have two daughters, Mrs. L. R. Hotchkiss and Mrs. C. O. Spencer of Aurora.

JOHN W. GIBSON, COUNTY BOARD MEMBER, DIES

John W. Gibson, county commissioner and Republican committeeman of the 47th ward, died yesterday morning at St. Mary's hospital after two weeks illness of pneumonia. He was 42 years old and lived at 4230 North Winchester avenue.

JOHN W. GIBSON.

Commissioner Gibson was elected to the county board in 1926. Before his election he served two terms in the state legislature as representative from the Sixth district. He had held positions in the criminal court clerk's office and the sheriff's office. At the beginning of his political career he was aligned with Brundage and later swung to the Crowe-Thompson faction. He was an automobile dealer.

The county board members called a special meeting to pay last honors to their colleague. Resolutions extolling his services in political life and of consolation to his widow, were passed. The commissioners voted to close the county building on Jan. 3 in his honor.

Policeman, 40 Years at One Station, on Retired List

Policeman John Dunn of the Marquette district, who served forty years on the department without being transferred or disciplined, retired yesterday. Dunn joined the department on Oct. 4, 1889, and was assigned to the old Hinman street station, where he remained until twelve years ago, when the station was abandoned and its force moved to Marquette. He has a son, Sergt. John Dunn of the Desplaines street district.

Lindberghs Reach St. Louis on Flight Across Country

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Lambert-St. Louis field here at 2:35 p. m. today on a flight from Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis. They planned to remain in St. Louis tonight and probably tomorrow before proceeding west.

MRS. ANDERSON IS BURIED WITH POETRY, MUSIC

The funeral of Tennessee Mitchell Anderson, sculptress and former wife of Sherwood Anderson, author, was held yesterday at Graceland chapel. There was no minister. The usual eulogy and prayer for the departed was substituted by the reading of poetry to the strains of violin and cello music.

The body of Mrs. Anderson lay in a gray casket covered with flowers which had been sent by friends. Of family mourners there was but one—Mrs. Joseph Deck, Clifton, Ariz., a sister. Even word from Sherwood Anderson, who knew of her death, did not come. Forty or more friends were there, including Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry, a magazine of verse; Mark Turbeyfill, poet and dancer; Robert Lee Eskridge, painter; Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Mitchell Follens, bee, and others as well known. The service was exceedingly short and simple—the music, and the words of Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," and Arnold's "Requiescat," read by Eunice Tietjens, a poet.

In compliance with Mrs. Anderson's wish, her body was cremated. Her death occurred a few days prior to Thursday, when her body was found in her studio at 153 East Erie street.

LAMBERT, MUSIC TEACHER, DIES; GUIDED MANY

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Alexander Lambert, veteran music teacher and concert pianist, whose pupils number many of the prominent pianists of today, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile a short distance from his home today. He was rushed to Roosevelt hospital, but died without regaining consciousness. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Lambert was either student, teacher, or close friend of almost every important pianist for four generations. From the time when he was sent to the Vienna conservatory, with recommendations from Rubenstein Leschetizsky, at the age of 12, up to the present, he was close to the core of the musical world.

He was graduated at Warsaw at 16 and two years later made his first appearance in this country. He returned to Europe for further study under Liszt, and at the age of 21 he removed permanently to this country.

POSITIVELY DIFFERENT!

A most unusual club is being organized exclusively for children under the teen age. Its name, the Junior Good Habits Club, implies its purpose. Desirable results are assured, for we deal directly with the children, mailing special awards each month for doing the things they should do, but seldom do; however, enjoy doing as club members. The membership benefits are numerous, the enrollment fee small, the appeal universal. We furnish a prospective membership list, do magazine advertising, direct advertising, pay transportation; give special co-operation and opportunity for advancement. If you are between the ages of 25 and 45, willing to work, educated, and have personality, and want to earn $40.00 per week, write fully concerning yourself for an appointment. Some traveling. Give phone number. Address M F 422, Tribune.

POULTRY RAISING IS PROFITABLE.
1,000 PURE BRED CHICKS FREE
Spare-time profits now help nearly 300 people to pay for their homes. It is easy for them to keep up their monthly payments working with the chickens we furnished them. Some are already making profits over and above the amount of their payments. Eggs from Elmore Income Farms command a large market at premium prices. Here you can enjoy every suburban advantage, plus city conveniences. Your home will be complete in every detail. 3 blocks from station on rapid railway service to the Loop. Keep your present employment in the city and commute to your Income Farm in as little time as thousands spend daily on the street cars and trains in the crowded city.
EXPERT ADVICE AND CO-OPERATION. Our poultry expert and friendly, successful neighbors will help you. Chicken feed bought co-operatively by the carload saves much for you. We go the limit in creating a market for your produce.
$100 STARTS YOU.
When you have paid in 15 per cent of the cost of building and land we will build for you. Complete farms with all modern improvements cost from $6,250 to $8,500; includes large tract of rich land—home with every modern improvement—most modern poultry house—1,000 pure-bred chicks. Easy monthly terms. See this successful community—visit the largest co-operative poultry farms in the State—talk to those who are already making good here. We want you to know ALL the truth. Call, write, or phone Franklin 2650 for free round-trip tickets.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 31. — Pittsburgh, undisputed champion of the east, and Southern California, one of the strongest elevens on the Pacific seaboard, are ready for their intersectional football struggle in the Rose Bowl here tomorrow afternoon. The game will be played in the presence of 70,000 fans and will start at 4:15 o'clock, Chicago time.

Every seat for the game, which will be the athletic feature of the tournament of Roses Festival held in this city every year, was sold over two weeks ago. Today fans from all sections of the coast were offering as high as thirty dollars for a five dollar seat.

Trojan Reserves Strong.

Although neither eleven has been made a favorite, the Trojans have an edge in superior reserve strength. The lines appear about equal but Coach Jones of Southern California has so many substitutes who are just about the equals of his regulars that he can maintain his team's power and speed by frequent substitutions.

After Saunders, Edelson, Pinckert and Shaver have been sent against the Panthers, the Trojan coach can replace them with such experienced and effective ball carriers as Musick, Moses, Duffield, Mortensen, Brown, Hill, Becker and Hammack. Duffield is considered the equal of Saunders in all around ability, while Musick and Moses are hard line plungers. Hill is the fastest runner on the squad.

Coach Sutherland has'nt got the reserves to match Jones' substitutes. He has Murphy, Rooney, Edwards, Clark and Wagner ready for use in the back field and some fairly good men to take the places of the regular linemen. Sutherland, however, has confidence in the ability of his first string players to last through the entire struggle and he will not make substitutions until absolutely necessary.

Parkinson, Shaver Plungers.

Both elevens are expected to employ driving line attacks varied by end runs and off tackle smashes. Parkinson probably will be used to hit the line for Pitt and Shaver will do likewise for the Trojans although Saunders probably will be used on quick opening formations. Uansa will be the Panthers' hope at running the ends while Walchinus and Baker will carry the oval on reverses off the tackles. Pinkert and Edelson of Southern California are also expert in this sort of offensive play.

Parkinson very likely will do most of the forward passing for the eastern eleven and Saunders will hurl the ball for the Trojans. Both coaches rely upon their ends to receive the tosses although the halfbacks will be sent into the flat zones to catch forward passes.

Most of Pitt's plays will be sprung from double wing back formations. Southern California has a shifting attack in which plays are sent to strong and weak sides. The Trojans' plays are perfectly planned, and if there is the same coördination between line and back field that there was in the second half of the Carnegie Tech struggle, Southern California will be mighty hard to stop.

In the Wake of the News

Time has brought another gift,
So we make a happy shift—
Junking all our ancient sins
Ere the new parade begins.

Lots o' years been slippin' by.
Here's another one to try.
Likely lookin' sort o' date
Pointin' to a jollier fate.

Hope we get us started right,
While the record's clean and white.
If we get our system goin'—
Needn't be a dollar owin'.

Need to work an extra shift
When the bills begin to drift.
Need to pray a little more—
Stronger than we prayed before.

Help us, Lord, to what we need:
Give us sense instead of speed—
Nineteen thirty! Give a cheer
All the waitin' world shall hear!

Happy New Year!

It is not Wake custom to do any wholesale "swearing off" at the beginning of the new year. In fact, we seldom adopt any formal resolutions. Yet we, probably in common with a majority of humankind, do rather take stock of ourselves and what we have accomplished. If the head is not too heavy from the night before, it is a good time for introspection.

New Year's day does seem a milestone—more so even than a birthday. If it has been a good year, materially and in happiness, we hope for its equal. If it has produced events which one regrets or has yielded more than its share of sadness, we look for a better year. That change in dating one's letters from 1929 to 1930 brings to most of us the sobering thought that time IS passing, that we must plan anew the measure of our life accomplishment. The normal individual, with inherent optimism, looks forward to betterment in some form. That such betterment may be realized by all Helpers and readers of this column is the New Year's wish of its conductor.

MYSTERIOUS DAN SOLVES PROBLEM OF OWN IDENTITY

Just an Innocent Trying to Get Along.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Mysterious Dan Daly, concerning whose identity and technique much has been said and written the last few days, is a mystery man no longer. His real name is James Gary and he lives at 116 Reinhard avenue, Columbus, O.

Columbus neighbors say that while he's never won a fight, he is young, innocent, and eager to continue his fistic career. He even wants a return bout in Chicago with the Great Shires, fighting under his own name. He claims that when he participated in Shires' debut he went to the center of the ring to greet Shires with a cordial handshake, but Shires crossed him and knocked him cold before he could get his hands up.

Mr. Gary protests that he never has enacted a rôle with Shires other than that of Mysterious Dan, but that if C. Arthur is traveling an act he feels that he's entitled to consideration.

Would Join Road Show.

It is said the young man has severed his connection with the S. A. Healy Construction company in anticipation of an artistic career, and that Shires' fickleness has caused him some distress financially, Dan having spent $15 of his Chicago purse for a dress for his sister and having paid Mr. Fat Meade $10 for acting as his manager pro tem. These expenditures, what with car fare and one thing and another, have greatly depleted his funds, causing him deep mental anguish every time he reads about Shires' road show and somebody else playing his rôle.

However, we're getting a little tired of writing about the Great Shires, particularly since we've heard about a fellow right here in this state who admits he not only is a better man in the ring than Shires but is more versatile in every way, including answering all questions on the Bible, history, and literature as flung at him by scholars at the ringside.

Here's a Better Man.

We refer to Chief Coy of Peoria, whose printed letterhead proclaims him as a "fighter, wrestler, strong man, runner—the superathlete of the age."

Under date of Dec. 27, Chief Coy challenges Shires, then has the following to say about himself:

"I weigh about 150 pounds. I was voted the most popular welterweight fighter by the Police Gazette. You can write them and find out.

"I hold the world's record for playing the most holes of golf in one day. Two hundred and thirty-four (234) holes in one day. I hold all the marathon running records in central Illinois. I also am a top notch wrestler.

"After I beat Shires I will answer any question on the Bible, history, or literature. What the audience can ask me for about 25 minutes.

"Let me hear from you at once."

Then There's Red.

The intellectual forum idea is intriguing, of course, but most of the regular ringside customers in this city are restless fellows and we fear they wouldn't properly enter into the question asking. But we're no killjoy and are for education wherever we find it.

Another letter, from Red Gleason of Taylorville, also admits superlative skill. Red starts his letter by explaining that he is a horseshoer and blacksmith who "can fit and drive 90 shoes in eight hours." Here again, however, we think of the impulsive character of our ringside regulars. We do not believe there are enough horse lovers among them to be interested in watching Red shoe an animal as a preliminary to his fighting. And we're certain they wouldn't stick around eight hours to see him fit and drive 90 shoes.

It's surprising how many talented boys there are around the state. But while they're all hungering for action, Shires is up in Detroit, where he will fight Battling Criss tonight.

Yours—For a Grand Ride

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 31.—Primo Carnera, the large Italian prize fighter, arrived on these shores this afternoon and, as his first official act on American soil, plucked a cabhorse from between the shafts by the tail and swallowed it, raw and wriggling. Then he began to giggle.

"What is the joke?" inquired Mr. Leon See, his manager.

"Horsehair," said Mr. Carnera. "It tickles."

Leo P. Flynn Sends Envoy.

Among them were Uncle Will McCarney and Joseph (Yussel) Jacobs, the partners who chiseled Max Schmeling loose from Arthur Von Buelow, the trusting Teuton, on Schmeling's arrival more than a year ago; Dumb Daniel Morgan, Will Duffy, Pete the Goat, Joe the Goneff, and a representative of Mr. Leo P. Flynn, who was indisposed owing to his having eaten his family parrot on Christmas day as a protest against the high cost of turkey and the disrespectful tone of the late fowl's comments about Mr. Flynn's stable of boxers.

The parrot had a habit of squawking "Flynn, come pick your bum; Flynn, your bum has been interrupted again," and on Christmas the bird was silenced forever, but the evil it did lives after it, so Mr. Flynn's chisel was carried to the Berengaria's gangplank in the hands of a representative.

Most of the members of this committee of welcome had been members of the committee which went down to the Cosulich Line docks a few weeks ago to welcome James Joseph Tunney home from his European sojourn and they were momentarily astonished today to find Mr. Tunney himself at the Cunard line piers with the apparent purpose of welcoming a professional pugilist to his native shores.

However, it soon developed that coincidence was at work, for Mr. Tunney had come down to greet an English author by the name of Hugh Walpole or Tadpole or Poleaxe, or something of the kind, who writes books without any pictures in them, for which reason, naturally, none of the chaps in the committee of welcome had ever heard of him.

There was some disposition on the part of the boys with the chisels to cut Mr. Tunney dead in resentment for his snub on the day of his arrival, when he left them all, white and colored, waiting for two hours in the cold under their banner reading "Welcome Home, Gene Tunney."

The Boys Melt Toward Gene.

But, with that winsome charm of which he is a distinguished master, Mr. Tunney this time placed himself on terms of democracy and affability with the lads of his old set and presently Mr. Dumb Dan Morgan, who had sworn he would never darken the doors of the Tunney suburban manse in Greenwich, was discovered chatting animatedly with the conquistadore of the Connecticut hunts and calling him "Geney" again.

There was a bit of contretemps or something so near like one as to pass for a contretemps when at last the landing plank was made fast and the people began to come off, for Primo Carnera appeared before this Walpole or whatever the name might be, and the situation was such that Mr. Tunney really would have to acknowledge him or make a great point of not doing so.

Mr. Tunney met the emergency with fine grace again, hailing Carnera pleasantly and passing him a few genial remarks in the tongue of the Caesars and the Capones, which he learned while reading books without pictures on the Adriatic isle where he tarried so long last year.

All Rights Reserved.

Primo then passed into the circle of the gleaming cold chisels and the clash of steel on steel rang through the arched inclosure of the pier as Mr. Duffy, Mr. Pete the Goat, and

BLACKHAWKS, LES CANADIENS BATTLE TONIGHT

Montreal's Speed Artists Invade Stadium Rink.

Tied for Second

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The New York Rangers and Ottawa Senators played overtime tonight to a 1 to 1 tie in the last National Hockey league game of 1929. The one point added to the Ranger total by the deadlock gave them a tie with the Chicago Blackhawks for the second place in the American group.

The Flying Frenchmen of Montreal, most colorful of any team in the national hockey league, make their first appearance on Chicago ice this year when they play the Blackhawks at the Stadium. And as a promise or a threat, both teams are light and fast, a forecast of brilliant hockey.

The Hawks, stung by the worst game they've played this season against Ottawa, are rarin' to redeem themselves with a victory over Les Canadiens.

In contrast, Les Canadiens, who were shoved out of first place in the Canadian division by the Maroons, their city-mates and bitterest rivals, are just as determined to take over first place again by defeating the Hawks.

Montreal Fast, Clever.

Outside of such statistical things as the standings, the youthful but speedy Hawks will be playing the fastest, cleverest team in hockey. Having nothing of the brutal and vicious tactics of Boston and the Maroons, Les Canadiens have stayed on an even footing with them through pure speed and cleverness. As the Hawks also lack weight and depend on the same means of scoring, the game should be exceptionally clean but of dazzling speed.

Les Canadiens' famous line of Howie Morenz, Auriel Joliat and Art Gagne has been broken by the sale of Gagne to Boston, but Nick Wasnie has fitted into the old combination perfectly. Morenz, called the fastest man in major league hockey, plays center. Joliat, the left wing, corresponds to Johnny Evers in baseball. He's tiny, probably the only rival of Tommy Cook of the Hawks as the smallest man in the league.

Lepine Sets Record.

That line is famous but Pete, otherwise known as "Pit." Lepine, set a modern record for goals scored on Dec. 14, when Les Canadiens defeated Ottawa, 6 to 4. Lepine scored five of those goals, beating the previous record of four held jointly by Art Gagne, Nels Stewart of the Maroons and Johnny McKinnon of Pittsburgh.

MONTANA STATE FALLS BEFORE LOYOLA, 38-28

Loyola university scored its twenty-seventh consecutive basketball triumph tonight by defeating Montana State, 38 to 28. The western invaders, with a record of three defeats in the last two seasons, were unable to get started against the Ramblers, who established a 10 to 2 lead by the middle of the opening period. The Bobcats held Capt. Murphy of Loyola to three field goals, but Butzen, guard, got away for five.

Montana spurted at the start of the second period and cut Loyola's lead to four points, but wobbled and was distanced. Lineup:

BY HARLAND ROHM.

These Northwestern and Notre Dame basketball teams seem to be just about a match. The Ramblers crashed the line a little bit harder last night and beat the Wildcats, 22 to 19. They won by virtue of a long shot and a couple of free throws in the last two minutes after they had battled point for point through the last half.

As in the first game, which Northwestern won 30 to 28, the free throws decided the victory, for in both games the baskets were alike. Each team made eleven in the first game and each made eight last night. But the Wildcats missed eleven of their fourteen free throws last night while the Ramblers caged six of sixteen, which was exactly the three point difference.

22 Fouls Called.

It was rough, as 22 personal fouls called indicates, but not intentionally so, merely one of those traditionally hard battles that Northwestern and Notre Dame always play against each other. Usually about four men, two from each side, had their hands on the ball on rebounds, in mêlées under the basket.

The brightest spot of the night for Northwestern was Bert Riel, who covered the floor like the snow covered Chicago and at least twenty times dove into melees to come up smiling with the ball in his hands. Neither was the work of the two sophomore guards, Bob Lockhart and Bob McCarnes anything to be sniffed at by the conference teams who are to come.

Notre Dame jumped out in front, 8 to 1, in the first few minutes through long shots by Newbold and De Cook. But right there they stopped while Northwestern pulled up.

Second Half Close.

The second half found them battling point for point. Lockhart's free throw and De Cook's pushup after Newbold's long shot tied the score at 11 all.

Newbold scored from the foul line on a quick pass from Donovan and De Cook added a point on Riel's foul. Then the lanky McCarnes caged a shot from midfloor and Riel scored a follow shot to give the Wildcats a one point lead again.

Riel crashed into Newbold under the basket, and the Rambler's star caged both free throws. De Cook sank another long shot to put the Ramblers three points in front. Then it was the Wildcats' turn again and McCarnes scored on a pivot play, and Riel caged a one handed pushup from the side line.

Smith Drops It In.

Northwestern was leading by a point and tried to stall for an opening, but Donovan got a held ball on McCarnes. The latter got the jump but Smith leaped high into the air to take the tip and scored from midway between center and the foul line. Then Notre Dame began to stall and pass, and Newbold got clear. Walter smashed into him under the basket, and Newbold again caged both free throws to give the Ramblers a certain margin.

PITT, 38; OHIO STATE, 33

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Pittsburgh defeated Ohio State, 38 to 33, in an overtime contest tonight. The regulation game ended 31 to 31, Evans scoring the tying field goals for the visitors in the closing seconds.

The deciding points were made by Zehfuss early in the overtime period on a pass from Capt. Hyatt and looped in a field goal as he was being fouled. He scored an additional foul and Pitt maintained this margin during the remainder of the contest. Lineup:

BADGERS WIN AGAIN

Madison, Wis., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Wisconsin cagers rang out the old year tonight with a volley of baskets that smothered Iowa State college, 34 to 17, in the Badger's fourth and last pre-conference contest.

The Cardinals blazed through their highest total of points this season, in the meantime holding the Iowans to four field goals.

GIANT CARNERA EATS HIS FIRST MEAL IN U. S. A.

Managers Ambush Italian Pugilist.

Mr. Good-Time Charlie Friedman, native Americans, fell in around the Italian gladiator, announcing that they had chiseled him first and would defend him with their true blades until the last drop. This was taken to mean the last drop of Scotch, as Mr. Duffy and Mr. Good-Time Charlie are in the night club business and it was accepted as a very fearsome defi because, naturally, boys in this business are presumed to have a great deal of Scotch.

The announcement caused marked nonplusment, too, because it had been supposed that the chiseling would begin at the pier with a fair field and no favor and none of the other boys had been prepared to hear that Primo was chiseled before he ever set foot on the boat to sail for the U. S. A. But it seems that Mr. Good-Time Charlie happened to be in Paris and chiseled into Primo several weeks ago in the name of himself, Mr. Duffy, Mr. Pete the Goat, and American sportsmanship. Thus there was practically nothing left to chisel and the rest of the sportsmen sheathed their weapons and piled into taxicabs to roll uptown to watch Primo eat.

"We are going to feed him at 8 o'clock tonight," Mr. Duffy announced.

"What does he eat?" the sport writers cried.

"Steers," said Mr. Duffy. "Three or four steers."

"On the hoof?" the boys exclaimed.

"No; we chop off the hoofs," said Mr. Duffy.

"What does he drink?"

"Nothing but gin and vermouth," Mr. Duffy said, "but only in moderation. We have a cocktail waiting in the bath tub up at the hotel, unless somebody has pulled the plug. After that we may let him have two or three casks of wine becauee this is New Year's eve, but this boy lives clean and doesn't care for much alcohol, besides which he is a guest in our country and he is going to live up to our laws like all the rest of us."

Leon See Worried.

Arriving at the hotel, Primo shook off his overcoat and tossed it toward the bed but it fell on Mr. Jack Farrell, the boxing writer, and he tumbled about the floor like a fox terrier under a rug, yelling "The whole thing is a plot. I am being kidnaped."

Mr. Leon See, the Frenchman who first discovered Primo in his native state about thirteen months ago, seemed rather uneasy about his status and even a trifle impressed by the flashing of the chisels although he had a very interesting time in the French infantry, himself, winning all the important medals for valor and was not much intimidated by the German saw-tooth bayonet in those days.

He asserted himself as spokesman for Primo Carnera every now and again speaking his piece in the rigmarole fashion of a high-pitch professor lecturing on the astounding natural oddities of some incarnated Cariff giant.

Primo's 23 Years Old.

"Primo," he said, "was born in Venice 23 years ago and left home at the age of 12 in order to simplify his father's task of feeding the family. Until three years ago he had never worn shoes but wrapped his feet in burlap sacking because he could not find shoes big enough and couldn't have bought them anyway.

"When I discovered him he was working in the amusement business with a circus, carrying water to the elephants and vice versa, and he weighed 300 pounds and was going deeper into debt every day. That is to say, he was earning about one dollar a day and eating about two dollars worth of food every day. He would eat seven or eight loaves of bread at a meal and was starving to death.

"The day I found him he had just lost his job with the circus. It seems that an elephant had disappeared from the herd and the owner of the circus accused Primo. Well, that elephant was Primo's friend so Primo merely answered, 'Sir, I am not a cannibal,' and gave up his employment.

"At other times since he left home as a little boy of 200 pounds he has worked as an artist, both on tiled floors and on canvas."

"Do you mean," inquired Mr. Duffy, "that he fights in saloons as well as in the squared circle?"

Primo an Art Lover.

No, I mean he lays tiles in very beautiful designs and also paints landscapes. He loves art. That is why he brought along this gentleman here. Messieurs, I have the honor to present this gentleman here, Monsieur Louis Berings, the artist of Le Matin, Paris. Primo wished to continue his art studies and therefore has taken over this gentleman's contract with Le Matin and is paying him double salary merely to attend him in America and draw pictures for him."

Primo has been tentatively engaged to fight in the Garden on Jan. 23. Jim Maloney, Ricardo Bertazolla and K. O. Christner are being considered as his first opponent.

Primo is rather fine drawn just now due to strict training, being down to 284 pounds. He is six feet nine inches tall and it took two hods of concrete to fill a small cavity in one of his teeth on board the ship. He has had 19 prize fights which he admits. But it seems that he does not admit of several contests in which he was belted on his chin by athletes of much less tonnage.

For instance, one Moise Bouquillon, a middleweight, pestered him in a ten round fight in Paris last summer, with such sprightly vigor that Primo advanced to the rear like Gene Tunney doing a masterly retreat and didn't land a blow all evening.

Frans Diener of Germany won a decision over him, too, but Primo, nevertheless, claims 17 knockouts prior to his two foul fights with Willie Stribling, the Moby Dick of the Dry Tanks, within the last two months. Stribling fouled Primo in the first of these and Primo fouled him back in the second one. These are the handsomest milestones along the route of Primo's career to date.

MOON MULLINS—HAPPY NEW YEAR!

SMITTY—PLANE TALK

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

BY DON MAXWELL.

Happy New Year!

But before we talk about the year that is just begun, didn't you have a lot of fun in the one that is past, watching and reading about sports? Didn't you enjoy watching 300 sturdy boys box for Golden Gloves, and weren't they champions, even if they did get humbled by New York's rowdies?

And didn't you find a new spice in baseball because of the Cubs?

Didn't you get your money's worth watching Hack Wilson smother himself in dust and swing from the heels, and weren't his homers the longest you've ever seen go flying over fences?

Didn't Rogers Hornsby look better in a Chicago uniform than he did in the uniform of a Card, a Giant, or a Brave? Didn't you cheer when Pat Malone hurled that old fire ball, Cuyler stole second, or Heathcote pegged home from right field?

Didn't the strenuous pitching of earnest Guy Bush and his victory in the world series take some of the sting out of the Cub debacle?

Happy New Year!

But before we start making wishes, and planning, and resolving, wasn't the football season last year made more worth while when A. A. Stagg took a mediocre team down to Princeton and won? And doesn't the recollection of that passing attack with which the Maroons baffled those tall invaders from Washington so that they eventually were beaten, 26 to 6, add a memorable page to Chicago's gridiron history?

And do you suppose Notre Dame will ever have a more brilliant season?

Happy New Year!

But just a minute—

Didn't the last year with its Big Ten-Iowa controversy, with the pot calling the kettle black, and the kettle at first denying, then admitting, give you a new and interesting insight into the workings of the professorial mind and a new chuckle over our amateur codes?

And didn't Jim Mullens and Art Shires inject some fine comedy into the present solemn and uninteresting boxing situation?

Happy New Year!

We're hoping it brings—

Sixteen Golden Gloves champions who on March 19 will knock sixteen cocky New York champions clear back to the wicked city from whence they hail.

A Cub team outdazzling the sun.

A sound thrashing for Jack Sharkey.

The Stanley cup for the Blackhawks.

Better luck for Capt. Hank Bruder; more material for Stagg; good health for Knute Rockne, intelligent athletic leadership at Iowa, absence of hypocrisy in the Big Nine, the finest racing in the country with at least one winner a month for every one.

Happy New Year!

This isn't meant for preaching, but we're wishing for all of you a year in which work is sport, and good sport, and winning gives you thrills, and losing is forgotten in the attempts at winning.

There's a little fellow working not far from this office who for two years has been one of the first youths to enter the Golden Glove tournaments. Both years he was licked in his first bout. Last night he came in to say he wanted to fight again.

"But aren't you tired of being whiped?" we asked. "No," he grinned, "I get fun out of trying."

Happy New Year!

RACE PROMOTER DISAPPEARS ON EVE OF MEETING

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Whether a 15 day race meet at Pompano track near here will begin tomorrow as scheduled was problematical tonight following the alleged disappearance of John Bockley, the promoter.

Employés of the plant and George E. Bassett Jr. of St. Augustine, Bockley's attorney, had not seen the promoter since yesterday, when Bockley went to Miami for the avowed purpose of borrowing money to meet the pay roll.

Ke-Nash-A Blue Streaks Win Fifth Straight Game

Kenosha, Wis., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Ke-Nash-A Blue Streaks, third placers in the National Basketball tournament at Kansas City last year, won their fifth straight game of the year, without a defeat, by toppling Lombard College of Galesburg, Ill., 37 to 18, here tonight.

St. Patrick, Madonna Meet in K. of C. Feature Today

St. Patrick's will meet Madonna in a battle for first place in the central division of the Knights of Columbus league this afternoon at St. Rita's gymnasium.

$5,000 Stake Tops Today's Race Program

New Orleans, La., Dec. 31.—[Special.]—Paul Bunyan, the Chicago colt owned by L. M. Severson, and C. H. Trotter's Chancellor were the choices in the betting tonight for the $5,000 added New Year's day handicap which features the turf opening at the Fair Grounds track here tomorrow. Where the betting men congregated during the gay New Year's eve celebration odds of 5 to 2 were offered against either Paul Bunyan or Chancellor.

The largest racing crowd of the winter is expected to gather at the Fair Grounds tomorrow for the opening of the 54 day season. About $460,000 in stakes and purses is to be given away during the 54 days and practically all the better grade horses in training will go into action at some time or other during the season.

A field of 13 was named overnight for the New Year's day handicap, which is at a mile and a sixteenth. Patriacia Marian, Galahad, War Insitgator, Old Slip, and Calf Roper were others which had a following in the overnight betting.

The Culver Military purse, which was the topliner on the closing Jefferson Park card this afternoon, was won by Taddywawa in a thrilling finish in which Comet was placed second, Bridegroom third and Sanford fourth. The four leaders finished noses apart. In the betting Taddywawa paid $9.20. She was ridden by Jockey R. Deprini.

Sportsmen Take Stock of Wild Life for 1930

BY BOB BECKER.

New Year's day is a good time for sportsmen to take an inventory of "stock on hand" and plan for the coming year.

With the captains of industry outlining plans for expansion and production, there is no reason why the American business of outdoor sport, involving something like 8,000,000 hunters, upward of 12,000,000 fishermen, and uncounted thousands of bird fans, canoeists, campers, trap shooters, and other outdoor fans should not coöperate on national programs of conservation, game propagation, and other features which would assure more sport in forest, field, and on water.

First, taking stock of the present condition of wild life in America today, here is the picture. The following birds are extinct: The passenger pigeon (last survivor died in 1914); the great auk, Labrador duck, and the Carolina parrakeet. The parrakeet is believed to be extinct.

And now, Mr. Sportsman, take a look at these birds which are vanishing: The trumpeter swan (only a few individuals left), the whooping crane, the heath hen (just one solitary bird is living in New England), and the California condor (very rare).

And here are the birds and animals in the imperiled class, according to the American Game Protective association. They have been going fast. Unless sportsmen and conservationists get together on protective measures it won't be long before they are extinct. This is the list: Wild turkey, sage grouse, golden plover, prairie chicken, upland plover, sandhill crane, marbled godwit, Hudsonian godwit, long billed curlew, mountain sheep, mountain goat, antelope, and grizzly bear.

One bright spot in the picture is the fact that through the activities of conservation organizations the elk, deer, and wood duck have been increased. But there is no use kidding ourselves on the status of all water fowl. With their nesting grounds being eliminated, with drainage taking thousands of acres of rest grounds from them, and heavy shooting making severe inroads in their numbers, the duck and goose population is not reassuring. During 1930 it behooves sportsmen to get behind the bill now before congress to reduce the federal bag limit to 15 ducks a day and to see that congress provides money to go ahead with game refuges and public shooting grounds.

JUNIOR, BOYS' NET TITLES TO BE DECIDED TODAY

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Billy Jacobs of Baltimore City college and John Richardson of Dartmouth will fight it out tomorrow for the national junior indoor tennis championship, while Bernard Friedman of West Philadelphia High school and Marco Hecht of Dewitt Clinton High school, New York, will battle for the boys' crown.

Friedman and Hecht, paired together, advanced to the final round of the boys' doubles as well. Qualifying to oppose them in the final, Verstraaten and Frankie Parker, 13 year old Milwaukee lad, subdued Julius Rosen and Abraham Shapiro of Far Rockaway High school, 6-1, 6-1.

DAVENPORT BEATS MOLINE.

East, West All-Stars Meet on Grid Today

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 31.—(AP)—With starting lineups for both teams tentatively decided upon, football squads of east and west went through light workouts today in final preparation for the annual all-star battle here tomorrow at Kezar stadium.

Coach Percy Locey sent his western stars through their paces at St. Mary's college in the Moraga valley, while Andy Kerr's easterners trotted through formations at Stanford university's practice fields.

Tomorrow's game will be the fifth annual renewal of the benefit game for patients in the Shriners' hospital here for crippled children. Tommy Dowler, half back from Colgate, may not play the game. A wrenched knee has kept him out of the east's recent practice sessions. Calderwood and Erickson of Northwestern and Mooney of Georgetown, all of the eastern eleven, nurse minor bruises, but will be able to play.

The west's injured trio—Lom of California, Churchill of Oklahoma, and Sloan of Nebraska—have improved so rapidly that Lom and Churchill have been tentatively listed as starters by Coach Locey.

SOUTH FEARS WELSH.

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Gridiron stars of the southwest and midwest took their final workouts today in preparation for the second annual Dixie classic here tomorrow.

Both units used Ownby stadium, scene of the battle, for their closing drills. Coach Ray Morrison's southwest group polished up its plays for the last time and then turned the field over to Jimmy Phelan and his husky squad.

Pest Welch, Purdue half back, looks like the lad who must be stopped if the southwest is to emerge with a victory. The midwest offense is expected to revolve about the big fellow, who will have a huge line to clear the way for him.

FINAL AT ATLANTA.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Football teams from the upper and lower regions of the Southern Conference compete here tomorrow in a Shrine charity game.

Stumpy Thomason, Georgia Tech's half back, is captain of the Cardinal team from the south, and Gene McEver, scoring ace from Tennessee, leads the northern Blues.

READY AT DENVER.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Signal and blackboard drills were on today's final practice programs for the all-star football teams of the Rocky mountain and North Central conferences, who clash tomorrow in a charity game sponsored by the Denver Lodge of Elks.

Garbisch, Football Star, to Wed Bernice Chrysler

It May Interest You to Know—

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The experts already have agreed that the Yankees, while otherwise powerful, are going to be embarrassed next season by a shortage of pitching strength. Herb Pennock is not expected to come back. He simply has grown too old for the job. Col. Ruppert won't admit it, but he still has hopes of inducing the Red Sox to let him have, at a price, the services of Big Ed Morris.

President William Veeck of the Cubs provides an explanation as to why he hasn't put over the deal he promised when he returned from the New York meetings two weeks ago. He made a National owner an offer for a player, presumably a catcher. The owner said he would think it over and wire either an acceptance or rejection of the proposition. So far as Veeck knows the owner is still thinking.

Mr. McGraw, who manages the Giants, has discovered why the Athletics scored ten runs in one inning and nosed out the Cubs in the second last game of the world series. Mr. McGraw says Catcher Taylor should have done something like throwing the ball away or getting into an argument. Anything to give the pitcher time to settle. The only significance of Mr. McGraw's words of wisdom [Mex] is that Taylor once was a Giant. McGraw never overlooks a chance to belittle some man he once owned. His expressions are not sufficient to eclipse the fact that he has made more bum trades than all the other pilots put together.

Whenever a new youngster comes into the American league, Henry Edwards, the circuit's publicity expert, hastens to collect the vital statistics on the fellow. Among the stock questions is: "Are you a right or left hander." A reply received the other day from a rookie conveyed the information in his own writing that he was "rite handed."

The Phillies didn't figure as contenders in the National league race but at least accomplished something not equaled by any of the other Heydler teams. Eight of Bert Shotton's regulars hit in the .300 class. They were O'Doul, Klein, Davis, Whitney, Thompson, Sothern, Hurst and Friberg.

The Cubs made 75 home runs in their home park last season. The visitors produced 43. In 1928 the Cubs exploded only 39 circuit blows in their own yard against 17 by visiting teams.

Alex M. Hooks, who expects to catch on as first sacker with the Cleveland Indians, is a former Southern Methodist university athlete. He was a four letter man for two years, but it is feared the letters will not assist him materially when he tries to hit big league pitching.

NEW YORK RING CHIEFS ABOLISH JUNIOR TITLES

Bass and Callahan Lose Their Crowns.

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission bade farewell today to an old member and faced the fistic problems of 1930 with a drastic set of informal New Year's resolutions hitting at major evils in the boxing industry.

After passing a resolution of appreciation for the efforts of George E. Brower, a member of the commission for the last six years, who resigned today to become district attorney of Kings county, Commissioners James A. Farley and William Muldoon cleared the record for 1929 and took their first shots at the problems of the coming year.

Abolish Junior Titles.

The solons abolished junior championships, with the main blow aimed at the junior lightweight class. The purses of Benny Bass, Philadelphia socker, and Tod Morgan, the last champion of this division, still are withheld at the commission. Bass knocked out the titleholder in two rounds in Madison Square Garden Dec. 20, while gamblers in the lobby pleaded for wagers with odds 6 to 1 on the challenger.

The commissioners, believing that the battle was not fought on its merits, have been unable to discover definite proof of alleged fraud. Abolishing the 130 pound division, created seven years ago by the late Tex Rickard's request for Johnny Dundee, strikes principally at Bass. Complicated financial arrangements alleged to have been made before the match would, if true, cost Benny $20,000 to win a title now worthless.

Order Light Heavy Bout.

The only other championship involved is the junior welterweight title at 140 pounds, now in the possession of Mushy Callahan, Chicago.

Warming to its task, the commission leveled a blast at crack fighters who campaign among ordinary opponents and laid down the law to the final pair of light heavyweights remaining in the elimination series for Tommy Loughran's vacated crown. Lou Scozza and Jimmy Slattery, both of Buffalo, were ordered to sign for a title match by Jan. 10 or be declared null and void in favor of two more belligerent 175 pounders.

Chicago to Get N. C. A. A. Track Meet

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Clearing the ground for the fireworks that are expected to develop tomorrow, the National Collegiate Athletic association council today met, approved of 1930 dates and locations, disposed of routine business and adjourned.

Chicago was awarded the 1930 track and field meet, the date to be decided upon later; Harvard was named as the location for the swimming meet, March 28 and 29, while the wrestling tournament went to Penn State on the same dates.

Today's session of the council was preliminary to the twenty-fourth annual convention tomorrow, at which Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, president of the organization since its instigation, will step down from the presiding chair for the first time.

While the N. C. A. A. council was preparing for the general discussion of the Carnegie report tomorrow, Albert I. Prettyman of Hamilton college was decrying that he called the tendency of college athletic directors to strive to produce winning teams because of large gate receipts.

William R. La Porte of the University of Southern California was elected president of that society to succeed Prettyman, while T. Nelson Metcalf of Iowa State college was named vice president and Harry A. Scott of Rice institute, Houston, Tex., secretary-treasurer.

Yale Beats Michigan in Lake Placid Hockey Game

Lake Placid Club, N. Y., Dec. 31.—(AP)—A single point scored by Iglehart early in the first period gave Yale a 1-0 victory over the University of Michigan today in the second of the hockey series of three games they are playing here. Yale used sixteen players in all, while Michigan used only eight. Nineteen penalties were called.

Joliet and Crane Tech Divide Twin Cage Bill

BRANCH STORES, YEAR'S FEATURE IN REAL ESTATE

Interesting Trends Seen in Trade.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Wall street's whoopee, ending with its spectacular toboggan ride of November, occupied so much of the stage throughout 1929 that the casual citizen gained the impression that the real estate market had faded out of the picture. A glance back through the last twelve months, however, discloses several interesting and significant facts about Chicagoland real estate and building.

Perhaps the most impressive realty development of the year was the continued expansion of neighborhood and suburban business centers through the establishment of more and more chain stores in outlying districts and larger and more comprehensive branches of loop stores in the suburbs.

Open Large Branch Stores.

Marshall Field & Co. built and opened large branch stores in both Oak Park and Evanston. The Fair opened a large branch in Oak Park and another on Milwaukee avenue. The Wieboldt Department store purchased a site in Englewood, where it is building one of the city's largest outlying stores, and has also bought a store in Evanston. Goldblatt Brothers bought several stores and store sites and started work on others.

Although building construction has now slackened considerably, the year 1929 was notable for the erection of a long and imposing list of structures, one of them a world's record breaker in size. The previous year, 1928, showed a striking list of new buildings, but 1929 in some ways surpassed it.

Perhaps the outstanding structure completed in 1929 was the Civic Opera building, housing both the grand opera activities and the small Civic theater. Across the river the Daily News building was completed a short time before. Chicago continued the era of tall towers in the erection of the Willoughby building, the Steuben Club building, the Foreman Bank building, and the Palmolive building.

Eastern Firms Open Branches.

Several important and imposing structures were built during 1929. The Michigan Square building, the McGraw-Hill building, the Woman's Athletic club, the Judah building, the Medinah Athletic club and the Chapin estate building are among the most notable.

A significant development resulting from the decision of old Pa Dearborn that his streets were meant for traffic and not parking was the beginning of an era of tall garage buildings in the downtown section.

Several big skyscrapers, work on which started during 1929, are still under construction, with completion set for this year. The most notable is the great Merchandise Mart, being erected by the Marshall Field interests. This will be the world's largest building. Work also is well along on the towering new Board of Trade, the La Salle-Wacker building, the 1 La Salle building, and the Buckingham building.

The real estate market during 1929 was not a startling one so far as large deals went. Perhaps the biggest transaction was the purchase of the Union Trust building, Madison and Dearborn, by Harley L. Clark, president of the Utilities Power and Light company.

Two great housing projects, the Rosenwald and Marshall Field group homes, were completed and opened to the public during 1929. The success of these indicates that more will be erected.

Figures on Building.

Among the more important large construction projects announced are the carrying on by THE TRIBUNE with its development of Tribune square; the erection of a gigantic office building by the Marshall Field estate on Adams, between La Salle and Clark, and a tall tower for the National Bank of the Republic.

Comparing building figures for 1929 with 1928 is not a particularly smile provoking occupation. Neither is a comparison of December's building permits with those of November a cheerful New Year's eve duty. Building construction in Chicago for the year just closed represented a loss of thirty-six per cent over the previous year, according to a survey, based on permits issued, just released by S. W. Straus & Co.

The total for December of 1929 was $5,098,800, a loss of 77 per cent compared with the same month last year, and a loss of 66 per cent over the preceding month of 1929.

Year 1929	$202,286,000
Year 1928	315,800,000
Year 1927	352,936,000
Year 1926	366,586,000
Year 1925	360,794,000
Year 1924	296,893,000
Year 1919	104,189,000
Year 1909	90,558,000
Year 1899	20,857,000
Year 1889	54,001,000

General Motors Corp. Has 198,600 Stockholders

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 31.—General Motors corporation had 198,600 stockholders registered for the last quarter of 1929. This compares with 140,113 for the third quarter, 125,165 for the second quarter, and 105,363 for the opening quarter of the year. In the final quarter of 1928 there were 71,185 registered stockholders.

Year's Sales Break Chicago Stock Record

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Chicago's growth as a national financial market during 1929 is well illustrated by the progress made by the Chicago Stock Exchange in the last twelve months. Transactions on the exchange for the year approximated 82,000,000 shares, more than doubling the previous record volume of 38,940,000, established in 1928.

A mass of statistical evidence could be cited to show the growth of Chicago's securities market, but one bit is particularly illuminating. During the twelve months the number of exchange quotation tickers in service increased from 247 to 458. Plans are under way to extend the ticker service to every important business center in the country. As soon as details can be worked out and installation completed quotations of Chicago stocks will be available to virtually the whole nation.

Record Breaking Year.

It was a record breaking year. Not only was the annual volume record broken, but all previous trading marks were passed by wide margins. On three days the volume exceeded one million shares, reaching a high mark of 1,200,000 shares on Oct. 24. A new weekly trading record of 3,990,000 shares was established. The average daily trading volume during the year, including Saturdays, was close to 300,000 shares, against 135,000 in the previous twelve months. On Aug. 7 the exchange listed the largest stock issue in its history, consisting of 27,000,000 shares. The issue was later increased to 37,000,000.

Demand for more memberships caused the exchange governors to declare a 100 per cent seat dividend, which was effective Sept. 5. The action increased the seats from 235 to 470. To date approximately 100 of the new memberships have been sold, bringing the number of members of the exchange to 335, with 135 seats still available.

Transactions during October exceeded those of any month of the year, when a total of 13,558,000 shares changed hands. August and September were next in line, each with about 8,500,000 shares.

R. Arthur Wood, president of the exchange, commenting on the year's growth, said the outstanding success of the period was the manner in which the exchange weathered the wild selling in late October.

"Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that not a single member of the Chicago Stock exchange nor a single brokerage firm with a partner as a member of the exchange, failed to meet obligations during the entire period of the selling panic," Mr. Wood said.

Mr. Wood cited an interesting point to emphasize the increasing importance of Chicago as a financing center.

"One of the largest of all utility financing plans was completed in Chicago," he said. "A few years ago this would have been thought an impossibility. Without question Chicago has become the utility financing center of the nation. Industrial and utility corporations are looking to Chicago for distribution as well as financing. The trading list of the Chicago exchange now totals nearly 550 stocks and 240 bond issues."

BOND MARKET HAS UNUSUALLY QUIET YEAR

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—The close of an exceptionally dull year found the average of bond prices about midway between the high and low for 1929. The former level was reached last January, the latter in September, when interest rates were at their peak.

Between those months bonds slumped almost steadily as the country's credit structure was burdened with the load of stock speculation and interest rates soared. After the October crash there was a brief revival in fixed income securities as money cheapened, but the improvement came just before the seasonal tightening in funds and was short lived. From late November until today prices tended lower in a thin market, although bonds of the highest grade maintained a firmness that suggested a much stronger market when unfavorable temporary conditions had disappeared.

AUSTIN BANKS ENTER MERGER NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations for the merger of the Austin National bank and the North Austin Trust and Savings bank are being carried on by officials of the two institutions. Committees have been appointed by both banks to work out a consolidation program which, it is expected, will be ready in about two weeks.

Announcement of the merger plans was made last night by Thomas F. Chamberlain, president of the Austin National, and Albert F. Keeney, a large stockholder in the North Austin bank.

If the consolidation is approved the combined institutions will have total deposits of $3,700,000. The capitalization will be $250,000 and surplus $150,000.

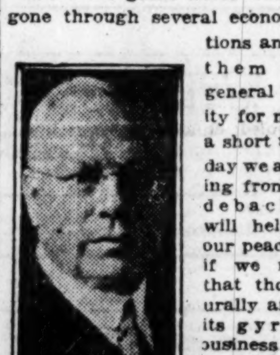
THE BUILDER

Reynolds Calls 1930 Business Outlook Good

BY GEORGE M. REYNOLDS.
[Chairman executive committee, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company.]



G. M. REYNOLDS.

Since the great world war we have gone through several economic eruptions and none of them destroyed general prosperity for more than a short time. Today we are emerging from another debacle, but it will help restore our peace of mind if we remember that though naturally affected by its gyrations, business is not dependent upon the stock market. The controlling elements are such fundamentals as agriculture, industrial plant operation, transportation, the employment of labor, our export trade, the American standard of living, and the credit situation.

The farmer is much more happily situated than he has been at any other time in the last few years. He is better able to adjust himself to conditions; he is more nearly able to balance income and outgo. This year almost invariable reports from the crop growing sections have been favorable. Crops have been good and prices remunerative.

Regards Year as Normal.

Taking the whole year into consideration, industrial plants have been operated at about as near capacity as could reasonably be expected. In some few lines there was a slowing down during the last quarter, but in the main, officers of companies engaged in manufacturing say they do not expect anything like a marked or prolonged curtailment of factory production.

We all know how important a part the railroads play in the industrial life of the nation. Their buying power is enormous. The railroads have been exceedingly prosperous and this prosperity will enable them to enter the markets now in a very large way.

A large number of idle people in the country depresses business. Formerly our periods of prosperity attracted very extensive immigration and usually we had a cumulative heavy influx of labor prior to our economic upheavals. This resulted in an immediate large surplus of unemployed. That ought not be the case now, because under our immigration restriction laws comparatively few workers have come to this country in recent years, so that the labor situation should be considered as satisfactory.

Export Trade Good.

Our export trade has been very satisfactory. The lowering of interest rates in this country ought to stimulate exports, for now it will be attractive to float foreign bond issues in our markets, thus furnishing other nations the funds with which to pay for our commodities and goods in increasing quantities. The fact that we are a leading creditor nation permits us to make extensive loans abroad.

There has not been any lack of praise of the American standard of living. It has become accepted as an established national habit that will vary but little from year to year. If that be true it will mean the continuance of a truly tremendous demand for goods and services of all kinds.

Since the deflation in the securities markets the banks are even more abundantly supplied with loanable funds, and there is absolutely no reason for expecting tight money at any time soon.

CALUMET DISTRICT LOOKS TO $100,000,000 EXPANSION PROGRAM

Surging ahead at the rate of $100,000,000 in expansion projects during 1929, the Calumet district of northwestern Indiana, comprising Gary, Hammond, East Chicago, and Whiting, is looking forward to another $100,000,000 expansion program during 1930, according to the annual survey of the First Trust and Savings bank of Hammond.

This tremendous activity is concentrated principally in the industrial field and is part of the economic trend that is developing the Calumet district into one of the world's leading industrial centers, the bank survey asserts. For example, the $100,000,000 program for 1929 represents almost wholly capital expenditures for eight new industries and expansions to the diversified list of plants already operating in the region.

Similarly, the $100,000,000 program that is anticipated for 1930 on the strength of official announcements already made public is composed almost entirely of proposed industrial expansion projects. However, such unusual activity in the industrial field is quickly reflected in a quickening of the commercial, residential, and civic growth of the region, according to the survey.

SAYS NEW YEAR FINDS CLOTHING BUSINESS GOOD

"The close of the year finds the clothing business in a healthy condition in spite of some slowing down of consumer demand in certain localities following the stock market debacle," says C. L. Speed of Hart, Schaffner & Marx.

"Merchants who started their semi-annual sales in the week between Christmas and New Year's almost without exception reported a response equal to or ahead of a year ago, indicating that the people have a need for clothes and have money to buy them.

"Wholesale shipments for the year showed a considerable increase over those of 1928, and yet, generally speaking, there are few signs of merchants being heavily overstocked.

"Indications are that the sale period will result in a fairly close cleanup of stocks, and that active merchants will be in a position to take as much merchandise as usual in 1930."

Baldwin Works Plans New Outside Financing

New York, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Directors of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, it was reported today, will ask authority at the next annual meeting of stockholders to increase the company's funded debt. The Baldwin company has not done any outside financing since the present corporation was formed in 1911, obtaining its money requirements out of earnings or through temporary banking accommodations. George H. Houston, president, says that the company and its subsidiaries will close 1929 with orders on hand substantially in excess of $30,000,000, and with every prospect of normal business for 1930.

Approves Bond Issue for Cleveland Union Terminal

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31.—(AP)—Authorization for the Cleveland Union Terminal company to issue $18,000,000 of 4½ per cent first mortgage 50 year sinking fund gold bonds was given today by the interstate commerce commission. The three roads that own the terminal, the New York Central, Big Four, and the Nickel Plate, were authorized to guarantee the bonds. Funds from sale of the bonds will be used to repay the railroad companies for advances made in construction of the new terminal.

Active Trade in 1930 Seen by Wetmore

FRANK O. WETMORE

The favorable business conditions that existed at the end of the year 1928 continued and improved as the year 1929 progressed, to a point where business generally undoubtedly enjoyed one of the most prosperous years in our history.

To be sure, there were some lines that did not participate but this is always to be expected. The one outstanding feature of interest during the year has been that of speculation, which attained a magnitude in volume and number of people interested beyond anything known in the past. Had the results been confined to the speculative markets only, the consequences would not have been so serious, but attracting as it did money from all countries it was a disturbing factor in the money affairs of all important nations, and with the deflation of values in the stock market the release of funds thereby was promptly reflected in improved monetary conditions both at home and abroad.

We believe that the deflation taken by itself has had and will have relatively little influence on business, but it is not surprising that there should be a recession in business from the great volume and the great prosperity we were enjoying during the first eight months of 1929.

Business generally is in a sound position and if we are fortunate enough to have a substantial volume of cereal and increased volume of cotton exports, the two important disturbing factors in the present situation will be corrected. We see no reason why there should not be a fairly satisfactory volume of business during the first six months of 1930.

PENNSY RY. PLANS $95,000,000 FOR NEW EQUIPMENT

In response to requests for his views on the outlook for 1930, Gen. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, authorizes the following:

"The Pennsylvania railroad plans to go ahead in 1930 with its program of improvements. Next year this company expects to spend about $95,000,000 for new equipment for extensions to and improvements of its property.

"We believe that business conditions are fundamentally sound, and that the inevitable growth of the country will require increasing transportation facilities and service. It is our task to provide for these needs with confidence in the continued business prosperity of the United States."

Savings Institutions Buy Legal Railway Bonds

One important reason for the rapid recovery in December of prices of railroad bonds legal for investment in New York state, was the heavy buying for savings institutions. During October and November, when depositors drained large sums from savings banks to protect their brokerage accounts, the banks were forced to let go a large volume of bonds that they had been holding for investment. Then, with the return of much of this money by depositors, the repurchasing of such securities followed.

WHAT OF 1930? PROPHETS GIVE DIVERSE VIEWS

Change in Economic Trend Confuses.

BY ALEXANDER D. NOYES.
[Financial Editor of the New York Times.]

New York, Dec. 31.—[Special.]—The record indicates that accurate new year prophecies have been made as a rule in years when the financial tide was setting strongly in one direction and when no convincing reason for a turn was visible; this was true of New Year's day from 1925 to 1928, inclusive.

When, however, the economic trend has been suddenly reversed and new forces were at work whose scope was difficult to determine, prediction usually went astray—notably in the three successive new years' prophecies after the armistice. Concisely summarized, these are the arguments, pro and con, advanced for 1930:

The Stock Market Collapse.

1. The stock market's collapse was reaction from an orgy of reckless speculation. No such excesses had been practiced by trade and industry. In contrast with the complete financial illusion which had prevailed on the stock market, its prices wholly out of touch with normal investment yield and quite unprecedented amounts of stock carried by speculators on overextended credit, there had been sober study of the realities in general industry; no speculation; no continuous rise of prices, and such absence of swollen inventories that the business methods of the period were described as "hand-to-mouth distribution."

To this argument it is answered by less hopeful prophets, first, that even if mistaken ideas, unwarranted use of credit, and excessive accumulation of supplies had not been indulged in by producers, there is evidence that they were practiced by consumers. Two or three thousand million dollars of "finance paper," put out to provide for installment purchases, is still outstanding.

President Hoover's Conferences.

2. President Hoover's conferences had indicated expenditure of more than $2,000,000,000 during 1930 on constructive industry. The President himself has emphasized the fact that this program would avert general unemployment and insure continuance of industrial activity.

The counter argument, while recognizing that the vigorous White House action prevented any such panic in productive industry as that of 1907, points out that the very fact of these unusual measures amounted to recognition of a critical situation. Furthermore, the program submitted by various industries did not embody pledges, but purposes more or less contingent on subsequent developments. Many of the estimates covered expenditure, not for 1930 alone, but for a series of years.

Industrial Expansion.

3. Nothing can stop industrial expansion with such yearly increase in population and individual wealth as the United States presents. The President's committee on economic changes has estimated that total annual "money income" in America rose from $69,600,000,000 in 1924 to $81,000,000,000 in 1928. Production must increase to meet this rapidly increasing power to purchase.

To this it is answered that the estimates of increased annual income are not accompanied by estimates of expenditures. It is conceivable that even such annual expansion in money income might be overtopped by abnormal increase of purchases by the money earners. No one can be sure, moreover, how far the yearly increment of wealth and buying power will have been affected by last autumn's losses in stock speculation. By the same committee's estimates, "money income" fell to $55,800,000,000 in 1921, as against $65,500,000,000 in 1920.

Credit in Speculation.

4. Reduction of $3,400,000,000 in brokers' loans since the middle of October has insured stability to trade through removing the strain on general credit; even merchants' paper rates have fallen from 6¼ per cent to 5, and will go lower. Easy money should promote industrial recovery in 1930, especially when banks are not confronted with the mass of industrial "frozen credits" that left the market deadlocked after 1920.

It is replied that easy money after a financial crisis may be as much result of reduced industrial activity as cause for industrial revival. It existed very shortly after the panics of 1920, 1907, and 1893, but did not occasion trade revival. The bank portfolios, it is further pointed out, although certainly not clogged with frozen credits in the field of industry, are carrying heavy burdens in the shape of speculative stock exchange accounts "taken over" to save a nation-wide body of crippled speculators.

The Political Situation.

5. National or international politics would oftener complicate trade recovery after old Wall street crises. No such adverse influence is in sight today. The "peace pact" and the "Young plan" will come into full effect with 1930. A highly conservative administration is in power at Washington, even the British Labor ministry has adopted prudent public policies.

No one disputes the great force of this consideration. But people of the less hopeful temperament answer that its influence on trade is negative rather than positive; that American business activity increased in 1926, when European politics was in a dangerous condition, and receded early last autumn although the Kellogg pact and the Young plan were even then in the foreground.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 31.—They put the old year to bed to die with a great flourish and fanfare down on the stock exchange today.

One of the most spirited price advances in weeks was staged in honor of the occasion. Nearly every stock on the list was given a whirl or two during the session. They even had a band on hand for the obsequies—the 103rd infantry band gave a concert which lasted from 1:30 to closing time.

Trading activity of the session was mainly confined to the forenoon, brokers and their help letting business slide to a considerable extent while they indulged in the usual holiday festivites during the later trading. Transactions toward the last were few and far between and of little consequence. The turnover amounted only to 2,665,800 shares.

Range Upward at Close.

Closing prices were 1 to 10 points above their previous final levels. Most of the leaders participated in the advance, United States Steel, American Can, General Electric, American Telephone and Telegraph, Kennecott Copper, American and Foreign Power and Columbian Carbon all showing healthy gains.

Thousands of the day's sales were for cash in a cleanup of selling for the purpose of establishing income tax losses. The heaviest of this selling took place in the early trading and served as an index to the amount of liquidation for tax purposes which had taken place in preceding sessions.

Heavy as it was, however, it was not sufficient to outweigh the demand for stock by shorts closing their books at the year, investment buying and bullish operations for the advance, so that the market was kept moving upward from the opening right through to the finish.

Utilities led the upswing. Leading issues of the group were fairly buoyant. American and Foreign Power ran up a gain of 6 points. American Water Works jumped 6½, Standard Gas 4½, and Consolidated Gas 3⅝ points.

Strength in Steel.

Electrical equipment shares displayed sympathetic strength, partly in response to the benefits in prospect from the huge improvement programs planned for the new year by utility companies. Consistent strength was shown by United States Steel throughout. It was up 4⅝ points at the close.

Numerous specialties, notably Simmons, Byers, and Columbia Carbon, extended their advances into new high ground for the rally, which received its strong impetus in the last hour yesterday with the lifting of pressure from tax sales.

Some of the mail order and department stores, which had been under pressure from the bear side, rose briskly in the later trading. Sears-Roebuck in particular attracted attention, advancing more than 3 points on spirited buying. Rails were inactive but firm, and the same was true of the oils.

Total sales on the New York Stock exchange for 1929 of more than one billion shares established a new high record and nearly doubled the number of shares dealt in in 1927. Sales for the year just ended totaled 1,124,959,000 shares, compared with 916,899,000 shares last year, and 576,735,000 shares in 1927.

PLANS ARE LAID TO CURB EFFECT OF STOCK CRASH

Trade and Industry on Sound Basis.

BY O. A. MATHER.
[Finance Editor of The Tribune.]

The year 1929 will be recorded in American economic annals as productive of the greatest paradox in history. It witnessed the greatest activity in trade and industry, accompanied by record earnings and high wages. But it also saw the greatest collapse in the securities markets in American history. It marked the bursting of a vast bubble of speculation without any contributing cause in the country's general situation.

There is no doubt that 1929 established new high records in manufacturing and merchandising. There is little doubt also that the American people enjoyed a scale of living never before attained. The collapse of stock market prices came in the last quarter of the year and, while it affected adversely the record of the last two months, it did not offset the earlier months of unexampled prosperity.

National Income Grows.

There is no doubt that practically every class of Americans received more income last year than in 1928 or any previous period. Wages were high and employment was good, the prices of farm products improved, profits of business were larger, and corporation disbursements were more generous. But it also is true that a large part of surplus income was devoted to speculation and that vast potential wealth disappeared in the stock market debacle.

The paradox of a panic in the securities markets and inherent soundness in basic conditions has no parallel in our history. It may be said to have been the product of several years of high prosperity, instead of the usual concomitant of depression. Surplus income was devoted to speculation and not investment.

But in spite of the inflation of security prices, there was no other inflation. There was an entire absence of speculation in commodities, of inflation of inventories, of over-production of manufactured articles and of soaring land values, either rural or urban. There was no excessive commercial borrowing and no undue expansion of industrial plants. There was no advance in commodity prices. And all these forms of inflation are the usual forerunners of depression and depressed security prices.

Further Progress Made.

Therefore, with regard to all basic conditions 1929 was a progressive year. It opened with a greater degree of activity than did 1928, went forward to a record summer and receded mildly toward the end. Of prime importance was the fact that agriculture won a more nearly equal plane of prosperity with industry than in any year since the world war. Crops proved about average but prices were somewhat better, added to which is the prospect that the farm relief measures of President Hoover's administration will prove of lasting benefit. Prices of manufactured commodities also favored the farmer and almost equalized his purchasing power with that of the industrial worker.

Both at home and abroad, the basic economic and political developments made progress last year. The federal government continued its economies, made further progress in refunding the war obligations, concluded the settlement of war debts with France, and reduced taxes. In relation to the income of the American people, federal taxes were less onerous than at any time since pre-war days. However, this record was not matched by the state and municipal governments, although these political divisions showed less tendency to increase their debts.

The calm that attended our relations with the rest of the world was reflected in our excellent foreign trade. The great volume of our export trade is evidence not only of the value of American manufactures and appreciation of them in other lands but also of the constant effort toward expansion by our industries. While exports of capital in the form of foreign loans declined last year, there were heavy withdrawals of gold sent to this country in former years.

New Year Presents Problem.

This loss of gold, which became marked with the decline in money rates following the stock market collapse, should improve the credit position and help the currencies of European countries. But it should not prove particularly detrimental to this country unless the movement is continued to a degree that now seems unlikely.

What of 1930? The year begins with American leaders in trade, industry, and finance more reluctant to predict the future than usual. Just as a year ago none could forecast the stock market crash, so now one can but guess its effects. There is no doubt that last month witnessed a degree of caution in forward commitments in industry and merchandising not seen since the depression of 1921. Merchants and manufacturers have reduced inventories to the lowest level in years. The modern practice of "hand to mouth" buying has been adopted by the producers.

Operations of the big industries, particularly the steel and automobile plants, are at the lowest point in several years. As the winter months are the most quiet of the year in business, it would appear that the present situation in industrial produc...tion is largely a psychological effect of the stock market blow-up. Whether such psychology exists or will be communicated to the great body of American consumers remains to be seen.

The consensus is that the first quarter of 1930 may prove less active than the corresponding periods of last year and 1928. Opinions on the future vary widely, with some leaders expecting a decided rebound before the middle of the year and others predicting little improvement until next autumn. As usual, the second half of the year will be influenced largely by the harvests.

For the present there seems reason to believe that industry will gear its operations exceedingly close to demand and if demand is slow the specter of unemployment is raised. Employment conditions as 1929 ends are somewhat less favorable than for several years. On the other hand, much of a possible labor slack may be taken up by the big program of public works outlined in the recent conferences sponsored by President Hoover, who in addition gained pledges against reductions in wages.

National Politics Reassuring.

There is every confidence in the course of national politics. There are few proposals for disturbing and radical legislation. Governmental sympathy toward railroad consolidations and groupings, as well as industrial combinations, should result in even greater efficiency in transportation and manufacture and economies that will mean either larger profits or lower costs. Building construction, plant expansion, and public works, wherever justified, will be fostered by lower money rates than prevailed last year.

Returning to a retrospect of 1929, we find that several of the basic industries hung up new records. The steel industry pushed up ingot production to around 54,250,000 tons, thereby bettering the previous high mark in 1928 by about 8 per cent. But the mills ended the year working at 50 per cent of capacity, compared with 80 per cent at the close of 1928.

The automobile industry also set a new record with an output of about 5,651,000 cars and trucks in the United States and Canada, with a value of $3,483,900,000, compared with 4,630,000 units, valued at $3,045,820,000, in 1928.

Farmer Fares Better.

Although agricultural production declined about 4.8 per cent last year, the value of the fifty leading crops totaled $8,580,528,000, or an increase of approximately $85,000,000 over 1928. Industrial production, on the other hand, increased about 10 per cent and aggregate corporation profits made about the same gain. The movement of commodities by the railroads totaled about 52,798,000 cars, which was only exceeded in 1926 and was a gain of approximately 1,220,000 cars over 1928.

Our international trade also expanded, although imports increased somewhat faster than exports and so left a smaller favorable trade balance. Exports were estimated at $5,230,500,000 and imports at $4,410,100, compared respectively with $5,129,132,000 and $4,089,930,000 in 1928. Our favorable balance for 1929 was around $820,000,000, compared with $1,039,000,000 in 1928.

Chicago Board of Trade Stocks

Stock prices on the Board of Trade were irregular. Armour "A" was the most active of that group, with prices slightly higher while the "B" issues were unchanged. National Recording Pump broke more than a point after a gain of 3 points the previous day, as a result of profit taking.

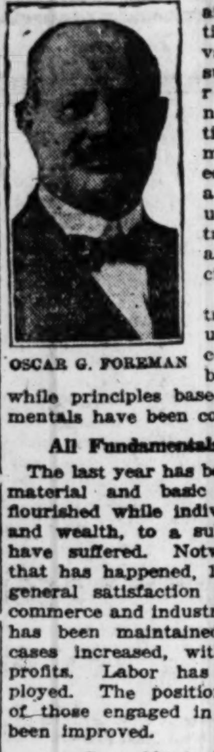
KEEP CONFIDENCE IS FOREMAN PLEA FOR TRADE YEAR

Sees Building Proposals as Business Aid.

BY OSCAR G. FOREMAN.

[Chairman Executive Committees of Foreman-State National and Foreman-State Trust and Savings Banks.]

The new year is to be regarded as a period for the maintenance of confidence in business and a stabilization of economic values commensurate with the resources and needs of the nation. The twelve months just ended have witnessed a variety of situations and contradictions unparalleled in financial annals.



OSCAR G. FOREMAN

Economic trends prevailing under the new conditions have been swept aside while principles based on old fundamentals have been confirmed.

All Fundamentals Confirmed.

The last year has been one in which material and basic prosperity has flourished while individual prosperity and wealth, to a substantial extent, have suffered. Notwithstanding all that has happened, 1929 has been of general satisfaction in the fields of commerce and industry. Sales volume has been maintained and in many cases increased, with corresponding profits. Labor has been well employed. The position and condition of those engaged in agriculture has been improved.

Sees Aid in Building.

It is reasonable to believe that if the numerous projects proposed for government, railroad, public utility, and general business building can be put under way with sufficient speed so as to avoid any gap in the general employment situation the purchasing power of the consumer should be maintained and a general sound condition of business should result.

There is no real basis on which to predict any period that savors of boom. On the other hand, despite all that has happened in the last year there is no reasonable basis for pessimism. A broad and sane meeting of the situation, such as has been shown thus far on every hand, should bring about a solution of the problems of the coming year in such manner as will insure a continuation of sensible prosperity.

MERGER BROKEN UP BY PETITION, GORRELL SAYS

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 31.—(AP)—E. S. Gorrell, president of the Stutz Motor Car Company of America, said upon his return to Indianapolis today that the filing of a petition in bankruptcy here yesterday had "broken up" a meeting in another city looking toward merger with another automobile concern. Gorrell withheld the name of the other firm.

"The Stutz company is not insolvent and my first step will be to confer with the people bringing the suits in an effort to straighten out matters," Gorrell said. "Meanwhile, of course, the merger proposal is at a standstill temporarily. I hope to arrange a meeting soon with the companies bringing the suits."

Gorrell said he was conferring with Charles M. Schwab and two other men yesterday when they received word that the suits had been filed. Stutz organization, Gorrell added, was not in danger of insolvency unless forced to quick liquidation of its assets. He said the firm had more than $4,000,000 assets and could settle all debts within a month. Gorrell said the company was carrying more than $1,000,000 in credits for its dealers.

WESTCHESTER, ILLINOIS
6% Local Improvement Bonds

IN our opinion some of the best investments obtainable today from the standpoint of safety and yield are to be found among the bonds issued by Chicago's suburbs to pay for paving, sewer and water systems and other local improvements. They mature serially in from two to ten years and usually pay an annual interest rate of 6%, which has the added advantage of being entirely exempt from Federal Income Tax.

It is our function as specialists in this type of investment to select progressive communities and to see that the issues which we offer and recommend conform to conservative standards. As our offering to signalize the beginning of the New Year—a year in which there is expected to be renewed emphasis on Safety and Income—we recommend and offer $400,000 Westchester, Illinois, 6% Local Improvement Bonds, of which the following is an issue which typically conforms to our standards.

Westchester 6% Paving Bonds
County Court Docket No. 60320
Maturities Dec. 31, 1931 to 1939
At 100 and Interest, Yielding 6%
Exempt from Federal Income Tax

Provision for Payment—Payment of the several series of bonds as they fall due, together with the interest thereon at 6%, is provided for by the levy of special assessments to an amount substantially in excess of the cost of construction of the paving and expenses incidental thereto.

Location of Paving—The streets paved, if shown on the above map, would be just above the bend in the white line which represents the Rapid Transit right-of-way through Westchester. Between the right-of-way and Twenty-second Street at Mannheim Road, space has been reserved for public buildings, which has caused this part of Westchester to be called "Civic Center."

Property Values—The aggregate value of the property which is assessed for the payment of these paving bonds is in excess of $600,000, as compared with $103,959.69 (the total amount of this assessment) and $83,700.00, the maximum amount of bonds to be outstanding in the hands of the public.

Knight Blanchard & Co.
29 So. La Salle St. — CHICAGO — RANdolph 1101

The above information is derived from official sources or other sources which we regard as reliable and, while not guaranteed, forms the basis on which we relied in purchasing these bonds for our own account. All bonds offered subject to prior sale and change in price.

FUTURE OF GRAIN TRADING LINKED TO FARM BOARD

Stabilization Policy Faces Test in 1930.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.
[Commercial Editor of The Tribune.]

A new era has dawned for agriculture. The passage of the agricultural marketing act creating the federal farm board promises to bring the price of the farmers' products more closely in line with that of other commodities, and if the theory of so-called farm relief is workable, it may be found that the foundation of nation-wide prosperity for all lines of business has been laid.

Comparatively few members of the grain trade have knowledge of the vast power conferred on the farm board. The coöperative organizations brought into being, it is said, may operate under either the farm relief measure or the Capper-Volstead act, or both if they so desire. The very vagueness of the agricultural marketing bill as passed by congress suggests that certain results were desired, and those entrusted with carrying out the spirit of the act do not have to work with their hands tied.

Farm Bill a Guide.

The bill itself is almost unique in history, and in consequence there is nothing in the past that would seem to serve as a guide in avoiding mistakes. The board is to be complimented rather than criticized for the cautious manner in which it is progressing, and the full effect of its program may not be witnessed for several years. It takes time and patience to put over a coöperative marketing idea when nearly 50 per cent of the total population of the country is dependent on agriculture, and farmers themselves are regarded as the most individual class in the country.

Despite the vast power of the farm relief measure, demand and supply will continue to determine the trend of grain values, although the price insurance clause in the bill may be taken as indicating that there may be a near guaranteed minimum price established. As President Alexander Legge said in substance, the aim is "price stabilization at a sufficiently high level that will result in adequate production, and yet low enough not to encourage overproduction."

The Wheat Situation.

The situation facing the farm board as far as wheat is concerned at the present time is unusual. Prices in the United States the latter part of 1928 and early in 1929 were somewhat above world parity, with the result that when those who held cash grain and futures for an advance started to unload late in May they found support lacking and No. 2 hard winter broke to 98 cents at Chicago, the lowest since 1923.

There was a 245,000,000 bushel carryover in the United States at the end of the 1928-29 crop year, the largest on record, and despite record world shipments the total world carryover was 593,000,000 bushels. The wheat crop of 1929 for all countries is around 3,415,000,000 bushels, or 530,000,000 bushels less than the previous season, the smallest with one exception in over seven years. Yet when the carryover is added there is a total available supply of 3,993,000,000 bushels, the largest within over seven years, with the exception of the previous season, when it was 4,351,000,000 bushels. Owing to a reduction in estimated world's consumption it is figured that there will be a carryover of 440,000,000 bushels at the end of the season, or 125,000,000 bushels above the 1924-27 average.

Half Supply in U. S.

Nearly 50 per cent of the world's carryover of wheat at the end of the 1928-29 season was in the United States, the latter having a total available supply for the present season of around 1,051,000,000 bushels, or 9,000,000 bushels more than the previous year, and after allowing for consumption equaling that of last year, and a 1922-27 average carryover there is around 294,000,000 bushels available for export, of which around 80,000,000 bushels had cleared to Jan. 1.

How to prevent a decline in wheat values below what is regarded as a fair price promises to be one of the main problems of the farm board early in 1930.

With the wheat market well liquidated at the end of May, traders were given the greatest surprise of the year with the announcement that the government would be asked to appropriate $100,000,000 for farm relief, owing to the break in wheat prices.

This started a furore of buying to which was coupled later a heavy crop loss through drought in the American and Canadian spring wheat crops, the former being cut down 109,000,000 bu as indicated by the final returns, while the Canadian crop was reduced 273,000,000 bu to an aggregate of 294,000,000 bu, making a shortage of 382,000,000 bu for North America.

Buying as a result of this shortage, combined with a shortage of over 100,000,000 bu in Argentina and 60,000,000 bu in Australia, advanced prices 38⅝@47⅜c, the greater part of which was maintained at the close of the year.

The Corn Market.

In the last three weeks of December the federal farm board showed its hand, bidding $1.18 for No. 1 hard, country run, Chicago, the basis at which it was willing to make loans to farmers. Later it bid $1.15 for No. 2 hard at Omaha.

The corn market came as close to stabilization in 1929 as it will possibly come in the future, contract grade of cash corn having a price range of only 26 cents during the year, the smallest, with one exception, in ten years. Available supply for the season was 2,875,000,000 bushels, or 92,000,000 bushels under the ten year average; while for the 1929-'30 season there is only 2,703,000,000 bushels available, and after allowance is made for the smaller oat crop the total amount of feeding grain in sight is the smallest in over thirteen years, with the exception of 1924.

So far the farm board has said nothing regarding its policy concerning coarse grains, but they probably will be included in the program that embraces wheat.

A shortage of 196,000,000 bu in the United States corn crop with a yield of 2,622,000,000 bu, was of a little help to corn farmers, although early in the season a drought scare and the advance in wheat brought an appreciation of 10@18c. At the same time oat prices were advanced 11@13c on an estimated reduction of 200,000,000 bu in the crop.

CHICAGO STOCK YARDS HANDLE 145,070 LESS ANIMALS DURING 1929

A reduction of 145,070 animals slaughtered at Chicago during 1929 featured packing operations. Another feature was the increase of 123,973 hogs, the largest number since 1924, although all other animals showed reductions in totals.

Slaughtering figures for 1928 and 1929 follow:

	1929	1928	Decrease

DECEMBER LARD $9.75

A trade was made in December lard at $9.75, the lowest of the season. Hogs were 15@25c lower, with the run at western points nearly double that of a week ago and last year. At the close January and May were 7½c lower, with Liverpool 3d lower on spots and unchanged to 6d higher on futures. Exports of lard were 3,872,395 lbs. Bellies were 5@10c lower and cash trade moderate. Cumberlands and American cut hams in Liverpool were 2s lower. Export clearances were 434,500 lbs.

Specializing in the Underwriting and Distribution of Securities of Public Utility Companies

NINETEEN TWENTY-NINE for the Public Utility Industry was another year in which all previous records were shattered. Gross revenues for the second consecutive year exceeded Five Billion Dollars; service was extended to many thousands of new outlets; plant was expanded to meet urgent requirements of consumers and today represents an aggregate investment of Twenty-seven Billion Dollars.

For a number of years we have been actively identified with the financing of many important Public Utilities and have made a close study of the securities in these industries. In this connection we offer the experience and facilities of our organization.

A comprehensive survey of the entire Public Utility Industry, setting forth the importance of the Electric Light and Power group and containing interesting statistics on Gas, Telephone and Telegraph, Tractions and Water, is available upon request.

PREPARING FOR 1930

Business men in developing plans for the new year will find the constructive counsel of our Divisional Organization a valuable aid.

Through close contact and long experience, the officers in each division are familiar with financial and trade problems of each industry. They know its history. They know its trends. They have facilities for co-ordinating facts that bear upon the future potentialities of markets. They are thus able to offer the individual customer helpful counsel in planning for 1930.

With the Divisional Organization is co-ordinated a complete financial service, developed through sixty-six years' experience. We invite you to consider its possibilities in connection with your own business plans.

LIQUIDATION IN BUTTER

Butter declined on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, January dipping ⅝c, or $120 a car, and February selling off ½c, or $96 a car. The government report on butter holdings in the 26 markets showed a reduction in the surplus from last year of over 1,300,000 lbs for the week ended Dec. 28, but traders seemed to show some preference for liquidating contracts rather than lay themselves open for deliveries. Sales were 114 cars, with receipts of 14,038 tubs. January eggs started off $30 a car higher and continued firm, closing at a net advance of ⅝c, or $75 a car. The rise was recorded in the face of increased receipts and a reduction of the shortage in the 26 cities of around 3,200 cases. Sales were 128 cars, with receipts of 6,040 cases. Prices follow:

MAY EXCHANGE SHARES.

An additional 117,000 shares of Container Corporation common stock, for which listing application has been made to the New York stock exchange, will probably be exchanged for stock of another company manufacturing a line similar to that of the Container Corporation. Announcement regarding this acquisition is expected in the near future.

Pipe Line Building Focal Point of Interest in 1930

Pipe line building in this country's oil and gas fields, which in its various phases formed no small part of industrial activities in the last year, constitutes a focal point of interest as 1930 approaches. Recently the making of pipe has become an increasingly important part of the business of many of the leading steel companies, and it is known that steel pipe manufacturers are making plans to supply a demand for 1930 which, it is estimated, will at least equal consumptive requirements reached in 1929.

A HUNDRED THOUSAND HOURS

The Big Parade
Marching down the years in the big parade of commerce, the Chicago Board of Trade has carried high its banner of service. Service to a city that it helped transform from mudhole to metropolis. Service to a state and its far-flung cornfields. Service to a nation, whose bread supply it has distributed, evenly, and at low cost.

Tides of Commerce
Just as the ancient Romans built their everlasting Appian Way, so the Board of Trade created an enduring system of marketing, deeply imbedded in the eternal principle of justice to all. And so it has lived, and prospered, while the swift tides of commerce have changed the lives of less sound industries; while wars have torn the globe, and nations have risen and fallen; while political marauders have whined their way into obscurity.

Rivers of Grain
On the pages of business history, this exchange has a record spanning eighty-two years. It has operated continuously on 24,600 market days of 100,250 trading hours, and has received in Chicago, since 1855, when records began, 15,059,987,000 bushels of grain.

Lighting the Way
It has grown and prospered by handling grain on a lower spread between grower and consumer than exists in the marketing of any other staple foodstuff. Its provisions market, world-wide in scope, has performed highest service, and its cotton mart has lighted the way to finer methods of distribution.

Men and Money
Business flows to the great markets. Such markets are made by men, money, physical machinery and public confidence. All these are Board of Trade assets. Bankers, corporation presidents and some of the nation's leading business men are numbered among the 1,586 members of this exchange.

Threads the World
To carry on the immense marketing task, members of the exchange maintain balances in Chicago banks alone estimated at $200,000,000. Physical machinery of this second largest of all exchanges includes a private wire system that threads its way over this and other countries.

Forward!
During the new year the Board of Trade, in its new 44-story home, with its newly-launched securities market—destined to become international—will march forward with Chicago and the nation in the big parade of commerce.

CHICAGO BOARD OF TRADE
GRAIN . . . COTTON . . . PROVISIONS . . . SECURITIES

After a recent survey of membership values on leading exchanges, an able observer declared: "I know of no better investment than a Board of Trade membership. These seats will inevitably sell for $100,000 or more. They have the value behind them."

A MESSAGE for 1930

WE HAVE faith in the stability of business in the United States—faith in the constructive leadership of the captains at the helm—and faith that the decade to come will be even more prosperous than the past three in this great century.

Those who agree with us are planning further development and expansion of their business and investing their surplus income in sound American securities. We invite you to do the same and offer for your service the complete facilities of our organization.

Hold Your Stocks?

Is this the time to buy securities?

The action of most securities recently is puzzling most investors. They are uncertain whether to sell with the expectation of repurchasing at lower levels, or whether this is decidedly a time to secure good investments at bargain prices.

The Brookmire position is definite, and is stated definitely in our latest Bulletin.

When reading this Bulletin, it should be remembered that behind it stands the judgment of a group of trained economists, the experience of more than 25 years, and the far-reaching facilities of the largest organization of its character in the United States.

SHEEP—Fed western lambs yesterday	$11.50@13.25
One month ago	12.00@13.25
One year ago	14.75@15.75

Top yesterday, $13.25; average, $12.50.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 5,000 cattle; 16,000 hogs, and 8,000 sheep.

The hog market sagged as receipts increased yesterday, bringing the extreme top down 20c at $9.70, while the general average shows a loss of 25c at $9.40. Closing sales were lowest in ten days and 35@40c under the high point of last week.

Cattle Steady.

Conditions of the cattle market were little changed yesterday. Lightweight steers and yearlings were in good demand at firm prices, while medium and heavy animals were hard to dispose of at the recent low level of prices. Prices paid for yearlings were considerably above those obtained for weighty stock.

Fancy 935 lb yearlings held the peak of the market at $16.00, while choice finished 1,505 lb beeves were sold at $13.90 and few heavy cattle above $13.00. Some averaging 1,653 lbs brought the latter pricee. Calves slumped 50c to $1.00 more.

Lamb Market Topheavy.

Fairly large receipts enabled buyers to block a stronger undertone in the lamb market early yesterday, and at the finish were buying at additional reductions of 15@25c, medium and weighty stock showing most weakness.

STEEL OUTPUT BREAKS RECORDS; DROPS AT END

Closing Months Reveal a Smaller Demand.

BY FRED PLETCHER.
[Associate editor Iron Trade Review.]

Steel output, weathering a shriveled buying market in the last four months of 1929, has emerged with a fresh standard for comparison in volume.

Despite the tapering, due largely to the automotive slump, the steel industry has maintained a strategic position. The year's title to the steel production record has been confirmed by even the most conservative figures on December output.

Total 1929 production, at between 54,000,000 and 55,000,000 tons, was nearly 9 per cent over the previous 1928 record, and passed by a wide margin the 1926 total, which had been pegged as a high mark in finished steel consumption. The country's ability to digest a yearly morsel of 50,000,000 tons of steel has been demonstrated. The Chicago district gained on its relative balance. Preliminary estimates place the district's ingot output close to 9,500,000 tons, against slightly more than 9,000,000 tons in 1928.

Sets Several New Records.

Swept in on a crest of activity, the industry established records by months, quarters, the first half year, and in its entirety, while the swift pace left no strain. At the close of the year, inventories were scraping bottom and virtually no order cancellations occurred. A new all-time mark in daily average production was established in May, and in the eleven months of 1929, according to figures available at the end of November, the approximate daily tonnage of steel ingots poured was 179,259 tons, as against 160,338 tons in all 1928.

Consumption More Varied.

The year has disclosed that the diversity of steel consumption has broadened amazingly in the west. Rapidly growing consumers are the producers of welded steel pipe lines for oil and natural gas. The super pipe line projects took tremendous tonnages of skelp and plate. This volume helped to press into service plate mill capacity in the Chicago district that had not been used since the war years. At one period more than a half million tons of plates were on mill books.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

"......if you say it's good, I'll take it"

"YOUR recommendation is sufficient. I'm too busy with my own business to study the market and be an investment expert. That's your business. The reason I began to buy from you people in the first place was because my friends told me that the securities you offer are good. So far I've found my confidence in you justified."

Many of our clients buy this way after they have become familiar with this house and the character of its offerings. They all know something of the progress being made by electric light and power companies, in which type of securities we specialize. They tell us about their investment situation and perhaps give us a list of their holdings. Then they feel confident that any investments we offer them will be not only safe and desirable, but also suited to their individual requirements.

The executives of this company are in particularly close touch with conditions, trends and earnings in the electric light and power industry. Their many sources of accurate information in this basic and growing industry and their experience in weighing security values have proved extremely advantageous to our customers.

RELIABLE INVESTMENT COUNSEL

As an introduction to this house, its policies, personnel and methods, write for our interesting booklet, "Reliable Investment Counsel, How to Choose and Use It." We will also be glad to send you our monthly investment newspaper, "The Wilsey Outlook."

American Zinc, Lead and Smelting.

H. G. C.—American Zinc, Lead and Smelting company's earnings for the nine months ended September 30, 1929, compare favorably with earnings in the corresponding period of 1928, although a slight decline has been indicated since the first quarter of 1929.

Net income, before depreciation, depletion and federal tax, for the September quarter was $285,505, against $184,466 in the September quarter of 1928. Net income for the nine months ended September 30, 1929, was $901,869, against $593,833 in the corresponding period of 1928.

The company has not published sufficient information to estimate earnings per share. The company has distributed $3 per share on the preferred stock this year, this being the first payment on the preferred for eight years. Accumulations still remain and amount to approximately $50 per share.

Great Northern Railway.

H. M.—Great Northern Railway company general 7s, series "A," maturing July 1, 1936, together with four other series, are secured by a first lien on 231 miles and also a lien on 2,083 miles and a collateral lien on 417 miles of railroad. The total mileage under this mortgage by direct or collateral lien is 7,501 miles. It also covers all terminal properties and equipment, subject to prior liens.

These bonds are listed on the New York stock exchange. Earnings in the last eight years have averaged 2.2 times interest charges.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Has Good Year.

Atlantic Refining is closing one of its best years and probably will consolidate the usual quarterly extra of 25 cents a share with the regular dividend of the same amount, thus placing the stock on a straight annual basis of $2 at the next meeting.

Watch Price Situation.

The price situation in two important commodities—oil and copper—will be watched with unusual interest next month. On the one hand, it has been said that prices both for copper and oil were being held up by strong arm methods in order to help the outlook of the 1929 statement and to force early winter buying at the higher levels. On the other, it has been asserted that conditions do not warrant price reductions in either commodity and that present levels may be maintained indefinitely unless and until production rises considerably.

Primed by Sponsors.

Johns Manville is being primed by its strong banking sponsors as one of the stocks which will be used to make things interesting for the bear element next month, it is said. According to the same story, the floating supply of Manville is smaller than at any time in the last few months. Large blocks were permanently removed from the market in the decline below the $100—level.

Call Money.

Nothing more than a nominal hardening of call money is anticipated for the early part of January. The current lending rate of 6 per cent has attracted moderate, out of town funds, which has tended to offset some calling of loans by the banks. Some students of the situation believe that fluctuations in the call rate will be between 6 and 7 per cent for several months to come.

Hear of New Group.

One story which circulated in Wall street yesterday said that a new constructive group had been formed in American Can. This group is supposed to have plenty of friends among bankers who took blocks of "distress" stock, and, what is more important, is well off from point of cash. American Can has been performing in excellent fashion of late, and unless another declining market period develops, that latest American Can operation ought to be a success, it is believed.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—(AP)—Inquiries looking to early business on gray cottons in fine yarns were more numerous. Cotton yarns for insulation purposes make up much of the immediate selling. Rayon demand was called light, but prices are most attractive for special lots. The wool goods industry is centering immediate interest in a style revue to open in New York Jan. 6.

This is the Time to take "Inventory" of your Investments

It has always been good policy to check over one's investments at regular intervals. In view of the recent sharp readjustments in security values, an analytical inventory is more than ordinarily desirable at this time. It is of very definite concern to every investor to go over his holdings now and know exactly where he stands.

If an analysis of your investments reveals any securities that are not intrinsically sound, now is the time to replace them with high grade issues. For both bonds and stocks of the highest grade can now be obtained at very reasonable prices. Sooner or later, these securities will enjoy a general appreciation in value, but such a development cannot be counted upon to improve materially the value of issues which are basically unsound. These, because of their uncertain prospects, are likely to remain near present levels, or even drift lower.

That is why the present, especially, is a good time to thoroughly analyze your holdings. Our organization will be glad to assist you in making an appraisal of your investments. Without any obligation on your part, we invite you to write for particulars.

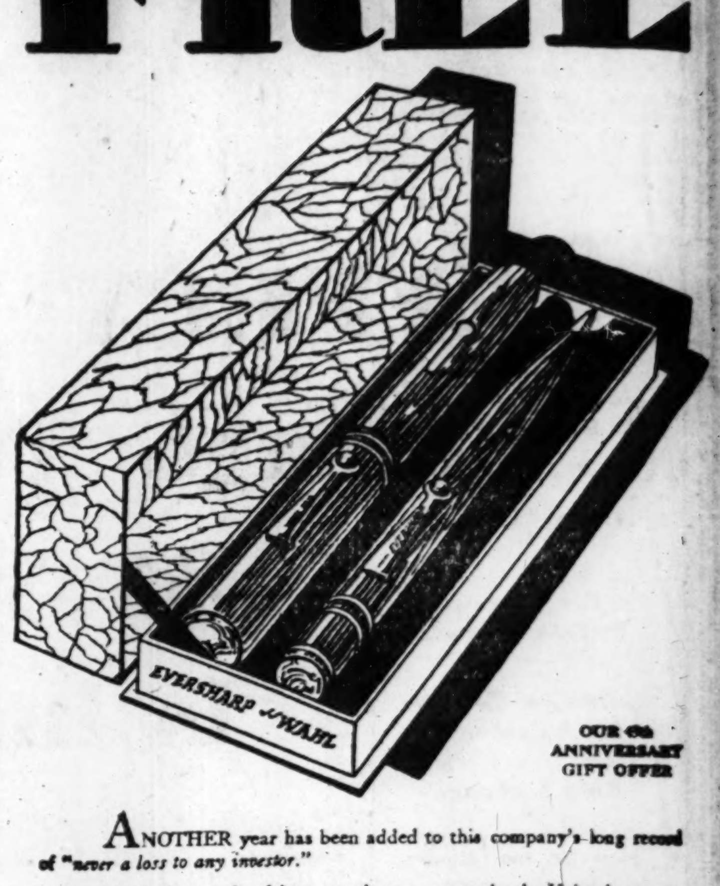
COCHRAN & McCLUER INVESTORS

Get this FREE



ANOTHER year has been added to this company's long record of "never a loss to any investor."

Since 1881 thousands of investors in every state in the Union have purchased millions of dollars worth of Cochran & McCluer first mortgage real estate bonds, unsolicited by salesmen (because we employ none).

We appreciate this confidence and this recognition of the Cochran & McCluer direct plan of serving investors—a plan which enables us to offer our customers the highest rate of interest consistent with safety, now 6½%.

As a mark of our appreciation to our regular customers—and as a symbol of welcome to new investors—we are presenting this genuine Wahl-Eversharp Writing Set to each purchaser of our bonds, either for cash or on payment plan, while this anniversary offer is in effect.

The gift set consists of pen, pencil, and attractive presentation box. Pen and pencil are of beautiful figured rosewood rubber, and have all the famous Wahl-Eversharp features, including gold-filled bands, roller clip and filling lever. Obtain this set for yourself or for a gift to another (pen and pencil may, of course, serve as two separate gifts).

Cochran & McCluer bonds—bonds on which no investor has ever lost a single dollar in principal or interest—may be purchased in denominations of $100, $500 and $1000. As little as $10 starts you on our Retire in 15 Years Plan and entitles you to the special gift offer. This offer can be made for limited time only. Phone, call or mail coupon for full particulars.

Retire in 15 years on your present living budget

Follow the simple, definite plan in the book, "How to Retire in 15 Years," and your independence is won. Plan works just as surely whether you are earning $1000 or $100,000 a year. Phone, call or mail coupon for free copy.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

NOTICE!

EFFECTIVE TODAY . . . . . The price of the Chicago Tribune-Federal Life Insurance Company $7,500.00 Accident Insurance Policy is increased from $1.00 to $1.25 a year

Still the biggest insurance bargain in America--more insurance for the money than can be obtained anywhere else

Effective today, the price of the Chicago Tribune-Federal Life Insurance Company $7,500.00 Travel Accident Insurance Policy is increased from $1.00 a year to $1.25 a year. This additional 25c is necessary because of the tremendous increase in automobile accidents which has resulted in a corresponding increase in the payments to policyholders and beneficiaries.

In the past three years, 1927 to 1929, claims for automobile accidents under these policies have increased 63%. The 25 cent increase will make up, in part at least, the greatly increased claim payments. It will be payable to the Federal Life Insurance Company.

More than $1,670,000.00 in actual cash has been paid to the holders and beneficiaries of these policies. This is by far more Insurance money than ever has been paid to the readers of any other newspaper in America. It indicates the great value of these policies.

The issuance and maintenance of these Accident Insurance Policies has cost the Chicago Tribune to date in excess of $600,000.00. We believe, however, that the service has rendered a great benefit to our readers and therefore have arranged with the Federal Life Insurance Company to continue it.

At $1.25 for a whole year's protection, your Chicago Tribune-Federal Accident Insurance Policy still is the biggest insurance bargain in America. It offers more insurance for the money than can be obtained anywhere else. This is proved conclusively by the record of payments made to policyholders and beneficiaries—more than $1,670,000.00 in real cash.

If you have a Chicago Tribune-Federal Travel Accident Insurance Policy you can renew it for another year by sending the coupon on page 3 of the Tribune with $1.25 as directed. The value of the specific indemnities will increase 10% upon renewal.

If you haven't one of these valuable policies send the coupon on page 3 with $1.25. The policy will be sent to you by mail.

An Amazing Record! $1,670,000.00 in Real Cash Has Been Paid to Holders and Beneficiaries of These Chicago Tribune-Federal Accident Insurance Policies.

To Get One Send the Coupon on Page 3 With $1.25 for a Full Year's Insurance.

BANK STOCKS ARE SELLING AT LOW LEVELS

IF you consider true diversification a paramount investment rule, you will include at least one good bank stock in your 1930 investment program. In fact, a good bank stock in itself is the essence of diversification. An important banking institution under State or National supervision derives its income from scores of different commercial, financial and agricultural enterprises, depending on no one commodity or product for its profitable operation.

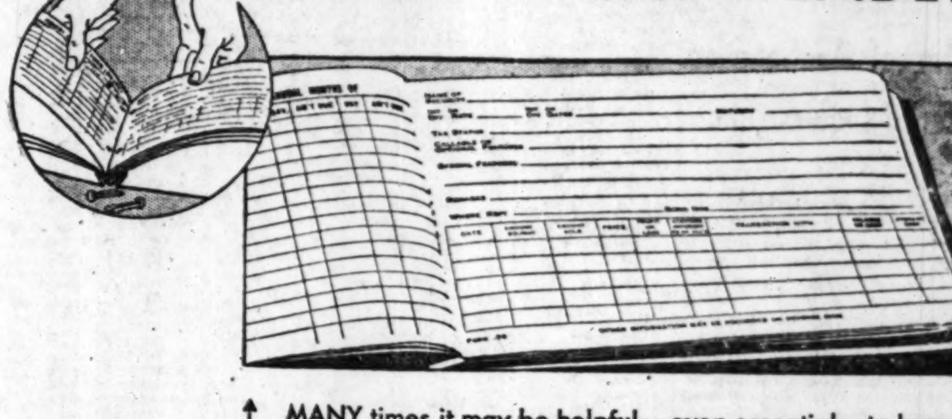
KEEPS FACTS about your investments INSTANTLY AVAILABLE



THREE LOOSE-LEAF FORMS

1. A sheet on which to enter the information about each individual security. It shows such information as name, issue, maturity, when purchased, maturity date, interest or dividend dates, where it is kept.
2. A complete record of all investment income showing when received, from what securities and in what amounts.
3. A summary sheet for keeping a record of income from all sources as well as disbursements which may be tax free.

MANY times it may be helpful—even essential—to know quickly such facts about your investments as where they are kept; the total amounts; what the yields are; the price you paid; when they are due; the amount of investment income received; and what income is tax-free. Particularly when making out income tax returns a convenient source of such data will prove invaluable.

It is a simple matter, with a record book such as the above, to classify all your investments. A few moments—monthly or quarterly—will suffice to keep an up-to-the-minute file of such information right at hand.

We have furnished thousands of investors with this record book, which is in loose-leaf form, with a durable clasp binder. Revised occasionally as experience has shown the need, it now represents as compact and as convenient a security record as is available. We shall be glad to supply you with a copy on request.

How to Make Profits ..and KEEP THEM!

Recent stock market history has emphasized clearly the marked difference between speculation and investment. Speculation may result in profits—it certainly results in losses over a period of years. Sound investment will result in a satisfactory profit and affords protection against losses. The old, time-tested rules still apply:—Select good securities—buy at a price that returns a reasonable yield—remember that a steady income will exceed, in the course of time, the average speculative gain—appreciation in value (the result of a combination of factors) will increase the invested capital from year to year.

Phone, write or call for a copy of this list

This is the only proven method of making profits—and keeping them. To assist investors to select securities that fulfill these requirements, we have prepared a carefully-chosen list of Bonds and Investment Stocks. All are income-producing and provide favorable prospects for steady appreciation in value.

WHEAT PRICES GAIN ON LAST DAY OF YEAR

Corn Market Declines on Scattered Liquidation.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Strength yesterday in foreign wheat markets and talk of a liberal foreign demand for cash grain brought in a better class of commission house buying and also short covering. Prices advanced 1⅜@1¼c over the finish on Monday with the close at net gains of ⅝@1¼c with May leading. There were no untoward developments in the December delivery. Winnipeg showed more strength than Chicago and gained 1⅝@1½c while Buenos Ayres was up 1⅝@1⅞c and Rosario, 1⅞c. Liverpool closed ⅝@⅝ higher.

While many of the local elements were inclined to be bearish there was no real pressure on the wheat market and the advance was checked by year end profit taking, and selling against offers. Houses with seaboard and foreign connections were buyers of futures, and there was some buying early that was regarded as removing hedges against grain that was destroyed in the South Chicago elevator fire on Friday.

Expect Larger Export Demand.

There is a fairly general belief amongst wheat traders that the foreign demand for cash grain will assume much larger proportions shortly after the turn of the year, and this would seem to been confirmed by the numerous private reports during the last few days claiming a good inquiry from aboard, even though actual sales during the period have been small. Sales in all positions for the day were 600,000 to 700,000 bu. Basis on hard winter at the Gulf was firm with No. 2 hard quoted at Chicago May price to ½c under.

Commercial wheat stocks of the world, Jan. 1, when compiled will show a smaller total than a year ago, according to Nat C. Murry, the Clement-Curtis & Co., statistician. This will be the first time, he says, since July, 1926 that world's stocks show less than the corresponding month of the preceding year. As he sees it, the trend in accumulation has now changed and is definitely downward.

December Corn Weakens.

Scattered liquidation was on in December corn, but there was fair support on the break and it finished 1@1⅝c lower at 85½@85⅝, or about 10c under the May, the widest spread of the season. Deferred deliveries were firm, and gained ⅛@½c, strength in wheat having some influence.

Cash houses bought December oats and sold the May around 5c difference, which absorbed the scattered liquidation in the nearby month. The close was 1c lower to ⅝c higher. Shipping demand was liberal with sales of 235,000 bu reported.

UNCLE SAM AS MANAGER TAKES ON NEW DUTIES

Influence Expands in Aid of Industry.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Backward looks at 1929 might well take in other factors than the car loadings, the debt balances, the brokers' loans, the volume of sales in specified industries and the indexes of price levels.

The broader social aspects of life in the United States during the last year deserve consideration. Of these, none perhaps is more striking than the increased trust in agencies of government as general overseers of business and social conditions.

Guides Destiny of Agriculture.

With no serious protest, a bill to place the destinies of agriculture in the hands of an appointed body with resources of a half billion of public money was put in effect and has been functioning. Some of the funds have been assigned to the buying of grain should prices recede to a point which government experts believe to be too low.

Regulation of railroads by the interstate commerce commission was little weakened by the adverse O'Fallon decision, in which the Supreme court ordered that the commission give the railroads valuations more in keeping with present day reproductive value than had been the custom. If the new consolidation plan as announced is put through, a doubtful matter, the power of the government to control all the elements entering into transportation will be strengthened.

Advises Ethical Codes.

The federal trade commission, through the diplomatic channels of the trade conference, has led dozens of industries to adopt codes of ethics which have the avowed purpose of improving conditions for these industries and maintaining competition at the same time, thus reducing costs of consumption goods and services to the public. Notable among these industries is petroleum.

Anti-trust laws, once considered necessary to protect the public against stranglers of competition, were officially declared a dead letter so far as the farm relief is concerned. Oil men have found it practicable to let the various states pass laws that have had the effect of curtailing production, and to enforce them. The largest packing firms in the country during the year began a fight to set aside a legal agreement they made shortly after the war which in general prevented their dealing in products other than meat and related articles.

This house, for many years identified with the financing of the public utility industry, has confined its public offerings of securities to those bearing fixed incomes; that is, mortgage bonds, debentures, notes and preferred stocks. This policy has remained unchanged during the inflated common stock equity market of recent years.

Now that the strained credit situation of recent months has been relieved by drastic stock market liquidation we believe that practically all fundamental factors, making for an active and rising market in fixed income securities, are favorable.

We, therefore, wish to increase our Chicago city sales organization and will be pleased to receive applications from those who can meet our requirements. While men who have demonstrated their ability in the sale of fixed-income securities will of course be given first consideration, such experience is not essential and those who can point to successful sales records in other lines of business may quite possibly find that it is to their advantage to discuss the matter with us.

TIME

THE TIME HAS PASSED SINCE THE FACTS, FIGURES, AND THE VALUES OF YESTERDAY CAN BE WHOLLY RELIED UPON AS A SOUND BASIS FOR THE PROGRESS OF TOMORROW. POPULATIONS GROW AND SHRINK —CHANNELS OF INDUSTRY WIDEN, DEEPEN OR CLOSE—METHODS CHANGE, MATERIALS CHANGE—STEAM ENGINES BECOME TURBINES—TUNNELS BURROW WHERE BRIDGES SPANNED—THE SPIRIT OF TRANSPORTATION RISES FROM NARROW TRACKS OF STEEL TO THE BOUNDLESS PATHS OF THE AIR. NOTHING IN BUSINESS IS STATIC. EXPERIENCE DEMANDS CONSTANT CLASSIFICATION AND INTERPRETATION, NOT ONLY OF PATENT STATISTICS BUT OF ALL THE TANGIBLE AND INTANGIBLE FACTORS WHICH AFFECT PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY.

THIS ORGANIZATION STANDS AT THE OPENING OF 1930 WITH A WIDER EXPERIENCE AND WITH BROADER FACILITIES TO MEET THE ENGINEERING AND THE ECONOMIC PROBLEMS OF THE NEW YEAR.

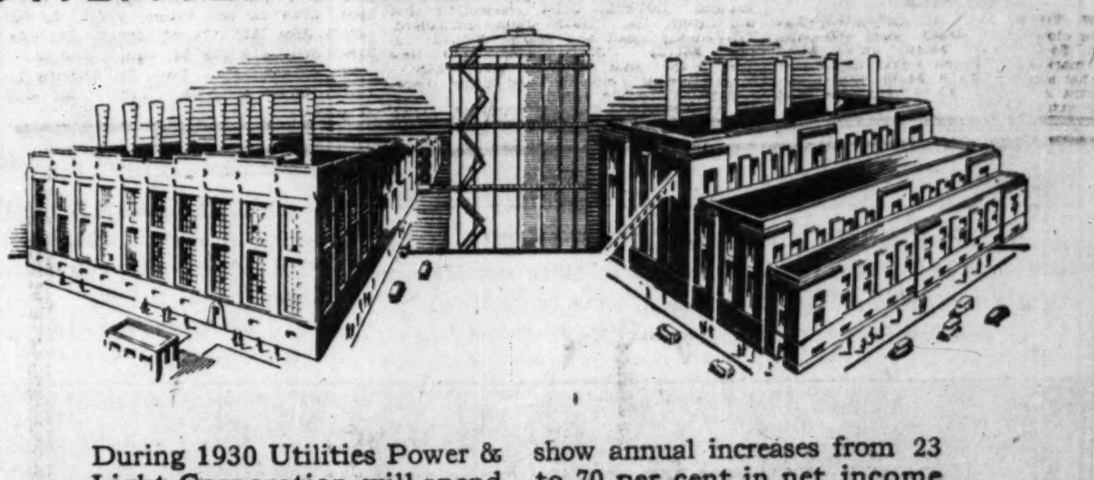
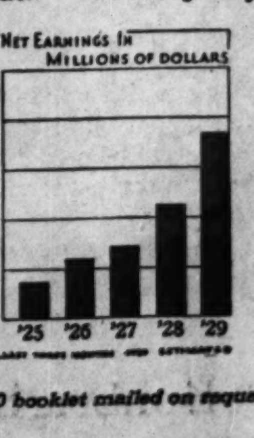
1930 WITH THE UTILITIES POWER & LIGHT SYSTEM



During 1930 Utilities Power & Light Corporation will spend $60,000,000 for new development. The year closes with the System serving nearly 750,000 customers in nineteen states, in England and Canada. The territory served has a population of more than five million. During the year the System announced the acquisition of the Greater London and Counties Trust Limited, the subsidiaries of which furnish electric energy to a territory where the field for expansion is very great.

Earnings of the System have shown remarkable increases, particularly the net income after all charges have been deducted. The earnings statements for the past five years show annual increases from 23 to 70 per cent in net income available for dividends. Stockholders increased during the past year from approximately 40,000 to about 55,000.



Several major projects of new construction stand out as very impressive in the System's 1930 program. A 160,000 kilowatt superpower plant is being built on the White River near Indianapolis. Another of similar size is under construction on the Raritan River near Sayreville, New Jersey. A 10,000,000 cubic feet gas holder—one of the largest in the world—is being built in St. Louis. Lines, operating equipment and service will be extended and improved throughout all properties.
